THE MAIL BAG

Following citizens of Ashland, Oregon, subscribe to The Capital Journal's direct legislation campaign to apply the referendum to about half a million to a million of the appropriations of the last legislature: Geo. H. Westervelt, Isaac Moore, J. W. Gash, C. J. Lane, Rufus King, A. L. Cross, J. E. Crowson, Geo. W. Lowe, Frank King, John Biggle, Frank Crowson, Wm. McIntyre, J. Cavanagh. It seems that there are some people, even in the normal school towns who do not approve of the machine combination getting in and helping themselves "without specifications." The Oregon taxpayers are a patient, reasonable and fair minded lot of people who want what is right, and are willing to be taxed for the support of higher education. But they demand that there be a show made of at least what the money is wanted for.

C. P. Jones, Jr., who is the live secretary of the Cottage Grove Commercial Club, writes that the annual meeting of the Willamette Valley Development League will be held at that city at some time between June 19 and 29.

State Grand Lodge.
The state grand lodge of Odd Fellows will meet in La Grande, Tuesday, June 21. There are 193 Odd Fellows lodges in the state of Oregon, and each lodge will send at least one delegate; many lodges will send a half dozen or more representatives. There will be 200 delegates to the encampment and Rebekah lodges which are separate from the regular state grand lodge. It is reasonably expected that there will be nearly as many visitors as there are official representatives, inasmuch as there is a railroad rate of one fare for the round trip granted, and these rates are in effect from all parts of the state. The expectation is that there will be upwards of 1000 visitors in La Grande during the session of the grand lodge. Arrangements must be made whereby the visitors and attendants may be properly cared for.

WILL ENLARGE BAND TO THIRTY MEN

An Excellent Opportunity Is Offered Young Men Who Wish to Study Various Instruments

Music is not merely a superfluous accomplishment, it is a necessity to any progressive community. Music not only gives the performer an incentive for higher ideas and an understanding of the beauties of nature and sentiment, but all those who come in contact with the higher harmonies must of necessity be benefited in sympathy and knowledge.

U.S. SENATOR W.E. BORAH, ASSOCIATE COUNSEL for the STATE.

Some one has said that a band of music is of more potential for good in a community than a brigade of policemen. Music, by its refining influence tends to encourage order and refinement, and thus promotes the development of the higher sentiments to the exclusion of lawlessness and crime, while the martial idea merely preserves order by fear. Among the highest types of music are the harmonies of the band and orchestra.

Salem has one of the best bands in the state, of which the community is justly proud, and the management of the band has now proposed to enlarge the organization to 30 or 35 members. If the proper material can be obtained. To accomplish this and create an interest among the young men of the city, who are musically inclined, several of the best musicians of Salem have offered to teach, without charge, those who are qualified to become members of the band on the various instruments needed. The band at present is composed of young men who are among Salem's best citizens, socially and progressively, and the two first qualifications for a member to the organization is sobriety and a good moral character. Each must provide himself with a good instrument, and agree to attend the regular rehearsals of the band. Young men who are performers on other instruments are desired, but those who show merely natural musical ability will be accepted. Young men who wish to take up the study of the flute, bass clarinet, oboe, saxophone and many other of the wind instruments will have an excellent opportunity to develop their talents. The wind instruments are not only beneficial to health, if rightly used, but also profitable if one wishes to make music a profession. Any who are interested in music and have a little time which they can devote to practice will do well to see H. N. Stoudenmeyer, director of the Salem Military Band.

BIG BOYS' CONFERENCE.

To Be Held at Salem During the Week Ending May 25th.

Arrangements for the Y. M. C. A. boys' conference are progressing rapidly, and everything points to a large number of visitors. While the number at the present time is not known definitely, it seems assured that there will be fully 100 boys and their leaders from other places in Salem on May 25 and 26 to attend this conference.

The local association is to provide entertainment for these delegates and is now canvassing its friends for this purpose. The people are responding generously and many homes are being thrown open to the visitors. Entertainment has now been assured for about half of the total number needed, and as the association wishes to have the list complete this week, all those who can entertain one or more boys are requested to notify G. A. Forbes, secretary of the local association, as soon as possible.

