AN EDUCATIONAL VALUE IN DOLLARS AND CENTS

The average educated man gets one thousand dollars a year. He works forty years, making a total of forty thousand dollars in a life-time. The average day laborer gets one dollar and a half per day, three hundred days of the year, or four hundred and fifty dollars. In his lifetime he earns eighteen thousand dollars.

The value of an education in dollars is the difference between these two sums, or twenty-two thousand dollars. To acquire this earning capacity requires twelve years of school of one hundred and eighty days each, or a total of two thousand one hundred and sixty days.

Divided twenty-two thousand dollars (value of an education) by the number of days required in getting it, and we find that each day at school is worth a little more than ten dollars to a pupil.

TICKLE VERSUS TICKLE

Statement of the Case As the Horse Editor Understands It

The question "What's in a name," is trite, but pertinent to this dissertation. The horse editor, in his various researches after mental pabulum for Journal readers, found a dispatch from Fresno, California, to the San Francisco Chronicle, telling briefly the marital woes of a family in the city of raisins, the principal woe being the fact that they are fastened together by the bonds of Hymen and the White man's law. There was a further tie, furnished by Cupid, but as it was made of roses, sweet peas and spooning time promises, it soon parted.

The name of this unhappy, and evidently mismatched couple, is surely not fitted to them, at least not to both of them at the same time. His name is Alexander Tickle, and he was born "Tickled." Her name is Julia "Tickle," and she was only "Tickled" by marriage. It is an odd name, and while Julia was probably very much tickled to take the name, she has since discovered it is no laughing matter. Alexander files the suit, and in his complaint sets forth, as one of many reasons why he desires to be rid of the ticklish Julia, that she tried to poison him. Now had she been artistic and undertaken his premature taking off by administering laughing gas, or something appropriate to her ticklish subject, she might have been pardoned, but just cold poison, any old kind, got onto Alexander's nerves. Alexander sets up as another inducement for him to sever the galling nuptial fastenings, that Julia tried to chop his head off with a Filipino sword, that, presumably, had never made acquaintance with a grindstone. This not proving a success, Alexander asserts that Julia tickled him with a hatchet. She did other things to him, that made longer living in Julia's neighborhood not only uncomfortable, but, as he alleges, extremely hazardous.

On the other hand Julia makes some counter charges. She says one of Tickle's daughters was burned to death under suspicious circumstances, and that, in fact, Tickle held the girl in her bed, which was on fire, until she burned to death, and that he threatened to treat her, Julia Tickle, in the same ticklish manner. On another occasion Tickle pleaded with her with such religious fervor that he knocked out a front tooth with their only family Bible, bruised her face, and cut her lip, without convincing her of the correctness of his ideas, or increasing her respect for the sacred volume.

Julia further sets up in her cross-bill that Tickle deserted her and removed himself from her vicinity 25 times in 65 weeks, making his desertions average one every seventeen and a half days. On another occasion, she alleges, he tried to throw her into a large grate. Presumably this was during the car shortage, when fuel was high, but the complaint does not so state. The Tickle family did divers and sundry other annoying things to each other, and each prayerfully, tearfully and earnestly asks the Fresno superior judge to grant each of them a divorce, and to cook it while they wait.

Seldom Wear Out

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills relieve pain—not only once, but as many times as it is necessary to take them. Many persons who suffer from chronic ailments find in them a source of great relief from the suffering which they would otherwise be compelled to endure. Their soothing influence upon the nerves strengthen rather than weaken them. For this reason they seldom lose their effectiveness.

"I am 62 years old and have suffered for 42 years from nervous troubles, rheumatism and neuralgia, palpitation of the heart, shortness of breath, sleeplessness, and pain around the heart. The Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills have been a blessing to me. I don't know what I should do without them, and they are the only remedy I have ever used that either did not wear out in less time than I have been using them, or else the injurious results were such that I would be obliged to cease their use."

MRS. S. C. ROBINSON, 27 Carter St., Chattanooga, Tenn. Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills are sold by your druggist, who will guarantee that the first package will benefit. If it fails, he will return your money. 25 cents, 50 cents. Never sold in bulk. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind.
