One-Half the World

Wear glasses, but not half of that half wear the right glasses. The wrong glasses are often worse than none; they are a constant strain and a permanent injury to the eyes. Only scientific examination can determine what glasses your eyes require, you can't tell by trying on glasses.

Be on the safe side; let our optician give your eyes careful examination.

It doesn't cost anything—he can tell you just what you need—delays are dangerous. Our prices are reasonable, and we guarantee satisfaction.

CHARLES DEMOTTS TILLSON

Young Business Man of This City Passes Away After Long Illness

Charles DeMotte Tillson, of the firm of Tillson & Co., of this city, died at his home on Center street early last evening, after an illness of several months. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Tillson, of this city, and has for the past five years been associated with his father in the grain and fruit business.

He was born April 12, 1870, at Marseilles, Ill., but spent most of his life at Kearney, Nebraska.

While in that city he was chosen to a responsible position in the Kearney National Bank, of which his father was president. About 12 years ago he removed with his parents to this city, where he has made an enviable record and a large circle of friends. He was a young man of sterling qualities, generous and upright in his business dealings, and a professed and earnest Christian.

He was a member of St. Paul's Episcopal church in this city. Besides his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Tillson, he leaves a wife, three sisters and two brothers, one sister, Miss May Tillson, having died about two weeks ago, thus causing the family double grief at this time. His surviving sisters are Mrs. Charles Freeland and Mrs. Clyde E. Spooner, of Portland, and Miss Susie Tillson, of this city, and his brothers, Lewis Tillson, of Salem, and Edward W. Tillson, of Oakland, Cal.

The funeral services will be conducted from the Episcopal church by Rev. Barr G. Lee tomorrow at 2:30 p. m. The burial will be in City View cemetery.

BIG SCOW LAUNCHED.

Largest Barge on the Upper River Slid into the Water Today.

The large scow built by the Spaulding Logging Company will be launched this afternoon about 3:20 o'clock. A large crowd has gathered at the foot of State street to see the launching.

This is the largest scow that has ever been used on the upper Willamette, and, if it proves successful, the logging company will begin the construction of another soon. The barge is 125 feet long, 32 feet beam and 6-foot hold. It will be used principally to haul wood suitable for pulp to the mills at Oregon City. Carpenter J. M. Jones has had charge of the construction work, and has used a force of 10 to 12 men for the past two months. The workmanship is the best, and doubtless the barge will prove to be a great advantage to the logging company.

Evangelist Thos. G. Rogers

And, wife of California, are holding meetings in the Gospel Chapel, Fifteenth and Mill streets. They will speak on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday evenings, and on next Sunday morning and evening. The public are most cordially invited to attend.

Honor Dr. Shaw.

The senior class in the Willamette University medical department recently presented Dr. J. D. Shaw with a fine gold fountain pen, to show their appreciation of clinical favors which he has given them. Dr. Shaw, while not connected with the University, is well liked by the student body, and is always ready and willing to aid the college with any service which he can render. Dr. William Pollard, of the senior class, presented the gift of the students to the doctor.

Bond Approved.

The bond of Lydia Bowerman, as administrator of the estate of D. Bowerman, deceased, has been approved. The bond is in the sum of $6000 and C. O. Portwood and John Reischer, of Gilliam county, appear as sureties.

Why

GREATER ELECTRIC PLANT

Besides Elegant Offices Power Plant to be Enlarged

Besides putting in handsome offices on one of the best business corners in the city, the General Electric Company is advertising for bids to put in a larger power plant at Salem.

The Portland General Electric Company has its plans and specifications prepared for constructing a concrete, brick and steel building adjoining its present steam plant on Mill street. The building will be a one-story structure about 50 feet square, and is designed to receive the high tension current coming from Portland very soon at 60,000 volts, and also the current coming from Silverton at 20,000 volts. A rotary converter of 1000 kilowatts capacity is now being made in the East for installation in this building, which will supply electric current to the street cars, both in Salem, and if necessary, to the Oregon Electric Company, building between Salem and Portland, as well as to commercial motors in Salem.

Space and foundations are being provided and the drawings contemplate the installation of a second unit of whatever capacity is found to be necessary a year hence. This will probably be a 2000 kilowatt machine, and will furnish lighting power as well as power for motors. This building is designed on very plain but substantial lines. It will be an ornament and a credit to Salem in its simple solidity and fire proof character. Its construction, from an electrical standpoint, is the best that money and skilled modern electrical engineering can devise. Each transformer will have its own separate concrete compartment and all the switches and sub-station and sub-station wiring will be in separate compartments. One of the features of the building will be its thorough and carefully designed system of conduit wiring, bedded into the solid masonry.

When this sub-station is finished and connected to the transmission line which is about to be built from Portland, as noted in these columns recently, the steam plant of the company will be held in reserve, and, with the increased capacity which is now being added, to the extent of 500 horse power electrical capacity, the company will have a very modern and up-to-date plant, with every facility for making its service absolutely reliable and satisfactory, so far as its generating end is concerned.

The estimated cost of this building alone, without any machinery or apparatus will be in the neighborhood of $10,000. The machinery which is proposed to be installed presently will cost in the neighborhood of $25,000. This does not include machinery which will be installed in the future.
