

SOME COURT DECISIONS

The cases cited below are from the West Coast Reporter, published at St. Paul, Minn. Full reports of any case in the volume can be procured by anyone for 25 cents, and some of them are right good reading, outside of the legal information.

Combination to Maintain Prices.

An association of druggists, formed for the purpose of maintaining a maximum schedule of prices, refused to sell to a retailer who had refused to join the combination, and also coerced and intimidated vendors of like commodities by means of threats to boycott and blacklist them if they sold to the retailer in question. Klingel's Pharmacy v. Sharpe &

FREDERICK A. BUSSE.

New Republican mayor of Chicago and former postmaster of the city, who started life as a coal dealer and contractor.

Dohme, 64 Atlantic Reporter, 1029, was a suit to recover damages because of such acts. Such a combination the Court of Appeals of Maryland holds to be a criminal conspiracy at law. The Court concedes that on the authority of the Bohn case 55 Northwestern Reporter, 1119, the defendants had the lawful right to refuse to sell to plaintiff, and it was wholly immaterial whether the refusal was the result of whim, caprice or malice; but the bare refusal to sell was not the principal offense in the present case. The desire was to drive the plaintiff into becoming a member of an organization which would control prices and thereby deprive him of the liberty to contract for the sale of his goods according to his own judgment. The motive with which an act is done governs as to whether the act is lawful or not, and by way of illustration the court says that receiving stolen goods is not in itself unlawful, but if they are received with a knowledge that they are stolen, the act becomes criminal. The case is interesting because it contains a definition of the word "boycott." A boycott means the confederation, generally secret, by many persons whose intention is to injure another by preventing all persons from doing business with him, through fear of incurring the displeasure, persecution and vengeance of the conspirators.

Injury From Electric Light Wire.

In Temple v. McComb City Electric Light & Power Co. (Miss.) 42 Southern Reporter, 874, an electric light company is held liable for injuries to a small boy received by coming in contact with an uninsulated wire while climbing a tree through which the wire passed. The tree in which the accident happened was a small oak tree, abounding in branches extending almost to the ground. As the light company had knowledge of the tree and what kind of a tree it was, the court held that it knew what any person of practical common sense would know—that it was just the kind of a tree children might climb into, to play in the branches. The court remarks that the immemorial habit of small boys to climb little oak trees filled with abundant branches is one of which corporations stretching wires over such trees must take notice, and the court is going to safeguard the right of small boys to climb such trees.

Definition of "Travelers."

The Supreme Court of Vermont in Howrigan v. Bakersfield, 64 Atlantic Reporter, 1130, is called upon to pass upon the novel question as to whether a horse traveling on a highway can be held to be a traveler within the statute making towns liable for injuries to travelers. The court says that if the horse escaped into the highway without the owner's fault or negligence, he cannot be considered as being at large in a legal sense, and that if he were following his natural instincts to return home he was a traveler on the highway.

There Are Few

People who know how to take care of themselves—the majority do not. The liver is a most important organ in the body. Herbine will keep it in condition. V. C. Simpkins, Alba, Texas, writes: "I have used Herbine for Shills and Fever and find it the best medicine I ever used. I would not be without it. It is as good for children as it is for grown-up people, and I recommend it. It is fine for La Grippe." Sold by D. J. Fry.

Bamboo Sap as a Medicine.

In reply to a California inquiry as to the use of the sap of the bamboo in India, Consul General William H. Michael of Calcutta supplies the following information:

The sap of the female bamboo is used for medicinal purposes in India, and it may be had in the Indian bazaars of Calcutta at from 41 cents to $1.35 per pound, the latter being the specially white and calcined tabashir. "Tabasheer," or "bansheeran," is sold in all Indian bazars, as it has been known from the earliest times as a medicinal agent, its use as such having, it is supposed, originated among the aboriginal tribes. It is also known in Borneo, and was an article of commerce with early Arab traders of the east. Its properties are said to be strengthening, tonic and cooling. A great deal has been written about tabasheer or tabashir in Hindoo medicinal works which have been received by modern writers. It has been analyzed and has been shown to consist almost entirely of silica, with traces of lime and potash. With our present knowledge of medicine, such an article is not calculated to be very efficacious, but from its remarkable occurrence in the hollows of bamboos the eastern mind has long associated it with miraculous powers.

Tetter Cured.

