

Not a drop of Alcohol

Doctors prescribe very little, if any, alcohol these days. They prefer strong tonics and alteratives. This is all in keeping with modern medical science. It explains why Ayer's Sarsaparilla is now made entirely free from alcohol. Ask your doctor. We have no secret! We publish J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

NEW YORK FASHION LETTER

NEW GOWNS FOR GIRL GRADUATES

Gowns, Ribbons, Flounces and All the Pretty Things Described

(Fashion Letter.)
New York, May 25.—Next to the wedding dress, perhaps there is no time when a girl likes to have a more generous hand in the buying and making of a dress more than the one in which she is to graduate in course, now one graduates from many departments but the one is the one when she goes out from the school room for good, bids farewell to school days and regular study work, and begins her life at woman's work. It is not to be wondered at that the girl feels that this one dress should be something out of the ordinary, it marks a period of her life ended and the beginning of that which is new. She is on her feet so to speak.

The graduation gowns shown this summer are undeniably beautiful enough for the most important event in the young girl's life. Of course the most suitable of materials lies among the simple ones, such as mull, silk mull, organza, dotted swiss, French lawn, while if something more elaborate is desired point d'esprit or mousseline de sole suggest themselves, yet these last are more adapted to the girl who is over the teens. Very light-weight woolen goods are as suitable as the peculiarly soft felt of a woolen material has a charm not to be found in cottons. The sheerest lace and embroideries are used for these frocks. Some narrow width, others in broad bands, of finest batiste embroidery, of Valenciennes or Chantilly lace. Narrow laces and insets of embroidery match the broad bands. Lace, indeed, forms an important part in these confirmation dresses on both skirt and bodice. Horizontal tucks trim the bottom of the skirts, sometimes alternating with the insertion. Tucks are liked for trimming the waists.

For the wool dress albatross was used with yoke of lace insertion. The sleeve bands, fancy bolero and trimming band of the skirt are of white silk decorated with hand embroidery. Narrow frills of lace finish the wrist band and neck. A sash of white silk finished the costume. This is a costume that the girl will find both pretty for a graduation dress and very serviceable for evening wear hereafter. If a lighter material is desired muslin or organdy could be used or a silk used, but the wool dress will be found to serve many purposes.

A second dress was made from white lady's cloth, the sleeves and upper edges of the waist front being embroidered and trimmed with silk frilling. The gumples is of white figured Brussels net and the girdle is of liberty silk. A white cashmere frock combined with white dotted net would be pretty for a rather young girl, and would be further enhanced by hand embroidery. In each of these cases the yokes for gumples should be removable so as when the warmer weather comes they could be replaced by those of very thin goods or in the evening not at all.

A gown suitable for a young woman from eighteen to twenty-one years of age could be developed from white or cream India silk with shoulder pieces and yoke sections, also sleeve bands of point de Venise lace. Narrow frills of white chiffon edge the collar and sleeves. A crush girdle of silk encircles the waist and is fringed with a rosette in the back. Elbow sleeves are used as most appropriate where gloves should be used anyway in the public exercises. This is a gown that with very little change will make an excellent evening gown later on.

A charmingly effective costume of white silk mull shirred at the waist line to form a deep girdle in princess style. The yoke is of all over lace and the lower sleeves are of the same material. Cream white rajah could be used for this model of the young woman is older or it might be organdy over a lining of printed cotton organdy with a sash of white or some prominent color in the printed lining. White canvass cloth makes a most attractive gown trimmed with narrow frilling of white silk. The upper part of the dress decorated with hand embroidery is white silk. And the yoke and collar of fancy white tucked silk.

One mother who had always maintained that a school girl should be dressed in the plainest and simplest kind of clothes, upon her daughter's graduation gave her as a gift a complete outfit, which would do for the many functions that were in order during the exercises in which as a graduate and an honor student her daughter had to take part in, and so planned it that she was well fitted out to start as a wage earner herself.

First and foremost came the graduation dress which was in the future to do service as an evening dress. It was developed from China silk with a very full skirt of alternating rows of pleats and shirrings. The waist was of the supple orler with shirrings on the shoulders and had in addition to the V of lace and tucked silk several others to make a change with. Two or three different styles of sashes and belts and collars and cuffs make as it did for this dress quite a change.

