

A Single "G-W" Vertical Letter File Section occupies only two square feet. In it you can file fifteen thousand—yes, thousand—letters with answers attached. It costs $22.00 in selected quartered oak. Any other filing system of equal capacity would cost from $35.00 to $50.00, and occupy twice the space. Thus you save money on the cabinet and money on the rent. You also save money on the clerk hire. It takes less time for a clerk to find a letter by this method of filing, because the letter and reply are in the same folder—when he finds one he finds the other; he looks in one place instead of two. The Globe-Wernicke Vertical File has a patented drop front. This loosens the pressure so one can turn over the upper edges of the letters like the pages of a book. These Vertical Files are made for Bill, Letter, Report and Cap size papers. Sold strictly on a commercial and not a "system" basis. The most complete line of vertical filing cabinets, and high-grade business and office furniture in this city is in our own salesroom. We carry the goods in stock.

Mrs. Thomas Glaze

Mrs. Thomas Glaze died at her home across the Willamette from Albany Thursday night, of heart trouble. Her death was sudden, she having been apparently well before.

She was born in Circleville, O., June 25, 1842, where she was married in 1860 to Mr. Glaze. She moved from there to Kansas and thence to Oregon in 1890. A husband and six children survive her. George Glaze, of Blackwater, Mo.; Mrs. Denton, who once resided at Miller's Station, of Jules, Kan.; Mrs. Bertha Durbin, now of Yachats; Mrs. Fred Holmes, of Benton county; and Fred Glaze, of St. Johns.

She was a member of the Christian church, a woman of splendid character, a good mother and wife.

Oregon City Scrap.

Oregon City Star, Friday evening:

A negro with several scalp wounds that were bleeding, seen running down the Southern Pacific track gave the clue to the officer that there was trouble somewhere. The negro was tearing down the track, going south, at a breakneck speed for several blocks, when all of a sudden he changed his mind and took Main street back to town. He afterwards said he was so badly scared that he was running to California. His head was in a terrible condition, and stepping into a barber shop the wounds were washed.

Upon coming into the street the negro was arrested by Constable Ely, who had been notified.

The story was related by the negro, who said his name was Richards, and that he was a dish washer in the well-known St. Paul house of this city.

Lately there has been a good deal of bitter feeling among the inmates of that lodging house, and especially so since the attempt of Trembath to shoot Dicklich, his partner, last week. Dicklich was again mixed up in this scrape, the negro telling the officer that Dicklich was sore at him since the previous scrape, and that he (the negro) was attacked yesterday when he was doing "nothing."

The parties were all taken before Justice Blipp. The negro stated his side as told before the officer, and added that the gashes in his head were made by a large butcher knife, by Dicklich and that Zony Cordes, another Italian, had attempted to kill him with a chair he had picked up.

Dicklich had to explain the story for the two, as Cordes is unable to speak English. He said that the negro had been drinking, and was not doing his work, and the trouble started when the negro got to mixing into his business. The cuts, he said, were inflicted with a large spoon or ladle, when the negro jumped onto them with a bottle as a weapon.

All pleaded guilty to the charge of assault and battery. The judge took the matter under advisement, and after reprimanding Dicklich, telling him that he must run a respectable house after this or he would be made to suffer, he fined Dicklich and the negro Richards $20 or ten days in the county jail, and Cordes $10 or five days in jail.

Dicklich and Cordes paid their fine, but the negro did not have the money. He begged the court to force Dicklich to pay him his wages, so he could pay his fine, but all his efforts were in vain. His plea was that he had money coming, and that he would skip town if given a chance, but the constable finally took him off to the county jail, where he may be seen "doing time and washin' dishes."

Were Boyhood Friends.

E. P. Bell, recently a prosperous merchant in Cleary City, Alaska, who has been visiting with his old-time friend, H. L. Rockwell, left this morning for San Francisco, en route for his former home in Kansas. Mr. Rockwell and he were schoolmates and chums in their boyhood days, and the visit brought back many pleasant recollections of the times spent in their Kansas home.

COLD WEATHER FASHIONS.

Some of the New Ideas in Fur and Seasonable Millinery.

Just at the present moment women are wearing pretty tailor made suits while waiting for the days when furs will be necessary. A few have put their furs on—that is to say, the small ties and short shoulder pieces—but muffs will not be needed for some weeks to come. When they do they will be large, flat and generally ungraceful, but they are in some ways desirable above the smaller and daintier ones of a year or so ago, for these come well up to the elbows and thus keep the arms warm in place of the sleeves. Women are queer and irresponsible creatures, after all, for just when they need the extra warmth of long sleeves, behold, they cut them off at the elbow and depend on muffs.

