

TIRED AND SICK YET MUST WORK

"Man may work from sun to sun but woman's work is never done." In order to keep the home neat and pretty, the children well dressed and tidy, women overdo and often suffer in silence, drifting along from bad to worse, knowing well that they ought to have help to overcome the pains and aches which daily make life a burden.

It is to these women that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, comes as a blessing. When the spirits are depressed, the head and back aches, there are dragging-down pains, nervousness, sleeplessness, and reluctance to go anywhere, these are only symptoms which unless heeded, are soon followed by the worst forms of Female Complaints.

MRS. AUG. LYON

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

keeps the feminine organism in a strong and healthy condition. It cures inflammation, ulceration, displacements, and organic troubles. In preparing for child-birth and to carry women safely through the Change of Life it is most efficient.

Mrs. Augustus Lyon, of East Earl, Pa., writes:—Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—"For a long time I suffered from female troubles and had all kinds of aches and pains in the lower part of back and sides, I could not sleep and had no appetite. Since taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and following the advice which you gave me I feel like a new woman and I cannot praise your medicine too highly."

Mrs. Pinkham's Invitation to Women

Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to write Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. Out of her vast volume of experience she probably has the very knowledge that will help your case. Her advice is free and always helpful.

ORATORICAL CONTEST TONIGHT.

Orators of Willamette Societies Will Contest for Silver Cup.

The Philodorian, Philodorian and the Websters, three literary societies of Willamette University, will cross oratorical swords in the "Varsity" chapel this evening.

The organizations will be represented, respectively, by A. R. Marker, Miss Mary Gittins and John Reichen, and the occasion will be one of the most pleasant social meetings of the season. The contest is an annual affair and the rivalry between the various societies brings forth the most able efforts to gain possession of the silver loving cup. The trophy was won last year by Mr. Marker, the representative of the Philodorian society, and that organization will have the same able speaker to maintain its prestige this season.

The contestants have been faithfully practicing for the past several weeks, and it is expected that the battle will be close and hard fought. The program for the evening, which begins at 8 o'clock, is as follows:

- Philodorian quartet . . . . . Selection
- Oration, "From the Sword to the Ballot" . . . . . John Reichen
- Instrumental duet . . . . .
- Robert Eakin and Elva Winslow
- Oration, "The Constitution and the Union" . . . . . A. R. Marker
- Philodorian duet . . . . . Selection
- Oration, "The Watchword of the Age" . . . . . Mary Gittins
- Philodorian quartet . . . . . Selection
- Decision of judges.

Peru's Great Railroad Project.

Peru intends to connect her more populous area on the Pacific with her vast eastern territories, now recognized as among the richest parts of South America. This part of the republic embraces about 500,000 square miles, and is known as the Montana, a name that covers not only the mountainous districts, but also the widespread alluvial plain through which many of the head streams of the Amazon make their way. A large part of it is covered with tropical timber of the highest value. Dr. Slevens, the leading German authority says that rubber trees are there in enormous quantities and will be an inexhaustible source of wealth when the new, rational plantation system is introduced.

All this rich country was inaccessible a quarter of a century ago on account of the hostility of the Indians, from whom there is nothing more to fear. They are helping to cut paths for the rubber collectors. There are also thousands of square miles of grass and arable lands, a part of which, about 5,000,000 acres, the Peruvian corporation is now developing by opening roads, building bridges and introducing colonists who are planting coffee and cacao.

For many years the plan has been to push three lines across the Cordilleras from the Pacific, and these great projects are now far advanced: The northern starts from the port of Pacasmayo, is now completed for a considerable distance beyond Cajamarca, among the mountains, and will finally reach the upper Maranon. The southern, running from Mollendo, reached Puna, on Lake Titicaca, before the disastrous Chilean war, and has since completed a long northern branch to the famous mining center of Cuzco, on the Inter-Andean plateau, while a southern branch has rounded the south coast of Titicaca and is making for La Paz, Bolivia. The Central Peruvian railroad has been most in the world's eye and is the line that will reach the upper waters of the Amazon.

This remarkable road starts from Callao at sea level and rises to 500, 1300, 2800 and 6000 feet at the respective distances of 7, 18, 33 and 50 miles. The steady and rapid ascent continues till the track crosses the high Andean range at 15,665 feet, about 100 feet lower than the summit of Mont Blanc, and there it descends 120 feet to the mile for 30 miles across the mountain plateau to Oroya. This place is 136 miles in an air line from the coast and 220 miles by rail.

Oroya is also the starting point of the line to be built through the eastern ranges of the Andes and down the Cordilleran slope. The Cerro de Pasco tracks lead through a pass to Tarma, which is separated from Oroya by the second of the Inter-Andean ranges. Here the track leading down the slope will branch to the east, cross the Chanchamayo valley, where settlers already supply the inhabitants of the plateau with their coffee, sugar and rum, and descend to the Ucayali, on whose navigable waters passengers and freight will pass to and from the ocean vessels that ascend the Amazon, 2000 miles, to the river port of Iquitos.