For the class recitation there was a very pretty foulard brown dotted with white and trimmed with cream white lace, which harmonized so well with the fair hair and brown eyes of the girl who was to wear it. As it was made in princess style again in the upper blouse there were several changes—one of filet lace, one of cream silk, two of the daintiest of lingerie blouses. As the reception was held in the afternoon (before six o'clock), there was a soft plaque hat of fine braid bent and dented to suit the face of its owner. It was in a cream shade of straw and trimmed with brown velvet bows and green foliage through which peeped little pink rosebuds. Long cream gloves were worn at the reception, but there was also a pair of brown for other occasions; brown shoes and stockings were added, and great pains had been taken to match the shades of brown and cream used in the costume. This gown was intended for calling, and informal evening affairs or dinners. Another dress that was used for a morning affair given by the class was a blue linen trimmed with white bands of embroidery. It was fashioned after the bretelle mode, and the embroidery was used to outline the front panel formed by the box pleat in the front and on the bretelles. The blouse was of a dotted Swiss decorated with tucks only and very narrow Valenciennes at the collar and cuffs. The girdle was of blue linen with simulated buckles back and front of pieces of the embroidery. A pretty lingerie embroidered round hat was the accompaniment to this dress, with gloves, a white parasol embroidered round its edges and white canvass shoes and stockings. Then there was a traveling dress added to this outfit of blue serge ornamented with trims. A white sailor shape trimmings. A white sailor shape trimmings. A white sailor shape trimmings with blue ribbon and quills was worn with black gloves and black shoes and stockings. The suit was a "Prince Chap" model. This suit was a most welcome gift, for that girl at the end of the school years has a decent suit to appear at home in or has been economical enough to have the money to get it with.

To this outfit came also a house dress of taffeta made in jumper fashion in one of the new checks in gray and black, a linen suit in white, a new wrapper of flowered muslin, a kimona, a matinee jacket, a voile skirt for extra waists, an Eton jacket, in black silk, a raincoat, umbrella, with all the accessories and underwear needed in any girl's outfit. It was a wisdom on the part of the mother to thus save for the girl and send her out with those things the world demands of a woman. It was perhaps a little amusing to watch this girl who had never before worn a really long skirt and now putting up her hair for good, taking on the airs of a woman and at first she was a little self-conscious, but as the claims and expectation of the woman from others were forced upon her, she realized herself and gradually took on the manner of the woman, left the fair girl behind her and regained her poise. If the mother's lips quivered at the loss of the girl, her eyes were proud of the woman before her—and the girl was worth it.

One of the innovations of the season is the lingerie blouse sleeve well down to the hand, while the sleeve of the little jacket worn over it is a mere cape or drapery—anything but a sleeve.

Black is being used extensively in Paris on dressy occasions, but the all black gown is far from being the simple thing it once was.

Sleep And Rest

Every movement of the body consumes energy. So does mental effort. Energy is supplied by the nerves. It follows that physical or mental exhaustion simply means an over-draft on the nerves. Nature restores energy through rest and sleep. You cannot sleep with tired nerves. Dr. Miles' Nervine soothes the irritation and restores nervous energy.

"Although I have lived nearly 70 years, I have stood up against testimonials for publication but the unequalled excellence of Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine, as a medicine for inherent insomnia, intensified by long residence in a high altitude compelled me to recognize its superiority over every other medicine I have ever used for nervousness and sleeplessness. I feel sure that the Nervine is free from injurious opiates found in most medicines for insomnia, and can conscientiously recommend it to the aged and nervous." MRS. W. H. FURSMAN, Colorado Springs, Colo.

Dr. Miles' Nervine is sold by your druggist, who will guarantee that the first bottle will benefit. If it fails, he will refund your money.

Held Corner Stone Services.
The convicts, who were working at the fair grounds, yesterday laid the corner stone to one of the large pig pens with appropriate exercises. It is said that one of the men of the Curtis hotel sang a song and one who is known as "Chump" delivered a speech. Not being supplied with money the men deposited tobacco socks and other personal property in the cement corner.

Relief From Rheumatic Pains.
"I suffered with rheumatism for over two years," says Mr. Roland Curry, a patrolman, of Key West, Fla. "Sometimes it settled in my knees and lamed me so I could hardly walk, at other times it would be in my feet and hands so I was incapacitated for duty. One night when I was in severe pain and lame from it my wife went to the drug store here and came back with a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. I was rubbed with it and found the pain had nearly gone during the night. I kept on using it for a little more than two weeks and found it drove the rheumatism away. I have not had any trouble from that disease for over three months." For sale by Dr. Stone's drug store.

Stock for Seattle.
A Bakersfield stock dealer recently contracted to deliver 15,000 head of cattle in Seattle by the first of June, and during the past week many train loads of California stock have passed through this city en route for the north.

My Best Friend.
Alexander Bentor, who lives on rural route 1, Port Edward, N. Y., says: "Dr. King's New Discovery is my best earthly friend. It cured me of asthma six years ago. It has also performed a wonderful cure of lupicent consumption for my son's wife. The first bottle ended the terrible cough, and this accomplished, the other symptoms left one by one, until she was perfectly well. Dr. King's New Discovery's power over coughs and colds is simply marvelous." No other remedy has ever equaled it. Fully guaranteed by J. C. Perry, druggist; 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free.
