Happenings of Interest on the Gay Side of Life in the Capital City.

Fisher-Kay Wedding.

The marriage of Miss Bertha Lolita Kay, youngest daughter of Mrs. Thomas Kay, of this city, and Mr. Ralph B. Fisher, of Portland, was celebrated Wednesday evening at the bride's mother's home on State street, at which over one hundred relatives and friends were present. Rev. F. W. Cliffe, pastor of the First Baptist church performed the beautiful ring ceremony.

The Kay home was beautifully decorated, the hall being banked with laurestina, the front parlor was in pink, carnations, hydrangeas and English holly carrying out the scheme effectively. The back parlor and dining room were in white and green, festoons of English holly and beautifully potted fern being used, while carnations were abundantly used. The centerpiece on the table was long stemmed lilies. Smilax was also festooned in pretty designs about the room. Miss Nina McNary and Miss Sallie Shaw had the entire charge of the decorating.

At 8 o'clock Mrs. Homer Smith sang "Beauty's Eyes," after which Miss Ruth Gabrielson rendered Lohengrin's wedding march and the bridal party entered the parlors, where the ceremony was performed. The bride was attended by her sister, Mrs. Lenore Kay Roberts, of Hood River, as matron of honor, Little Miss Marjorie Kay, a niece of the bride was daisy as flower girl, and Little Miss Bertha Lenore Coshaw, also a niece of the bride of Roseburg, was ring bearer, carrying it in a large white caddy. Both the little girls were gowned in white, Albert D. Applegate, of Portland, a cousin of the groom was best man.

The bride was a vision of loveliness in her beautiful gown of white silk crepe de chine, trimmed with rare chinchilla lace, with veil and carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses. The matron of honor wore a handsome costume of cream crepe de chine with duchess lace trimmings, and carried pink roses.

Miss Lenore Dale Coshaw, of Roseburg, a cousin of the bride, opened the door, and Mrs. Charles P. Bishop, Mrs. Theodore T. Geor and Mrs. Chas. A. Gray received the guests.

The presents were many and beautiful and costly, consisting of silver and cut glass, and many pieces of rare hand painted china. A large number of telegrams from friends abroad were read, and long distance telephone congratulations from friends who could not attend were received after the ceremony.

A collation duty in all its appointments, in which the color scheme of green and white was carried out.

Notable among the large assembly was the many handsome costumes worn by the ladies.

The young couple will be at home to their friends in Portland after February 1st, at their home, No. 687 Schuyler street, Irvington. Both have a large circle of friends. The bride has lived in this city the greater part of her life, and has always been a social favorite. Besides being possessed of charming personality, she is highly accomplished, being a graduate of the Willamette University college of oratory, and the Boston Conservatory of Music and Elocution. She has also had a class in elocution in Portland for some time past. Mr. Fisher is a promising young lawyer of the metropolis, being a member of the law firm of Baker & Fisher. He is a man well liked, both in social and business circles.

Among the out of town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Theodore T. Geor, of Pendleton; Mrs. Charles P. Bishop, Mr. John Frasen and two daughters, Mr. and Mrs. G. Evert Baker, Miss Constance Holland, Mrs. Ralph Watson, all of Portland; Mr. Clarence M. The banquet given was most elaborate and was greatly enjoyed. The following program was rendered: Piano solo—Mrs. Claudia Conder. Recitation—Mrs. M. P. Baldwin. Piano solo—Miss Blanche Brown. The guests were entertained in the library, dancing being the principal amusement, after which a light luncheon was served in the dining room. The reform school band furnished music throughout the evening.

Presents Fine Chair.

About twenty of the neighbors and friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Harck last evening, and spent a pleasant hour or two. Mrs. Harck has been a helpless invalid for many years, and this gathering was especially cheering to her. After singing several hymns, Rev. Edward Gittins, of the Leslie church, then made a short talk and presented a fine chair as a gift from their many friends in Salem. The chair will be a great help to the invalid, as she has not been able to leave her bed for two years. It is rubber-tired, cushioned, ball bearing and has a table and several other convenient attachments. A committee composed of Mrs. John Bayne, Mrs. D. D. Keeler and Mrs. F. Townsend were the means of securing the funds from the many friends.