At last accounts the survey on one of the six sections of the line has been completed; it is well advanced on the others, and building operations will begin this year. The engineers says that in crossing the eastern ranges a very large expenditure of labor and money will be required, but the entire route is now known to be feasible.—New York Sun.

RURAL LETTER CARRIERS' STATE ASSOCIATION

Will be held in Portland, June 7th and 8th. Members from all parts of the state will be present as many important matters are coming before the meeting. Of the Salem carriers, W. H. Squire, F. P. Litchfield and J. W. Cox are going down this afternoon on the 4:30 train.

Among the many matters to be brought up steps will be taken to secure the adoption of the King road drag by the county courts as a legal requirement in each road district and compelling its use over each road so many times each season. This has been done in a number of the eastern states with marked success.

Another thing to be asked for will be the allowance of Christmas holiday and also the abolishment of the "penny in the box" nuisance and require patrons to buy and affix stamps to their letters before depositing in the box.

It is expected that addresses will be made by Senator Fulton, Congressman W. C. Hawley, Postmaster Minto of the Portland office, Inspector E. C. Clement and others all of whom have promised to be in attendance. Postmaster Farrar of Salem will also be at the meeting. K. P. Loop of McMinnville is president of the association and the meeting will be held in Commercial hall that has been tendered for that purpose.

Woes of a Drummer.

"I'm just a little discouraged with my work," said the tall New York boy who has started out on the road. "I was making my second trip west when I met an old drummer who had been on the road for more than thirty years. He sat with grip between his knees and talked to me.

"'Chuck it, my boy,' he said. 'If there is anything else in the world you can do, do it. Look at my gray hairs. I don't know what is to have a home. For thirty years I have seen my wife about once in five weeks. I know that I have a wife and children in a flat in New York, but that's all I do know about them. The children have grown up and married, but I have not had time to attend their weddings. My wife has grown gray, too, but she has had the best of it. She has had a home and the children. If there is anything else you can do in the world, my boy,' he repeated, 'quit drumming and do it.'"

THE BREWING OF BEER IN JAPAN

Consul General H. B. Miller of Yokohama, in reviewing the history of beer brewing in Japan, says that it dates back some twenty years, and that its start, in common with many other enterprises later developed by the Japanese, was given by foreigners who aimed first to satisfy the requirements of the foreign residents without, perhaps, foreseeing the extent of the demand for the commodity among the Japanese themselves. Mr. Miller traces the development of the industry, as follows:

The Kirin Brewery was established in Yokohama in 1885, the company registering in Victoria, Hongkong, as British, under the title Japan Brewery Company (Limited). The master brewers have always been German, and there are at present three Germans connected with the brewery, though they are likely to be supplanted now that the business has been sold to Japanese, who will doubtless be able to do more with it than the foreign owners have lately accomplished. The selling price is given as $1,000,000. The well-known trade mark (samples filed at the Bureau of Manufacturers) will probably be retained. The last dividend of the company was at the rate of 20 per cent per annum.

Following the lead of the foreigner and to secure a share of the growing trade, such breweries as the Ashahi, Yebisu, Sapporo, Osaka, Kabuto and Tokyo came into existence. As illustrating the growth of the younger companies, the Sapporo brewery increased its production from 235,302 gallons in 1897 to 954,706 gallons in 1904. The growth of the industry was at the rate of 30 to 40 per cent per annum between 1894 and 1901, when its rapid development received a check in the proposition of a tax of $3.50 per koku (koku—39.7 imperial gallons), which tax is still levied, together with a war tax of 50 cents per koku. The output of all the breweries increased from 2,688,364 gallons in 1897 to 6,000,000 gallons in 1906. In 1905 beer was exported to the value of $688,723, while in 1906 22,989 dozen pint bottles, with a value of $15,797; 655,224 dozen quart bottles, worth $739,335, and 64,938 casks, worth $26,696, making a total of $781,828, were exported. China has always taken the bulk of the exports although Korea has been consuming an increasing quantity year by year, in 1905 taking a value of $199,585, as against $15,463 in 1899.

The greater part of the export to China goes to Manchuria, comparatively little entering northern and central China. The establishing of foreign breweries at Shanghai and in northern China, such as the Anglo-German Brewing company, at Kiao-chow, has interfered and will continue to interfere somewhat with the sale of Japanese beers in their local districts, but in Korea and Manchuria there is an opportunity which the Japanese are not slow to grasp. The relatively low price of the beverage, the nearness of the market and cheap transportation, and the fact that the Japanese already in those districts will use and introduce among the native element a demand for the commodity, give Japan every advantage over foreign competition. Further, there is in contemplation the establishing of a branch brewery in Manchuria, an outcome of the formation of the Dal Nippon Brewery company. Branch breweries for Taiwan, China and Korea are also contemplated and were started in 1907.