A lady customer of ours had suffered with tetter for two or three years. It got so bad on her hands that she could not attend to her household duties. One box of Chamberlain's Salve cured her. Chamberlain's medicines give splendid satisfaction in this community.—M. H. Rodney & Co., Almond, Ala. Chamberlain's medicines are for sale by Dr. Stone's drug store.

The Cause of It.

"Why did you leave your last place?" asked Mrs. Hiram Affen. "You see," replied the pretty servant maid, "the last couple I was with didn't agree." "The idea! Why should their disagreements interest you at all?" "It was about me. He liked me and she didn't." — Philadelphia Press.

Good Name for the Dog.

"But why do you call your dog Thirteen?" "Don't you see he's lame?" "Yes; but what has that to do with it?" "Why, he puts down three and carries one, doesn't he?"—Tit Bits.

WONDERFUL STRIKE AT GOLDFIELD

Lacking only the stamp of the Government to make it pass current, is about the only way that one can describe the ore that was run into by the "graveyard" shift at the workings of the Little Florence last Sunday morning. The ledge from which this picture ore is being extracted in almost carload lots was caught in the crosscut 275 feet east of the bottom of the 275-foot shaft of the Mohawk Florence lease but in the territory which is controlled by the Little Florence people.

The ledge was cut on the footwall side, and the ore as soon as it was rid of the talcy substances which hung to it showed ribbons of gold from the thickness of a thread to that of an ordinary pencil running clear through and around it. How much there is of this material and how expensive is the shoot are questions only time can tell, but up to the present writing there seems to be no diminution either in the size or value.

As far as prospected the ledge shows a width of nearly eighteen feet and no hanging wall in sight. Assays vary, but few have been returned which show values of less than $500 and from that up into the thousands. The very rich streak, that which is producing the "highgrade," is from four and a half to five feet thick and near the footwall of the ledge.

Thus far the ledge is producing from forty to fifty tons of ore per day and, with the exception of the very highest grade, is being stored in the ore house. The rich is placed in sacks immediately on reaching the surface and guards keep watch over it all the time. As yet no attempt has been made to run drifts along the ledge, but this will be done as soon as the station can be cut and a sufficient amount of room provided for comfortable working. —Goldfield Review.

GERMAN VIEW OF JAPANESE DIPLOMACY

At present the Japanese are the most expansive race on earth. Their natural increase of population is very large, and despite the economic progress made within the empire, the percentage of Japanese emigrants is comparatively high. These emigrants do not assimilate themselves to the nations among whom they find a new home, but preserve their Japanese nationality entirely. Thereby a certain amount of discontent is naturally caused by these emigrants among the rulers of those countries where they appear in large numbers, or if not direct discontentment, still a fit of inquietude is often engendered. These countries are the United States, with its overseas possessions of Hawaii and the Philippines; France, on account of her Indo-Chinese colonies, and the British Columbia and the Australasian continent. It is quite clear that this Japanese expansion is not of a political character; but the truth is, that even Japanese emigrants are liable, in consequence of sentiment, are affected by the Japanese economic expansion. By her agreement with England she has made sure that the policy of Great Britain will not allow Australian interests and views to predominate, and by her present understanding with France Japan need not fear any more that the French, out of anxiety for Tonquin, would join any anti-Japanese coalition or try to create such a combination of powers. The object of such agreements is to gain time, which in the sphere of politics is always of the greatest importance. For Japan that means sufficient time for gaining new strength and consolidation. Even if after some decades difficulties should arise among the contracting powers, Japan will have in the meantime improved her financial and political position with the help of moneys advanced by French and English capitalists, while these two countries will have been freed from the necessity to keep during this period their colonial possessions in eastern Asia in a permanent state of defensive readiness.

It is quite obvious with what consciousness of purpose and simple directness Japanese diplomacy shapes its course.—Continental correspondence.

CANADIAN MAPLE SUGAR ADULTERATED

In the following report from Consular Clerk A. E. Ingram of Montreal the manufacture of maple sugar and syrup is shown to be a very important industry in Canada:

According to the Canadian census, the average maple output of Canada approximates 17,804,825 pounds. The money value of that in one year recently was placed at $1,780,482. Canada supplies over three-sevenths of the world's output of maple sugar and syrup, and among the provinces Quebec is by far the largest producer, turning out 13,564,819 pounds, while Ontario furnished 3,912,640, New Brunswick 207,540, Nova Scotia 112,496, and other provinces 7420, making a total of 17,804,825 pounds.

Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Quebec and eastern Ontario mark the northern and western limits of the tree to cause a variety of unpleasant rums and frictions with which public opinion in those countries is much occupied. This coincident involves a certain danger for Japan itself, viz: the possibility of those countries that are affected by the Japanese immigration being affected by the complaints and susceptibilities of their colonies and possessions in the Pacific. This danger is all the more worthy to be considered by Japanese statesmen, because the country is bound to make economic progress before it can fulfill its political mission. For its economic progress, however, the introduction of foreign capital is an absolute necessity. Where else but in western Europe is Japan likely to obtain money? This consideration of having always access to the money markets of western Europe has probably not been lost sight of, when the first Anglo-Japanese alliance was concluded, and is obviously the salient point in this new Franco-Japanese understanding.

In a certain sense Japan may be said to reach two ends by one stroke. She makes sure of getting money in western Europe and prevents a coalition of the colonial countries that sugar maple, while it extends south into Vermont, New Hampshire, Pennsylvania, New York and Ohio. During recent years great improvements have been made in the manufacture of maple syrup and sugar, and by employing more scientific methods (chief of which is the "evaporator," which, with its large heating surface, hastens the "boiling-down" process), it is possible to produce a high-grade quality of goods of a delicate, clean, maple flavor, perfect in texture. There is an increasing demand for pure maple syrup and sugar and it is stated that there is every assurance that an enhanced price will be paid for the genuine article.

The detection of adulteration in maple syrup and sugar from the addition of cane or beet sugars, as well as glucose and artificial flavors and other ingredients, has been recently attracting the attention of the Canadian department of inland revenue. By virtue of the food adulteration act the minister of inland revenue collected samples of last season's crop and had them analyzed. Of the 111 samples, 85 of syrup and 26 of sugar, 65, or 58.5 per cent, were found to be adulterated.

The Voice Color of Speakers.

Thought being the dynamo, will power sets the other vibrating; so if you listen for the tones of a voice with attention, you should rarely be deceived with his or her purpose.

The purpose of Mr. Campbell of the City Temple is to lead his flock. He has the persuasive faculty, and being thoroughly sincere, one gets the ultra violet very marked. He has a happy knack of hitting off the red G, which is mellow and pleasant to the ear. He holds his congregation in this atmosphere, the sound coinciding in its rise and fall with the sacred call of the priest in an Indian temple who changes the cadence from red to violet, then to blue.

The voice here satisfies the ear, the eye, and touches the spirit. You get the same quality with a different use in Lewis Waller. He also rings the changes on the human heart, its passions and emotions, leaves the violet more alone, and touches the rosy red in a minor key. I have chosen these two voices as expressions of delivery and tone; a beautiful soul; at all events it denotes that the spiritual aspiration is not lacking.

Father Vaughan creates a flame of color; there is no mistake about his lurid A. But his denunciations grow softer when he runs into C—the yellow of mentality; a very shrewd color this and very definite while it lasts.

Father Ignatius, as a man, and Mrs. Annie Besant, as a woman, both have the power of a persistent eloquence, which forming as it does almost a bewildering chain of words, yet resolve itself into a dominant harmony of color producing a perfect chord, a major chord of violet, blue and red.

The rapt attention of their hearers is due to the fact that, objectively, they are spellbound, and, subjectively, they are almost hypnotized. In great contrast you have Bignell Young, the lecturer on Christian Science, who speaks entirely on the C note. A vast audience listen with great respect, for there is a steadfast purpose to convince which promotes a long and steady vibration, a flow of words like a running stream, very persistent and very yellow; no fiery red, no ultra violet now and then a soft blue. It is not the voice of a St. Francis of Assisi, who broken with emotion, followed his believers from the most agonizing struggles to unspeakable ecstasies. His voice must have been a violin.

There is a magic in the contralto note of the woman when she whispers "I love you." Bernhard found out the use of the voice to rise and fall like waters moving in a golden spray, although, as a matter of fact,

GOOS COUNTY IS

Coos county held a special election on local option Monday, and the result of the vote is now "wet," but nine small precincts voted for the vote stands, "wet" 1498, "dry" 929. Of the nine precincts not included from five were wet in the election of 1906. Coquille, which was "dry" in 1906, is now "wet" by 45 votes. There was a light vote cast in the precincts, and yet the most wonderful increase in population was by it. Coos will grow whether "gated" or not.

she vibrates between rose and high green. "To tamo" (How I love deep blue note, a minor chord, who can forget, who has ever heard Miss Lillah McCarty rising up like a violet scale in the last work of Marcus in "The Sign of the Cross"—Flora Hayter in London.
