HARRIMAN LETTER PRINTED

did not care in the least, because those people were crooks, and he could buy them; that whenever he wanted legislation from state legislatures that he could buy it. That he could buy congress, and that, if necessary, he could buy the judiciary."

Alton Parker Rejoices.

Albany, N. Y., April 2.—The publishing of the Harriman-Webster letter this morning is greatly pleasing Alton B. Parker and his friends, who declare the truth is now known, and it refutes Roosevelt's statements, made at the time, that corporations were not approached by him for funds.

Comments on Harriman.

The President's letter continues its roast: "This was doubtless said in boastful cynicism, and partly in a mere burst of bad temper, because of his objection to the interstate commerce law, and to my actions as President, but it shows a cynicism and deep-seated corruption which makes a man uttering such sentiments and boasts, no matter how falsely, of his power to perform such crimes, at least as undesirable a citizen as a Debs, or a Moyer or a Haywood. It is because we have capitalists capable of uttering such sentiments and capable of acting upon them that there is strength behind sinister agitators of the Hearst type. Gets Hotter and Hotter.

"Wealth corrupts and wealth demagogues, who excites in the press or on the stump, in office or out of office, class against class, and appeals to basest passions of the human soul are fundamentally alike and equally enemies of republic. I was horrified as was Root when you told us today what Harriman had said to you. As I say, if you meet him, you are entirely welcome to show him this letter, although, of course, it must not be made public, unless required by some reason of public policy, and then only after my consent has been first obtained." This was written Oct. 8, 1906, and signed by Theodore Roosevelt. On October 12th the President wrote to Sherman saying that both Cortelyou and Bliss had hastened to protest against Hyde as ambassador, as soon as they heard he was mentioned.

Harriman Campaign Letter.

New York, April 2.—The publication of the Harriman campaign letter in which he is said to have declared that Roosevelt appealed to him in 1907 to secure campaign funds, reveals a peculiar situation. Harriman says the letter was furnished by a former employe named Hill. He insists it is about as perfect as a poor stenographer could get from old notes. He warned the New York World that the letter must not be printed, but when he found he could not stop it, he telephoned the American paper's use. Harriman admitted writing the letter, but said: "I went further," according to the World's reporter, "than the copy printed. It is going to react on the persons who print it. It is short of the mark aimed at." The letter created a stir on Wall street yesterday.

Cabinet Considers Harriman.

Washington, April 2.—Rear Admiral attended the semi-weekly cabinet meeting. It is assumed that Harriman is not the least important subject. Cortelyou refuses to discuss the matter of the Harriman campaign letter.

Indications are that the President will have something to say soon of the Harriman letter. All correspondents at Washington are waiting for the White House for his utterance. The President is not moved. If the letter worried him he showed no signs. He smiled as he spoke cheerfully and waived his hand at the "press gang."

General Strike Possible.

Chicago, April 2.—At the moment when the railway situation seemed past the crucial point the radical elements in the union committee became active, and at noon there was much uncertainty. Garretson, after the conference this morning, said: "We are just at the starting point. Nothing has been gained and nothing lost. The labor side has not succeeded an inch from its original position. The men's patience will be exhausted pretty soon, if the road don't show a spirit of concession. Knapp and Neill are apparently discouraged. Under the surface railroad managers hope for a strike, as with other troubles, they feel that sentiment would go against the labor unions.

Greatest Bomb Yet Fired.

Harriman was almost frantic with rage. He refused to defend himself except to admit the authorship of the letter. This is the greatest sensation Roosevelt has sprung, and the most spectacular of this administration, and the end is not yet in sight. This morning it seemed as if the President was hit hard. At that moment the world staggered at the force of the blow he hit in return. Wall street is speechless, the politician is dumbfounded, and Parkers whose friends this morning cried "told you so," this afternoon hasten to say the matter is too important for him to be quoted hastily. He won't talk.

The James Funeral.

The funeral of Roscoe James will be held at Portland Wednesday at 9:30 a. m., from the Finley undertaking parlors. Revs. T. B. Ford and F. L. Young will conduct the services over the remains.
