RUEF NOT IN COURT

Regards His Arrest and Trial As a Huge Joke

San Francisco, March 9.—Arrested at his summer home, and brought to the city last night, there was expectation that Ruef would be brought into court this morning...

A special session of the grand jury was hurriedly called this morning. It is believed the actions of the sheriff and coroner in their fruitless search for Ruef is being investigated.

Ruef is Not Uneasy. Later in the day the restraint was lifted and members of the city administration and personal friends were permitted to visit Ruef.

Jerome Preparing Some Great Surprises for Monday

New York, March 9.—It is believed Jerome will seek to prove that White was not near the studio the day Evelyn accuses him of ruining her. The date can be fixed, it is said, by the photographer who took the pictures...

When Jerome reached his chambers this morning he ordered all attachments to remain all day, and he prepared to work all night if necessary. County detectives were sent forth on some mission.

wholesale slaughter. Appropriating $2500 for maintaining provisional park at Champoug. Amending the peddlers' license law.

Extending the time for the protection of elk. Senator Beach's voting machine bill.

Jackson's bill regulating fishing in the Umpqua. Senator Johnson's bill requiring the inspection of concentrated stock foods and the issuance of licenses for the sale of the same.

Kay's bill permitting garnishment of public employes. Beal's bill for the appointment of dairy, cheese and creamery inspector at $2500 per annum.

Hodson's bill authorizing reclamation companies operating under the Carey act to sell surplus water. Chapin's bill requiring partnerships operating under an assumed name to reveal true parties interested by filing with the county clerk a certificate as to names of partners.

Smith's bill for board of normal school regents and reducing the number of state normal schools to three.

Proposal for Columbia University on flat salary. The bill is numbered as 245-251 of the code.

Disapproves of Horseracing. All bills, four in number, creating new district agricultural societies or enlarging the appropriation of those already existing, also received the veto stamp.

In disapproving these measures, Governor Chamberlain assigned as a reason that the tendency in conducting these enterprises is to give more attention to horseracing than is devoted to a display of the products of the field, orchard and garden, the primary object of such organizations.

There were four such bills, the authors being Senators Smith (Unattached), Johnson and McDonald and Representative Belknap.

GOVERNOR BROKE RECORD

With Possibly Two Exceptions Vetoes are Upheld

A Salem special says: During his first term Governor Chamberlain vetoed 29 bills. The total number of measures returned with his disapproval at the last session was 27. Neither Governor Moody nor Governor Lord vetoed any bills, while Governor Pennoyer, during his eight years' term, returned a total of 20 measures with his veto.

Principal among the bills returned with the disapproval of Governor Chamberlain was that making appropriation for the Monmouth and Drain normal schools jointly. A question had been raised as to the constitutionality of this measure at the time of its passage. This fact, coupled with the generally known attitude of the governor respecting appropriations for normal schools, made it reasonably certain that the amended bill of Senator Laughary would come under the veto ax.

Another important bill that was vetoed by the governor was that of Senator Johnson proposing state aid for the construction of roads throughout the state, an annual appropriation being made available therefor by direct tax on the assessable property of the state and amounting to about $200,000.

Solons Disregard Veto. Five of the 27 vetoes were returned to the legislature in time for the two houses to consider the measures before adjournment. These bills were: Appropriating $250,000 for the State University, increasing the salary of the Multnomah county auditor from $2000 to $2400 per annum, Freeman's compulsory pass law, Beach's juvenile court bill for Multnomah county, and Blusher's bill restoring the sheriff of Morrow county to the fee system.

With the exception of the last named measure, these bills were passed notwithstanding the governor's unfavorable action.

Other bills, vetoed by the governor, will come up for consideration of the next legislature, are as follows: By Beveridge, amending the state registration law so as to enable county clerks to register electors at other than their offices.

Perkins' bill removing protection from song birds and permitting their wholesale slaughter.

Proposals for Columbia University on flat salary. The bill is numbered as 245-251 of the code.

Women Continue Agitation. London, March 9.—The bill to extend the right of suffrage to women was defeated in the house of commons, where it was talked to death without coming to a vote, as the speaker declined to accept a motion of closure, and the sitting of the house was closed automatically at 5 o'clock.

