

GROWING GIRLS NEEDED PINK PILLS

The Tonic Necessary for Their Proper Development and to Insure a Healthful and Happy Life. Read This Statement of an Iowa Woman.

There is a form of anaemia, or bloodlessness, that often afflicts growing girls, that has been called the anaemia of development. It requires care and proper attention as neglect may cause a life of unhappiness and suffering. There is also danger of consumption, especially if a dry, hacking cough is noticed. This disease is in the blood and Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are particularly well adapted to cure it. We have yet to hear of a case in which these blood-making pills have been tried without success.

Miss Esther E. Durbin, of 212 1/2 Main street, Davenport, Iowa, says: "When I was a school girl I became afflicted with anaemia and grew so weak I could scarcely walk. There was a craving for starch and I ate a great deal of it. I was pale and thin, had not ambition and was subject to hysterical attacks. My breath was so short that I would have to sit down and rest on the way up the school steps. I would fall asleep during a recitation in spite of my efforts to keep awake and at last had to give up going to school."

"Sometimes it seemed that my heart would jump out of my body. Almost everything I ate hurt my stomach and I had a bladder trouble that caused me to bloat and puff up. I had two doctors during the two years before I began using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and at last they told my mother that they could do nothing for me."

"Our druggist recommended Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and when I had taken them about three weeks I noticed a change for the better. Altogether I used them for about a year and they gave me new life and health when every other means had failed. I have recommended the pills to many others and am always glad to do so."

A valuable booklet, "Diseases of the Blood," containing fuller information will be sent free upon request.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box, six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

A Remarkable Church.

A small watering place in Austria named Elchwald can boast of possessing a most remarkable church. It was first built by an Italian architect at Venice at the expense of Prince Carlos Clary-Aldringen, a great admirer of Italian architecture. When it was finished, the church was taken to pieces again and packed in thousands of numbered cases for transportation to Elchwald. At this place in Austria it was eventually rebuilt and then made over to the inhabitants as a free gift from the prince.

A Wonderful Happening.

Port Byron, N. Y., has witnessed one of the most remarkable cases of healing ever recorded. Amos F. Kings, of that place says: "Bucklen's Arnica Salve cured a sore on my leg with which I had suffered over 30 years. I am now eighty-five." Guaranteed to cure all sores, by J. C. Perry, druggist. 25c.

CLEOPATRA.

The Story of Her Death From the Bite of an Asp.

It is admitted that Cleopatra killed herself to avoid being exhibited at Rome in the triumph of Octavius, who had made war upon her and Antony because the latter had divorced his (Octavius') sister on the queen's account. But did she die from a snake's bite? It is better to think not. "If her death had been caused by any serpent, the small viper would rather have been chosen than the large asp, but the story is disproved by her having decked herself in the royal ornaments and being found dead without any marks or suspicion of poison on her body."

Death from a serpent's bite could not have been mistaken, and her vanity would not have allowed her to choose one which would have disgraced her in so frightful a manner.

Other poisons were well understood and easy of access, and no boy would have ventured to carry an asp in a basket of figs, some of which he even offered to the guards as he passed, and even Plutarch shows that the story of the asp was doubtful. Nor is the statue carried in Augustus' triumph, which had an asp upon it, any proof of his belief in it, since the snake was the emblem of Egyptian royalty. The statue (or the crown) of Cleopatra could not have been without one, and this was probably the origin of the whole story.

Where 15 Languages Are Spoken.

Winnipeg is where they do things. This is really the place where the frontier was abolished by the real estate regicides. A kingdom is sold daily in Winnipeg, an army is marched in by rail to occupy it over night.

The yards of the Canadian Pacific railway alone in Winnipeg have over 120 miles of trackage, and they need it. The immigrants come by battalion—Englishmen in caps, Scotchmen in bonnets, Breton French in blue coats, Germans, Swedes, Norwegians, Austrians, Mennonites, Gallians—all manner of furtive folk and wild.

There are fifteen known languages in the Winnipeg schools, and a lot too late to classify. When you see a stranger you cannot tell whether or not he is within the range of human speech. You bitterly reflect only that he is one of those who have wiped out the old frontier, lost it forever to those who love the wilderness.—Outing Magazine.

His Business.

A passing stranger was attracted by frightful screams coming from a little house not far from the road. Hurriedly tying the horse, he ran to the house and found that a little boy had swallowed a quarter, and his mother, not knowing what to do, had become frantic. The stranger caught the little fellow by his heels and, holding him up, gave a few sakes, whereupon the quarter soon dropped to the floor.

"Well, mister," said the grateful mother, "you cert'n'y knowed how to get it out. Air you a doctor?"

"No, madam," replied the stranger. "I'm a collector of internal revenue."—Philadelphia Ledger.

IMPURE BLOOD.

If you could see inside the stomachs of most people who suffer from impure blood you would wonder that they are not suffering worse. The undigested portion of food eaten days ago is still lying there, fermenting, decaying and clogging the intestines.

LITTLE SON OF MRS. HAHN.

From this disgusting mass the blood must derive nourishment to carry to every organ of the body. Think of it. Is it any wonder their complexion is bad, their breath offensive, their bowels inactive and their health impaired in every way? Is it any wonder that they can get no relief from blood purifiers, purgatives when as fast as the blood is cleaned it is tainted again? Try a rational treatment. Take something to help the stomach rid itself of this stagnant mass and to keep it from accumulating. Then see if you don't improve. One bottle of Cooper's New Discovery will prove my words to you. I have seen hundreds of just such cases and here's one of them:

"About a year ago my little son, who is nearly four years of age, suffered an attack of scarlet fever. Soon after he contracted what we thought was some form of eczema. Sores and blotches broke out on him and he became weak and peevish."

