WHAT'S IN THE MAGAZINES.

The Outing Magazine.

This is a big and tempting issue, alive with high-class fiction and with special articles of present-day importance. "The Tales of a Collector of Whiskers" has in it a second episode, entitled "The Bearded Peasant's Revenge." These tales are delightfully absurd and full of quaint humor. A second installment of Mr. Emerson Hough's story, entitled "The Way of a Man," also appears. It deepens the impression made by the first installment—that this story will be one to be remembered. The special articles are ideal for midsummer reading. "Hunting the Muskrat with a Camera" is by Bonnycastle Dale; "The Real Boys' Camp" is by Robert Dunn, describes the rise of an institution that is helping the boys to a more enjoyable boyhood and a more healthful manhood. "Mansvelt, the Bluffer," is the brief summary of a man in whose buccannier mind first flourished the idea of an American Republic. In the same way, Mr. Lynn Tew Sprague's article, entitled "The Planting of a Nation," brings the past to the present with a commanding interest. It is the story of the founding of the Jamestown Colony, now three centuries gone, an event which today occasions an exposition. "A Ride to Fez" is the account of a journey into that old but little known city of Morocco.

Everybody's.

No more vitally interesting article has appeared in a long time than "Brain and Body." The author, Dr. William Hanna Thomson, a recognized authority, presents what to most of us will be an entirely new conception of the brain, facts of the greatest practical importance in mental training, and he puts it in a simple, easily comprehended form unusual in a scientific writer. It is a notable contribution.

Fiction occupies a suitably prominent place in the July number with such writers as Mary R. S. Andrews, Stewart Edward White, O. Henry, and Lloyd Osbourne, but the editor finds space besides for a number of interesting articles. One of the most entertaining of these is: "The Aristocracy of the Circus," by Hartley Davis, an historical account of certain famous circus families. It is illustrated with a number of unusual circus photographs.

The Bohemian.

A cheerful piece of tomfoolery is "Low Sherlock Holmes Caught Raffles." It is a story of the greatest of detectives in fiction, Owen Kildare, who has been called "the literary prodigy of the times," has a strong story entitled "The Mollycoddle," a tale of New York's seamy side. "The North Pole at Last" is full of absurd humor. "The Lady of Fancyland" is a charming bit of fiction daring. Four stories will help while away a summer day. The special articles are: "The Diplomat at Washington." This is the inside story of several resignations from the ambassadorial staff at the national capital; "My Yesterdays," by Eleanor Robson, a charming life story of a distinguished actress; "When New York Dines a la Boheme," a feature full of personality, describing the men who, and the places which, have made Manhattan a delight to the epicure.

McClure's Magazine.

This number is unique in features. There are six of them and a more interesting issue of any magazine would be hard to find. "Will the 'America' Fly to the Pole?" by Walter Wellman is a fairy story of reality—and graphically describes his airship "America" and the dash he will make to the Pole next month. Ellen Terry in "When I was Married" tells of her romantic marriage to the painter, Watts, when she was not quite sixteen. She also tells of several years of her early life on the stage. Anecdote after anecdote make her memories charming. Carl Schurz dramatically paints "The Battle of Gettysburg." "The Confession and Autobiography of Harry Orchard," who now figures so largely in Idaho, are most astounding, and give one a key to the man's character in the story of his first deadly errors. C. P. Connolly brings out most amazing and melodramatic Montana history in "The Fight for the Minnie Healy," in which contest "almost every crime in the calendar was committed." Georgina Mil-

Mrs. Eddy's strange belief in Malicious Animal Magnetism.

The Atlantic Monthly.

Journalistic timeliness and well-considered variety characterize the July issue though stress is laid particularly on government and politics.

There are three literary essays of note. Edward Dowden's "Cowper and William Hayley" is a brilliant study of the poet's friend and biographer. Prof. Edwin Mims of Trinity College, Durham, N. C., summarizes the life and writings of that versatile and charming Southern man of letters, Thomas Nelson Page. Of somewhat lighter character, C. M. Harvey's article on "The Dime Novel in American Life" justifies the existence of this downtrodden offshoot of fiction.

Of the serials, May Sinclair's "The Helpmate" approaches its conclusion, as also Gen. Morris Schaff's "The Spirit of Old West Point"—war-time papers which have met with great popularity all over the country.

Take the Postmaster's Word for It.

Mr. F. M. Hamilton, postmaster at Cherrycreek, Ind., keeps also a stock of general merchandise and patent medicines. He says: "Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy is standard here in its line. It never fails to give satisfaction and we could hardly afford to be without it." For sale by Dr. Stone's Drug Store.

Oregon Buckskin Products.

If all the buckskin gloves worn in Oregon were made here it would keep several large factories busy. But they are coming into the idea of using Oregon-made products pretty fast. If we can judge by the growing trade of George W. Fisher, manager of the Brownsville glove factory. He has an exhibit each year at the pioneer's reunion, and the editor of this paper acknowledges receipt of a fine pair of smoke-tanned, fringed and ornamented buckskin riding gauntlets. They are the kind the cowboys wear when they put on style and go to shoot up the town, and it makes a man feel like he was almost a second Teddy to put them on. These buckskin goods are sold at the Salem Woolen Mill store and at J. L. Stockton's store, and the material and prices are very satisfactory.

Bad Burn Quickly Healed.

"I am so delighted with what Chamberlain's Salve has done for me that I feel bound to write and tell you so," says Mrs. Robert Mytton, 457 John St., Hamilton, Ontario. "My little daughter had a bad burn on her knee. I applied Chamberlain's Salve and it healed beautifully." This salve allays the pain of a burn almost instantly. It is for sale by Dr. Stone's Drug Store.

Last night the Portland Telegram, in an editorial paragraph, said: "As we naturally expected, the yellows will have to back up on that statement respecting the transfer of the American navy to Pacific waters, in contemplation of trouble with Japan. It is a hard jolt for these victims of a perennial silly sea-son." In a head line over its dispatches, in the same issue, it said: "Fleet Coming to Pacific After All." It would seem from this that if one wants the news the "Yellows" are the boys to furnish it.

He Fired the Stick.

"I have fired the walking-stick I've carried over 40 years, on account of a sore that resisted every kind of treatment, until I tried Bucklen's Arnica Salve; that has healed the sore and made me a happy man," writes John Garrett, of North Mills, N. C. Guaranteed for Piles, Burns etc., by J. C. Perry druggist. 25c.
