Oil Prospects in Wasco County.

Prices of property in the vicinity of Fifteen-Mile creek, five miles from Dufur, Or., are soaring as the result of the petroleum excitement there. A company has been organized to sink wells, a large proportion of the capital stock being owned by residents of that section.

"There is every indication that oil will be struck," said J. B. Laber, secretary of the Portland board of trade yesterday. "In the matter of prices it is now a matter of minutes and dollars. On a quarter section which changed hands a few days ago the price advanced $1000 in an hour and a half after the first offer was made. Oil is to be found floating on many of the creeks flowing eastward from the Mount Hood watershed and has been declared genuine mineral oil. It is expected that a good marketable oil will be struck in this section."
