

Salem Social Gossip

The Girl People Like.

She has so much to do that she has no time for morbid thoughts. She never thinks for a moment that she is not attractive, nor forgets to look charming as possible. She is considerate of the happiness of others, and it is reflected back to her as from a looking-glass. She never permits herself to grow old, for by cultivating all the graces of heart, brain and body, age does not come to her.

She awakens cheerfully in the morning and closes her eyes thankfully at night.

She believes that life has some serious work to do; that the serious work lies very close to the homely, every-day duties, and that kind words cost nothing.

She is always willing to give suggestions that will help some less fortunate one over the bad places in life's journey.

She is her own sweet, unaffected, womanly self—therein lies the secret of her popularity, of her success.

Taking in the City.

Judge Galloway Friday afternoon acted as chaperone for the McMinnville college crowd and took them through the public buildings of the city. There were about twenty-five in the party and the judge seemed to have about all he could handle.

Visit Independence.

About twenty members of the I. O. O. F. from Salem made a fraternal visit to their brothers in Independence Thursday night and assisted in conferring degrees.

One of the surprise features of the evening was "Maud on the road to the Mountain House," a very amusing and enjoyable farce.

A substantial banquet was given at the close of the work.

A return visit is expected soon when some work will be done for the brothers of Independence by the local lodge. More of these fraternal visits would be of great benefit.

SPRING FASHION REVIEW

New York, March 2.—At present black and white effects are much in vogue, especially in light, transparent textures, as lace, net gauze and chiffon. Black chiffon elaborately made over silk with lace, jet embroidery spangles makes a most serviceable dress and one that will look smart at any time. The black and white striped chiffons are still seen in great numbers, but have lately been some what superseded by the printed chiffons. These gowns when elaborately tucked, with the white showing so distinctly between the tucks to lighten it are indeed very stylish. The bodice is usually made suitable for the evening by a lace collar and deep yoke with the sleeves wholly of, in some cases, the lace and white chiffon. The embroidery on the gown may be entirely of black and white, but a touch of color in gold or silver or light passementerie worked in is always in combination with plain black jet and paillettes serve to make a black gown more noticeable, and for a handsome dress the conspicuous should always be striven for so long as it keeps within the limits of good taste.

The inevitable black dress as it is sometimes called, is always a most useful possession, and an infinite variety of effects can be had with the different materials that are to be obtained. Soft clinging fabrics are first in favor, as has been stated in these letters before, but there are also heavier materials to be had that are just as fashionable, while chiffon velvet has lost none of its popularity. A most fascinating gown of this description is in empire style, but has panels let into the skirt below the hips. There is a narrow yoke of white lace bordered with embroidered bands of velvet cut on the straight. Below the yoke the material is draped just across the bust in such fashion that it gives the effect of folds of the material taken from the fronts under the arms to between the shoulders where there is a fancy gold buckle from which falls the long folds of velvet to the hem of the skirt. The sleeves are quite small, shirred puffs, with embroidered cuffs to match the yoke. colored chiffon velvet gowns are also very fashionable for wear at the theater and restaurant dinner and a number are to be seen every evening and the most fashionable model seems to be the empire and princess styles.

More and more are the yellow and russet shades coming to the fore, and while it does seem out of place in a whole dress, especially those shades of the more brilliant tints, yet as a trimming nothing gives such a wholesome bit of color. Two costumes noted during the past week serve to illustrate the possibilities of

CAUGHT BY THE GRIP-- RELEASED BY PE-RU-NA

La Grippe Is Epidemic Catarrh.

THE disease now known as 'grip' used to be called 'influenza.' It very closely resembles a cold, but is more tenacious in its hold upon the system and produces more profound disturbances.

Grip is in reality epidemic catarrh. When it once begins it spreads over the country very rapidly.

People do not catch the grip from each other, but each one catches it from the atmosphere.

"Most Effective Medicine Ever Tried for La Grippe."

Robt. L. Madison, A. M., Principal of Cullowhee High School, Painter, N. C., is chairman of the Jackson County Board of Education.

He is a writer of occasional verse and has contributed to a number of leading papers and magazines,—religious, educational and secular.

In speaking of Peruna, Mr. Madison says:

"I am hardly ever without Peruna in my home. It is the most effective medicine that I have ever tried for la grippe.

"It also cured my wife of nasal catarrh. Her condition at one time was such that she could not at night breathe through her nostrils.

"In consequence, an inflamed condition of the throat was brought about, getting worse and worse and yielding to no remedy until Peruna was tried."

Healthy Mucous Membranes.

Those who are fortunate enough to have perfectly healthy mucous membranes ordinarily do not catch the grip. The mucous membranes lining the nose, throat and lungs, when in a normal state, are an effectual barrier against the invasion of grip.

But, if there happens to be the slightest catarrhal derangement of the mucous membranes, then the victim becomes an easier prey to the grip.

This in part explains why some people get the grip, while others do not.

The rational thing to do is to keep the system free from catarrh. In attempting to do this most people have found Peruna to be invaluable.

Systemic Catarrh, the Result of La Grippe. Pe-ru-na Receives Credit for Present Good Health.

Mrs. Jennie W. Gilmore, Box 44, White Oak, Ind. Ter., formerly Housekeeper for Indiana Reform School for Boys, writes:

"Six years ago I had la grippe, which was followed by systemic catarrh.

"The only thing I used was Peruna and Manalin, and I have been in better health the last three years than for years before.