True, the gloves are made with a direct bearing on the short sleeve. They reach even above the bend of the arm and do almost keep that member from freezing, but it needs the muff to supply the necessary amount of caloric. The gloves for wearing with the pretty short coats and pony jackets, the blouse coats, the jaunty bolero reefers, the handsome long rain coats and the long loose coat now so much in evidence are made of heavy dogskin, tan, brown and in fact all the season's colors. Biarritz gloves in black and white are handsome in the stitching, being narrow and fine rather than bunched, as heretofore. There are thick doeskin gloves for autoing, made with straps and buckles.

Among the new dress goods I see much navy and black storm serge, heavy and with the same crisp feel that serge had when they were in style some fifteen years ago. Serge has always been worn more or less, as it is a standard stuff, but it is fashionable now, which it was not for a long time. It is wide and made in many dark colors and black. Volles, black and in colors, are among the newest goods, and now they are woven so that they do not sag in wearing. That made them unsatisfactory material in spite of their beauty. Made up over slips of the home taffeta silk, they are now satisfactory. The French and English mesh volles plaited over slips of lustrous taffeta make dresses greatly to be desired.

Some of the most desirable suits are made of the neat and pretty two toned or hair lined stripes or the shadow plaids, all in delicate shades of light and dark gray. The illustration shows one of the prettiest of these designs. The coat may be three-quarter length or shorter, according to the pleasure of the owner. This one is of a fine stripe of gray over a cream white. The skirt is tailor finished and quite plain, while all the trimming upon the coat consists of the black velvet collar and cuffs in such striking contrast. The same design is very neat in any gown.

Hats seem to be of every imaginable shape, size, style and material. Everything goes, from fur to lace and from felt to flowers. Those that have feathers for trimming have more and longer ones than I have ever seen. Quills, wings and bunches of feathers made from turkeys, geese, guinea hens and even ordinary common chickens are worn, while the made up things in all sorts of shapes and varieties are colored in the most brilliant shades. Whole heron ruffs and sigrets are the choicest of all, and they are placed in any kind of way on the velvet bonnets. These are so very costly that nothing is considered worthy for a foundation but heavy velvet.

Isabella fox fur neck pieces are very pretty and make a good showing for the money. The same furs for the neck are stylish still, and so are paw sets, tie and muff. The tie has in some cases two heads at the back of the neck. Caracal muffs and ties, black lynx ties and pillow muffs, royal ermine sets, white fox sets consisting always of tie and pillow muffs are among the newest.

After these come the coats and jackets. Caracal jackets are very rich and handsome. The black is lustrous and fine. Broadcloth coats lined with Siberian squirrel are very desirable, but the ordinary squirrel is about as handsome. These long cloth coats have shawl collars of black lynx or some other preferred fine fur.

OLIVE WARDEN

MRS. ADDIE HARDING, 810 Court street, Syracuse, N. Y., writes:

"I have been a user of Peruna for the last twelve years and can truthfully say that there is no better medicine on earth."

"With me it is a sure preventive for colds and many other ills. In my home can always be found a bottle of Peruna. Two or three times a year I am troubled with my throat."

"I always had to have the services of my physician two or three times in each case."

"Although a user of Peruna, I never thought of taking it for my throat until about two years ago."

"I tried Peruna to check it, and to my great delight I was not troubled with the smothered and choked feeling and never have since."

"I can check it every time with Peruna."

"I certainly would not be without Peruna one minute."

The fight against consumption is becoming a national problem.

Everywhere we hear of sanitariums established at the expense of the state for the treatment of the vast army of consumptives.

The open air treatment, fresh air and sunlight, are recognized by the medical profession generally as being the greatest necessities in the treatment of consumption in all of its stages.

Dr. Hartman has for many years advocated the fresh air treatment for consumption. At the same time he has recognized Peruna as a useful palliative for the many distressing symptoms which accompany the white plague.

MRS. MARY MEYER, Thomson avenue, near Shell Road, Winfield, L. Y., N. Y., writes:

"I have been annoyed with a cough for years."

"Often it was so bad that I could not sleep half the night. Many people thought I had consumption."

"A woman recommended Peruna to me two years ago. I began to take Peruna and now I am perfectly free from a cough."

"I am glad to say that Peruna cured me entirely. I take Peruna occasionally when I do not feel well and I also give it to my children."

"Peruna is the best medicine for coughs and colds. I have told many people how much Peruna has helped me."

Peruna tends to lessen the cough, decreases the expectoration, strengthens the patient, increases the appetite and in many cases procures sound, refreshing sleep.

But the value of Peruna in the treatment of a case of consumption is not so great as it is in the prevention of consumption.

Since it is well known that consumption begins with a common cold or catarrh, any medicine that can be relied upon to relieve these must be regarded as a preventive of consumption.

Thousands of cases of incipient consumption, or chronic coughs, or settled colds, have reported Peruna as being a safe and reliable remedy for these ailments.

In 1846, Mr. Baber that year coming up the valley from further north. He did the work himself, including the making of the lumber.

Unable to furnish the required bond the defendant was locked up in the county jail. It is claimed Boone was married in this city September 15th of last year to Caroline S.