Rev. Carlisle, P. B. Martin, L. L. D. Of Waverly, Tex., writes: "Of a morning, when first arising, I often find a troublesome collection of phlegm which produces a cough and is very hard to dislodge; but a small quantity of Ballard's Horsehound Syrup will at once dislodge it, and the trouble is over. I know of no medicine that is equal to it, and it is so pleasant to take. I can most cordially recommend it to all persons needing a medicine for throat or lung trouble." Sold by D. J. Fry.

Japanese Overrunning Mexico. Mayathan, Mexico, Jan. 19.—Six hundred Japanese arrived here today on the Hokou, Maru. The total landed here in six months amounts to 2154 but few remain in the country as they gradually make their way north and enter the United States. The Mexican government has given them free transportation from Japan in order to get them to work on important industries hampered greatly owing to the lack of labor but for some reason or other, although pay is good and conditions of life better than that in Japan they quit at the earliest opportunity and make for the United States. It is calculated that considerably over 2000 of them entered the latter country during the past 12 months.

REVEREND HOUSE RESIGNS

Old Friction Between Pastor and Certain Members Is Held Partly Responsible

Portland Telegram, Jan. 18:
Dr. Edwin Lincoln House tendered his resignation as pastor of the First Congregational church at the annual roll-call last night, and the resignation was accepted. He goes to Spokane. He has been in the pulpit of the First Congregational church for four years, and during his incumbency of the pastorate the heavy church debt has been raised. The resignation becomes effective March 1st.

While leading members of the church declare that all is harmonious, there is no denying evidence of friction between the pastor and members of his congregation. How much these differences had to do with the determination of Dr. House to sever his connection with the First Congregational pulpit is not apparent to the inquiring laymen, but that they had something to do with it is admitted.

Dr. House in his letter of resignation to the church, while assigning his reason for resigning to too much work and the fact that the church debt has now been raised and his labors in Portland completed, drops a remark about "reasons that are personal," which tend to indicate that all is not harmony between the pulpit and the pews of the First Congregational church.

Because the church failed at the last annual meeting to vote him an increase of salary, and instead referred the motion to grant an increase to the board of trustees, instead of voting it outright, as some present wanted to do, friction was engendered, and it was announced by Dr. House at the time that he would resign.

He was offended at the action of the church in referring the proposed increase to the board of trustees. This led him to believe that there was opposition to an increase that had been promised him when the debt should be lifted, and Dr. House resented the action.

The storm blew over, however, a short time afterward, when the board of trustees unanimously voted the pastor an increase of $600 a year amounting to $50 a month, and making his total salary $3600.

But although it was understood at the time that Dr. House would remain, it appears that he has not been entirely satisfied with the atmosphere at Park and Madison, and when a call was received from the Westminster church at Spokane, followed by another call, and then another, he concluded that it was best for all concerned that the change should be made, and last night tendered his resignation, to take the pastorate of the Spokane church, which furnishes a parsonage and almost, if not as much money as the First Church of Portland.

While there are those who worship at the First Congregational who will not weep at Dr. House's departure, the large majority of the congregation will regret the change. The doctor has made many friends, and has increased the church membership materially during his pastorate. When he came here the church was floundering under a heavy load of debt, ranging somewhere from $27,000 to $29,000. Through the

"YON YONSON."

Old Time Favorite Pleases Fair-sized Audience at the Grand.

"Yon Yonson," the standard of the Swedish dialect plays and a comedy that has held its own for a decade or two, was given at the Grand Opera House last evening, with Geo. C. Thompson, a native Scandinavian, in the title role.

Time has dealt kindly with "Yon Yonson," and as the years have rolled by the comedy, with its melodramatic tendencies, has lost none of its original vigor and freshness. There have been few changes introduced in the text of the play, and none in the stage business. Mr. Thompson handled the Swede dialect as ably as any of his predecessors, and his support is fair. The Lumbermen's Quartet is fully up to the standard, and they were repeatedly called back last evening.

A fair-sized audience witnessed the play.