The result was not surprising, even to the suffragists, as some of the strongest sympathizers of the women's cause realized that the question was not ripe for legislation, and that parliament will not be in a position to act until the question becomes an issue at a general election.

Women outline Agitation. The suffragists, however, are not daunted, and tonight held an enthusiastic meeting at Exeter hall. Resolutions condemning the attitude of the government and of parliament and expressing the determination to carry on the agitation were adopted. The speakers included James Keir Hardie, Socialist member of the house of commons; Phillip Snowden, a recruit to the woman's cause; Rev. Charles F. Aked, of Liverpool, who has accepted a call to the Fifth avenue Baptist church, New York, and many other prominent suffragists.

Mr. Aked had attended the house of commons during the afternoon in behalf of the suffragists, in order that he might be able to communicate an account of the debate.

WALLACE J. TRILL BARRED

Omitted Quotation Marks in Oration

Wallace G. Trill, who was the Willamette representative at the intercollegiate debating contest, was barred by the committee for having failed to give proper credit in certain portions of his oration.

Three Cases Similar. The case of Wallace Trill is the third instance of plagiarism that has occurred in the Intercollegiate Oratorical Association of Oregon. The first charge of plagiarism was made in 1902 against Edwin Minchin, of Pacific College, who won the state contest at Corvallis on an oration dealing with Wendell Phillips.

The following year Professor Kelsey, of Pacific College, filed a charge of plagiarism against Erastus Smith, of McMinnville, who won at Eugene with an oration upon "The Homeless Nation." Smith was severely censured by the executive committee, and McMinnville was debarred from competing the following year.

At that time more strict regulations were passed dealing with the submission of orations, which probably resulted in the detection of the literary theft before the contest in the present instance.

The faculty of Willamette University held a special meeting last night and adopted the following resolutions: "Whereas, it appears that Wallace G. Trill, Willamette's representative in the intercollegiate oratorical contest, is guilty of plagiarism, and so far is unable to vindicate himself, and whereas, the fact deeply affects every department of said University, and involves its honor, therefore be it

Resolved, That we, representatives of the faculty of Willamette University, do most emphatically condemn any such practices, and earnestly regret that any of its students should resort to a reprehensible method in an effort to secure honors; and be it further

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be given out for publication. (Signed) J. H. COLEMAN, Pres. J. T. MATTHEWS, Sec.

Minister Merry Angry. Washington, March 9.—United States Minister Merry has complained to the state department that he has been accorded discourteous treatment by President Zelaya, of Nicaragua, during his efforts to adjust an American claim. He announces that as the result of a quarrel with Zelaya he left the Nicaraguan capital with relations severely strained.

Among other things he charges that official telegrams sent him were delayed and made incoherent by the Nicaraguan authorities. The claim in controversy is the one of Sam Well of New Orleans, in connection with a concession for handling the liquor traffic, under which he had a right to collect revenues. Merry claims Well's goods were seized by the government and damage is claimed in the sum of $30,000. Merry was endeavoring to unravel the complications that led to the trouble.

NO BAGGING TRUST. A Jute Mill for Pendleton in a Year.

(Pendleton Tribune March 7.) "A jute mill will be making bags in the city of Pendleton, within a year," declared H. C. Willis yesterday.

When asked regarding the existence of a jute trust, he replied that all such talk was "tommy rot," that all jute was being bought and sold in the open market, and that one man or one firm could buy the raw product just as cheap as any other man or any other firm.

HUNDRED THOUSAND LOOTED

City and County Officials Indicted for Extortion and Frauds

Peoria, Ill., March 9.—Indictments were returned this morning against the following: Robert Jones, city clerk on 13 counts for embezzlement; Daniel Potter, former sheriff, embezzlement; William Peteres, former deputy sheriff, confidence game and falsifying public records; E. M. Conkey, former deputy, embezzlement; Sherman Hunt, former deputy, extortion; Dan Raum, attorney, forgery.

A total of 30 indictments were returned, specifying that over $100,000 was taken from the city and county in the office of city clerk and former sheriff.

The grand jury scathingly denounced the carelessness of all county and city officials.
