THE OLD SONGS.

Sweet songs of old! How memory brings
Their music back to me
Until each bell of heaven rings
Salvation full and free!
"Joy to the world," the music sweet
Has filled a million souls,
And marked the time for marching feet
To where old Jordan rolls.

"I need thee ev'ry hour," for I
Oft weary by the way;
And "while the years are rolling by"
Thou art my guide and stay.
"Abide with me" through calm and stress,
Protect me by thy might;
My weak and faltering footsteps bless
With Thine own "Kindly Light."

The dear old songs! Their echoes fill
The quiet evening air;
They bid me bear life's load until
"There'll be no sorrow there."
"By cool Sion's shady rill"
Whose waters floweth free,
Lead me each day and night until
"Nearer my God, to thee."
And when "on Jordan's stormy banks"
My feet shall stand at last;
When I shall see the ransomed ranks
From whom all care is cast,
"O there may I, though vile as he"
Christ that day did behold,
The city's walls of jasper see!
And walk its streets of gold.

GEN. BELL TALKS SQUARE.

Gen. Bell of Colorado is reported to have made a declaration regarding the Idaho prosecution of the Colorado labor men, which should arrest attention.

His declaration derives its chief importance from the fact that during the Colorado labor troubles, Gen. Bell was reckless in his use against the miners of the military power at his command.

HE INSISTED AT THE TIME THAT HE ACTED without regard to private interests on either side, and SOLELY IN BEHALF OF GOOD GOVERNMENT.

However this may have been, his actions were of the irresponsible military character and of inordinate severity against the labor side, as well as inimical to civil order.

But now Gen. Bell, with the same temper in which he hurled military law at organized labor in Colorado, denounces the Idaho prosecution as a farce.

"Why should they try these men in Idaho?" he asks.

And then he explains:

"During the troubles in Colorado and before the murder of Steunenberg there were seventy-five persons killed in Colorado; and yet they take men from Colorado to Idaho to try them for crimes committed in Colorado.

"Why don't they try them in Colorado?"

"Is it because they are afraid?"

"The whole thing is a farce.

"It is unfair and un-American.

I DETEST THE PRINCIPLES OF MOYER AND HAYWOOD, BUT I THINK THEY SHOULD GET A SQUARE DEAL, and if you take them from a state where the alleged crimes were committed, to a place supposedly hostile to them in another state, I don't call it a square deal."

WHAT ANIMALS CAN DO.

A good deal is being said and written nowadays on what animals do and do not.

The president saw fit to deny the truth of some of the stories and publish his views in a magazine article.

He is undoubtedly in the right when he denies that animals do some things attributed to them by the fiction writers who project their own lively imagination into the everyday life of inferior creatures.

But animals do wonderful things sometimes.

Take the hog.

His deeds are not so wonderful in this region as they are in the corn country, yet there is no good reason to dispute that the American hog has done all the wonderful things attributed to him by a corn-country admirer, as follows:

"He walked to his burial and future home and liquidated the note on the team; he bought the school books; IT WAS HE THAT PAID FOR THE MATERIAL FOR STABLE FOR HORSES AND COW, WHILE HE, WITHOUT A DISCONTENTED GRUNT, TOOK HIS ABODE IN A STRAW PILE, and his mate brought forth lusty litters, any one of which would excel a 3-year-old steer in value in ten months.

It was he that paid the Dr.'s bill; he that lighted up the first Christmas tree that furnished toys for the kids; the first merino dress, calico and trimmings, and caused the smiles and tears of joy.

IT WAS HE THAT REPLACED THE LOG HUT, THE SOD HOUSE, THE SHANTY WITH COMFORTABLE AND OFTEN STALEY HOMES.

He paid for the education at city schools, and the professional boy forgets that his superior education is somewhat due to the American hog."

QUESTION UNSETTLED.

In discussing the recent decision of the United States supreme court, which refused to grant the petition of Kansas to enjoin Colorado from using the waters of the Arkansas river for irrigation, but advanced the idea that there would have to be an equitable apportionment of benefits where a river passes through two or more states, Engineering News well says:

"It appears certain that sooner or later SOME LEGAL AND EQUITABLE PLAN FOR ADJUSTING CONFLICTING WATER RIGHTS ACROSS STATE BOUNDARIES MUST BE DEvised AND PUT IN FORCE and given such sanction by the federal government.

Many millions of dollars of property are at stake and should be given protection.

The possible development of many millions more is hindered by the uncertainty and cloud upon titles which the existing situation creates.

The whole problem ought to be canvassed by the new federal waterways commission; and it could hardly exert its broad powers in a more useful way."

The decision not only did not give Kansas and Colorado any accurate idea of their respective shares, leaving that for future litigation if one state thought the other was using too much water; but it CAST A DOUBT ON THE POWER OF THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT TO ENGAGE IN SUCH IRRIGATION PROJECTS as have been undertaken in recent years.

The situation is one that the new federal waterways commission could probably take up.

Setting Thieves to Catch Thieves.
"Set a thief to catch a thief," has been remodeled in Mexico to "Set a brigand to catch a brigand," and the catching has been well done.

Prior to 1876, when Porfirio Diaz first became president, Mexico was the stamping ground for as relentless, blood-thirsty cutthroats as ever cursed a land. Neither life nor property were safe anywhere. Houses were surrounded by high stone walls, while haciendas, mines and factories were turned into fortresses. Money any valuables waited for transportation until sufficient had accumulated to pay for a large armed guard. Little wooden crosses by the roadside marked the spots where adventurous travelers had been stabbed or shot.

Diaz' plan was soon formed. He summoned the heads of the robber bands to meet him in the capital, granting to each safe conduct to go and to return. "Men," said he, "I know you all and the members of all your bands and your every haunt. I offer you your choice of two things. The first is, join my army; I will furnish you and your followers with the best horses the country affords, handsomely caparisoned; equip you with the best arms and ammunition that can be bought; pay you a regular salary equal to your present incomes and promise you immunity from past crimes—all on condition that you obey my orders implicitly. The alternative is—refuse my offer and I will hunt you to death, for Mexico must be rid of robbers."

The robbers were not long in reaching a decision, but signed the contract that made them members of the army of the republic—and so the rurales were born. Of all the robber chiefs who that day signed the agreement not one proved recreant to the trust placed in him. Their orders were simple: "Reduce your districts to order and safety. There are to be no trials, no reports; criminals are to be buried where found, but a small wooden cross may mark the spot."

Now Mexico is as safe for the lonely traveler as a highway in the United States.—The Travel Magazine.

Remarkable Rescue.

That truth is stranger than fiction, has once more been demonstrated in the little town of Fedora, Tenn., the residence of C. V. Pepper. He writes: "I was in bed, entirely disabled with hemorrhages of the lungs and throat. Doctors failed to help me, and all hope had fled when I began taking Dr. King's New Discovery. Then instant relief came. The coughing soon ceased; the bleeding diminished rapidly, and in three weeks I was able to go to work." Guaranteed cure for coughs and colds, 50c and $1.00 at J. C.