"I give Pe-ru-na all the credit for my good health."

The Medical Profession Recognizes The Grip as Epidemic Catarrh.

During an epidemic of grip Peruna should be used. The doses recommended on the bottle are sufficient.

After the grip has once been acquired, Dr. Hartman recommends the use of Peruna in teaspoonful doses every hour during the acute stage, after which the directions on the bottle should be followed.

Experience has shown that the people who use Peruna as a remedy for grip generally recover sooner and are less liable to the distressing and long-continued after-effects of the grip.

When Peruna has not been used during the course of the grip and the patient finds himself suffering from the after-effects of this disease, a course of Peruna should be resorted to.

Suffered Twelve Years From After-Effects of La Grippe.

Mr. Victor Patneau, 328 Madison St., Topeka, Kan., member of Knights and Ladies of Security, writes:

"Twelve years ago I had a severe attack of la grippe and I never really recovered my health and strength—but grew weaker every year, until I was unable to work.

"Two years ago I began using Peruna and it built up my strength so that in a couple of months I was able to go to work again.

"This winter I had another attack of la grippe, but Peruna soon drove it off of my system. My wife and I used Peruna a household remedy."

Pneumonia Followed La Grippe.

Mr. T. Barnecott, West Ayres, Ontario, Can., writes:

"Last winter I was ill with pneumonia after having la grippe. I used Peruna for two months, when I became quite well, and I can say that any one can be cured by it in a reasonable time at little expense."

Pe-ru-na—A Tonic After La Grippe.

Mrs. Chas. E. Wells, Sr., Duane, Ohio, writes: "After a severe attack of la grippe, I took Peruna and found it very good tonic."

Mrs. Jane Gift, Athens, Ohio, writes:

"Six years ago I had la grippe and I read a testimonial of a woman who had been cured of grip by Peruna. My husband bought me a bottle of Peruna and I was soon able to do my work. I continued using it until I was cured."

this new note in color combination and its demonstration of how yellow may be used with rare effect. Both costumes were made with the new empire skirts, the later modifications of which are so graceful and becoming, and are in round length. The first gown was in a lustrous material of the shade known as banana, and is made with two plaits at the side of the front and with embroidery on the panel so formed, but otherwise is plain. There is a skeleton or over-waist with big armholes, that are characteristic of the season, and which is cut to form a very deep yoke at back and front, all the edges of which are edged with embroidery, in which heavy goldbeads are used held in place at their lower edge with bands of embroidery, and there is a girde of the draped soft velvet.

The second costume is of cloth, combined with chiffon and is trimmed after an altogether novel manner with lace that is crocheted from heavy silk thread in the exact color of the cloth, the shade being one that is almost an orange. The skirt is made with a narrow front panel onto which the circular sides are overlapped and these over-lappings are held by crocheted buttons that are set rather close together from the belt for a distance of about 10 to 12 inches. There are also double inverted plaits at the back and these, too, are held by buttons. The blouse is an entirely novel one with one of the double chemisettes that are liked so well and so often to be noted and which combines orange colored chiffon with tucked white net. The little waist itself is cut out very low and is made with tiny, fancy loose sleeves and is finished with the crocheted edging while there are fascinating little pockets that have laps of the chocheting. The yoke is made of tucked white net and the lower portion of the guimpe of tucked chiffon that is loose at its lower edge, while there are full sleeves of the tucked chiffon with tiny little under ones of the white net, the whole effect being one of great beauty. The deep rich yellow is really most exquisite in the finest cloth while the chiffon softens it most becomingly about the face and the touch of white just relieves the monotony. After all it is in combination with the other goods that yellow has its best effect, for instance, when it is used for walking and traveling dresses this summer. In millinery its use is assured and beautiful birds, plumes, wings quills and aigrettes will be seen often with all the other shades except red and of the latter tint there is only the red known as Japanese red that seem to have any affinity to these brilliant sunlight tones.

A very charming gown of grey was made up in combination with a yellow that might better be called a russet color. The grey was in a volle made up over a flowered silk showing the yellow through slashes made in the yoke which was really three Vs, one very deep in front and two shorter ones on each side, while a deep slash ornamented each sleeve. Big buttons enamelled in the same color and white form an effective bit of decoration where the slashed parts end. The sleeves are cut short, finished with bands of embroidery repeating the colors of the gown. The skirt is cut after the gored circular model, which always fits well and in this case hangs well.

Another costume intended for the street was developed from checked goods that followed the cut of the Norfolk mode very closely, and the bands over the shoulders, the belt, were piped with yellow chiffon velvet, while the black and white hat was ornamented with a long and heavy yellow aigrette.

Speaking of skirts, to make it hang well it is cut extremely wide and full, but the fullness is put in well below the hips. As may be readily understood, this is not an easy problem to solve, but then the dress-maker's art is today so well developed that any modiste worthy of the name can make an effective sign becoming alike to the figure and the slender, to the petite. White chiffon is soft to be easily embroidered, nets that are so fashionable this year are many of them worked in their elaborate hand embroidery.

All sorts of innovations in patterns are developing daily in the new fashions that are arriving. The among the new comers has a border. The ground is a white spotted with quarter-inch spots of green, navy blue or black and borders is spattered with half-discs of the same tone. The width is 53 inches wide, $3.50 a yard. Orders are also to be found in gauzes. A particularly striking ample is the chiffon cloth with black and white, which border made up of horizontal bands of black and white over which is thrown a poppy design.
