GREW MISS CARROLL'S HAIR

AND WE CAN

PROVE IT

Beautiful Hair At Small Cost.

THIN the last decade great and rapid strides have been made in Materia Medica. Many diseases that were considered incurable years ago are now cured in a few days, and in many cases prevented. The scientists of late years have been delving for the cause, the foundation, the reason and the starting point of disease, fully realizing the actual and true cause must be ascertained before the remedy can be used. Hair troubles, like many other diseases, have been wrongly treated, and altogether misunderstood. The hair itself is not the thing treated, for the reason that it is simply a product of the scalp, and is dependent upon its action. The scalp is the very soil in which hair is produced, nurtured and grown, and it alone should receive the attention if results are to be expected. It would do no earthly good to the stem of a plant with a view of making it grow and become more fruitful—the soil in which the plant grows must be attended to. Therefore the scalp in which the hair grows must receive the attention if you expect it to grow and become more beautiful.

Loss of hair is caused by the scalp drying up, or losing its supply of moisture or nutriment, and when baldness or thinning of the scalp has simply lost all of its nourishment, nothing for the hair to feed upon (a plant or even a human would die under similar conditions).

The natural and logical thing to do in either case is, to replenish the soil or scalp as the case may be, and your crop will grow and multiply as nature intended.

Dr. Knowlton's DANDERINE

The only remedy for the hair ever discovered that is identical with the natural hair foods or liquids of the scalp. It feeds and beautifies the hair and does all the work originally carried on by natural nutrients or life-giving juices generated by the scalp. It penetrates the pores of the scalp quickly and the hair shows the effects of its wonderfully exhilarating and life-giving qualities.

A twenty-five-cent bottle is enough to convince you of its great value as a hair growing and hair beautifying remedy—try it and see for yourself. Now on sale at every drug and toilet store in the land. Wholesale prices, 25c, 50c and $1.00.

Write to show how quickly Danderine acts we will send a large sample free by return mail to any one who sends this advertisement to the Knowlton Danderine Co., Chicago, with their name and address and 10 cents in silver or stamps to pay postage.

who cannot learn the lesson of greed overreaching itself. So it happens that efforts are now being made to make capital out of the later misfortunes that have come to San Francisco—municipal corruption complicated with labor troubles of a peculiarly grave character. To read some of the stuff printed in the newspapers that tried to promote the previous scheme of greed, one might suppose that San Francisco is doomed to anarchy for all time, that it is the last place on earth in which capital may be safely invested, and that the future does not hold out the faintest hope of a betterment of conditions.

It may be safely predicted that the papers that are making these doleful predictions will gain from them for their own towns as little as they gained by their shallow attempts to divert San Francisco's commerce and trade. That conditions in that city are grave, it is admitted on all sides; but that they are desperate is not for a moment to be believed. The backbone of the community is sound. There is no lack of civic righteousness in San Francisco. And it will assert itself in due time. Many years ago, when conditions were almost desperate, resort was had to the frontier method of meting out substantial justice, and it proved effective. That plan of purifying the city is hardly practicable in these days. Nevertheless the resolute spirit that brought order out of chaos in the early '50s is as strong in San Francisco today as it ever was. It will find a way to deal with the present situation. And it will so deal with it that the future of the city will not be marred. In the meantime the Pecksniff fellows that would prey upon San Francisco in its trouble will receive a second lesson of the folly of placing greed above principle.—San Diego Union.

SHORT TALKS BY L. T. COOPER.

THAT TIRED FEELING.

"That tired feeling" is a sure sign that the system needs regulating. A dull, droopy man or woman needs something to get the blood jumping once more. The whole body is clogged with impurities, but the seat of the trouble is the stomach. It has been gradually letting down, only half doing its work, and the result is that the kidneys, liver and bowels absorb the undigested food and then the blood becomes muddy and sluggish. From one to three bottles of Cooper's New Discovery will get the stomach back in shape. The tired feeling will surely disappear if this is done.

MRS. M. WISE.

This letter tells what a woman thinks who tried it: "I suffered from loss of appetite, poor digestion and general breaking down. I was so weak I could scarcely get about. I felt tired and worn out nearly all the time. Upon hearing of the great things Cooper's New Discovery was doing for others afflicted as I was, I began to use it. By the time the first bottle was gone my condition was immensely improved. I now feel strong again and do my own work with ease. Please accept my sincere thanks." Mrs. M. Wise, 1217 Norwood St., Indianapolis, Ind.

The Cooper preparations enjoy a larger sale than any other medicine. That seems to prove their efficiency.

A Game That Does Not Pay.

Is it not about time there were an end put to attempts to boom individual localities through the misfortunes of San Francisco? This sort of small business began immediately after the big fire of last year. At a time when the public spirited people throughout the entire country were devoting their efforts to relieve the distress caused by the disaster, the greedy element of various Pacific coast cities was busying itself with schemes to take advantage of the misfortunes that had befallen the metropolis and to fish for their own cities as much of its trade and commerce as could be taken from it. And a considerable part of the coast press aided in the scheme to plunder the stricken city. Of course such a campaign could not be carried on openly. It was masked with hypocritical sympathy. The papers that did this contemptible work were profuse of regrets for the disaster that had befallen San Francisco, and urgent in their appeals for aid for the sufferers, but at the same time they were careful to make the calamity appear as great as possible and to create the impression that the metropolis must necessarily lose much of its trade and commerce, and would probably never be able to regain it. Then the papers of one locality or another would assure their readers that however sad it all might be, a great share of the commercial life blood of San Francisco must necessarily go to their town. They bewailed the incidents that were the cause of such result, but at the same time they plausibly notified the people of the locality to thus profit, that it was their duty to submit to the inevitable and sadly but firmly to prepare for the great increase of population and trade that must necessarily come to them through San Francisco's hard luck.

There is no need to quote these hypocritical screeds. People have not forgotten them. Los Angeles was one of the first thus to try to kick the sick lion, and some of San Francisco's near neighbors were little behind in that ungenerous effort.

It was all to no purpose. San Francisco's great commerce did not go to places whose people professed sadly to believe that destiny would compel them to receive it and make gainful use of it. The metropolis, too, retains the great bulk of its trade. That which has left it is only using as a makeshift some neighboring towns. Nor did the capital, which the sorrowful sympathizers in various coast cities thought would flow to them from San Francisco, leave the latter in any appreciable amount. In a word, the entire scheme to profit by the great disaster of April, 1906, bore no other fruit than to make the schemers as ridiculous as they are contemptible. But there are some greedy souls

Health Hints.

Never get cold feet, especially in politics.

For palpitation of the heart quit reading market quotations.

A good way to treat appendicitis is to cut out the surgeon.

Avoid late hours; when the clock strikes 23 it is time to go to bed.

Maladies which fail to respond to any other treatment should be treated with silent contempt.

Remember that care killed a cat, and the man who has no more than nine lives can't afford to worry.

Nose-bleed is often caused by not minding your own business. It may be cured by calling the police and diving into the nearest drug store.

The Cause of Many Sudden Deaths.

There is a disease prevailing in this country most dangerous because so deceptive. Many sudden deaths are caused by it—heart disease, pneumonia, heart failure or apoplexy are often the result of kidney disease. If kidney trouble is allowed to advance the kidney-poisoned blood will attack the vital organs, causing catarrh of the bladder, or the kidneys themselves break down and waste away cell by cell. Bladder troubles almost always result from a derangement of the kidneys and a cure is obtained quickest by a proper treatment of the kidneys. If you are feeling badly you can make no mistake by taking Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy. It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often through the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and is sold by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful new discovery and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address, Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.