The program of the convention will be of especial interest and the meetings will be open to visitors. During Saturday, the morning session will be taken up with discussion of boys' clubs and their work. In the afternoon an excursion to Chemawa is planned, returning from which the "High School Club" and "Summer Camps" will be the subjects of discussion. In the evening Rev. H. A. Foulkes, of the First Presbyterian church in Portland will deliver an address on "The Future Citizen."

On Sunday a short session of the conference will be held at 9 a. m. At 3 o'clock the delegates will meet in the woods near the city for a Bible conference, and in the evening a public meeting will be held in one of the churches.

The boys attending this conference as delegates will be picked boys from the different Sunday schools, Y. M. C. A.'s and boys' clubs, and those entertaining them may be sure that they will be entertaining young gentlemen in the best sense of that word. Delegates from the north will arrive Friday night and those from the south on Saturday morning.

MRS. SARAH E. SMITH IS DEAD

One of the Few Remaining Oregon Pioneer Women Passes to the Great Beyond

The reaper death has seen fit to remove from our midst another of Oregon's beloved pioneer women. Mrs. Sarah E. Smith is no more. Death came last night at 12 o'clock after a lingering illness of a few weeks. Some time ago Mrs. Smith had an attack of grip, from which she never fully rallied. For the past week she has been very feeble, but was not thought to be in a critical condition until yesterday, when she was taken with sinking spells and gradually lost consciousness and closed her eyes in death, as if she was in natural sleep.

Mrs. Sarah Smith was born in Virginia in 1829, and crossed the plains as Miss Sarah Craft in 1845. She is one of the few who remain who came by the Meeks cut-off. After enduring many hardships the party finally arrived in the Willamette valley, and Miss Craft settled with her relatives in East Salem, in what is now known as Watt addition. She was married in 1846 to Joseph Watt who for many years conducted a furniture factory in East Salem. To the union was born the following surviving children: James Watt, of Marshfield, Or.; Charles L. Watt and Elizabeth Watt, of this city, and George Watt, now of New York City.

Her husband, Joseph Watt, died, and she married Hon. Fabritis Smith and until his death in 1898 she resided on the Smith farm in South Salem. Since this date she has resided in the Watt addition near Fourteenth and Chemeketa streets, in this city.

She has been a devoted Christian all her life, and at the time of her death she was the oldest living member of the First M. E. church of this city. She was a sister of Mrs. Geo. P. Litchfield, of this city.

Hard Labor Conditions in Baden.
The factory inspectors of the Grand Duchy of Baden have published a comprehensive report on the home industries of their country, which has attracted much attention because of the picture it paints of the misery and destitution in which a large portion of the population lives. It is recognized besides that the picture is only that which might be drawn in any other German state.

In these home industries in Baden there are over 20,000 persons employed, of whom 64 per cent are females. Among the thousands of children employed many are under 6 years old. The report says they look pale, emaciated and serious. They are described also as timid and as generally complaining of their school work. Among numerous examples of precocity among these children it is related how boys of 14 direct the work of their younger brothers and sisters.

With regard to the number of hours worked by these people, the report says that days of thirteen and fourteen hours are by no means rare, and it not infrequently happens that sixteen and seventeen hours are worked. There is no regular time for meals. These are eaten anyhow, in odd intervals.

In the brush and china industries women work usually until 11 o'clock at night. Cases are recorded where work begins at 3 or 4 o'clock in the morning in summer and 5 in winter, and lasts until 9 or 10 at night—sometimes till after midnight. Women have come to the factory inspectors weeping to complain of their insufficient earnings. Even men in the watch industry of the Black Forest work for 14 pfennige (a fraction over 1 1/2d) an hour working 15 hours a day. This makes a daily wage of something over two marks (2s.)

In several other industries wages run from 3 pfennige (one-third of a penny) to 20 pfennige (2 1/2d) an hour, and in the concertina, orchestration and similar industries wages of even skilled workers range between 10 and 11 marks (to 11s) weekly. It is worth mentioning that in the report the inspectors complain that which most of this home work is carried on. The work is done in the homes, on tables which are set with refuge, scraps of food and dirty dishes, and the wares made and transported back and forth in baby carts in which sick children are carried. This is even the case when the home workers are employed in preparing stuff for large just preserve factories.—London Chronicle.