"We tried physicians and medicines but nothing seemed to help him until several weeks ago we started to give him Cooper's New Discovery and noticed an improvement almost immediately. After a few doses we noticed his appetite was better and gradually his little face assumed a brighter appearance. His skin is now cleared up and I want to thank you sincerely for what the medicine has done for him." Mrs. Herman Hahn, 823 Johnson St., Nashville, Tenn.

Horsepower of Lightning.

It seems absurd to talk about determining the horsepower of a bolt of lightning, and yet that was what was done recently with reasonable accuracy. During a storm at a certain place in Germany the lightning struck a wooden column in a dwelling. In the top of the column were two wire nails, each 5-32 of an inch in diameter, which the electric fluid melted instantly. To melt iron in that short time would be impossible in the largest furnace in existence. It might be done with the aid of electricity, but a current of 200 amperes and a potential of 20,000 volts would be necessary. This electric force for one second represents 5,000 horsepower, but as the lightning accomplished the melting in less time, say in one-tenth of a second, the bolt must have been of about 50,000 horsepower.—Chicago News.

Pills and Piles.

A prolific cause of Piles is the use of cathartics and pills of a drastic, violent nature, always followed by a reaction on account of the resinous, drying properties they contain.

There are other causes, but no matter what the cause or what the kind of Piles, Dr. Leonhardt's Hem-Roid can be relied upon to cure—to stay cured.

It's an internal remedy that removes the causes of Itching, Bleeding or Suppurating Piles.

A guarantee goes with each package. $1.00 at druggists, or Dr. Leonhardt Co., Niagara Falls, N. Y., Proprietors. Sold by Dr. Stone, Salem.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT ON DUMB ANIMALS

In the June 5th (our birthday) issue of the Washington, D. C., Club Fellow and Mirror of Society comes to our table the most severe attack on the "blood-letting mania" of President Roosevelt we have ever seen. If in his boyhood he had been humanely educated in a Band of Mercy, probably he would have written very differently about the starving cattle of western ranches and the shooting of animals simply for the fun of wounding and killing them. He would not be so anxious to put rifles into the hands of American school-boys that they might be better prepared to shoot human beings, and he would not be engaged in his present controversy with the Rev. Wm. J. Long, whose charming stories of animal life are giving pleasure to thousands of readers. But if he had been so educated very likely he would never have been assistant secretary of the navy, or we have been plunged into the Cuban and Philippine wars, or he have been President of the United States, or our paper, Our Dumb Animals, have been shut out from the Washington public schools, or the Jamestown celebration have been planned so much against the wishes of many eminent Christian peace men, both Catholic and Protestant.

We have tried hard to prevent Mr. Roosevelt's being appointed assistant secretary of the navy because (as we wrote Governor Long) we felt sure if he received that appointment we should get into a war with somebody about something. We failed, and the Cuban and Philippine wars, in addition to their cruelty to horses, have cost thousands of human lives, hundreds of millions of dollars, an enormous increase of our pension list and the end is not yet. There can be no doubt of President Roosevelt's courage to lead a Balacava charge of the six hundred, or explore the bottom of the Atlantic in a submarine, or float over the top of the Washington monument in an airship to test the military value of that kind of navigation, and there can be no doubt that he has done much good work since he became President and we hope he may do much more before the end of his term. But we cannot help thinking of him as a powder-mill liable at any time to explode and do vast damage, and we most earnestly wish (as we suggested some months since) that he might have in his cabinet as secretary of peace some strong man to whose wise counsels he would respectfully listen, and that he may studiously avoid everything which could plunge our nation into another war. Telling of the controversy between President Roosevelt and the Rev. Mr. Long, the editor of the Mirror writes: "One only has to read the books of the two men to determine upon which side of the scales lies the verity of this controversy. Long went into the untracked wilderness practically alone and unarmed, bent on the study of animals in their native lairs, with the love of the dumb brutes in his heart and a desire to know them and impart his studies to his fellow-men. Roosevelt, on the other hand, went armed to the teeth with a repeating rifle, etc. His books are steeped in the blood of wanton slaughter and he revels in the telling of the wounding of beasts, the killing of fawns and mother animals and of the disregard of the unwritten laws of camp life in shooting down animals which strayed within camp confines. Far from being the foremost authority on American mammals, Theodore Roosevelt has written himself down as being not even a true sportsman. That he cannot tolerate criticism one has but to recall the events which led to his having Geo. T. Angell's paper, devoted to the prevention of cruelty to animals, debarred from schools because the Boston philanthropist saw fit to rebuke the President for his wanton slaughter of dumb beasts."

We are not aware that our paper was shut out from the Washington schools by order of the President, as it appears to have been upon the order of the superintendent of the public schools because we ventured to attack the President's hunting expedition at the west. But we ought to feel profoundly grateful to whoever caused the order to be issued as it attracted the attention of nearly every newspaper in America (all of which receive our paper every month) and also many in Europe, and was perhaps the most valuable advertisement our paper ever received. We are sorry to lose the public schools of the city of Washington, but we have several hundreds of new subscriptions from the state of Washington, and the demands for our paper have become so large that we printed last month eighty thousand copies.

GEO. T. ANGELL.

Four Bad Snakes.

Snakes are much maligned creatures, although they are, for the most part, of considerable value to man, as they live almost entirely on insects and the small rodents that are injurious to crops. Of all the snakes that inhabit North America there are really only four that are dangerous. These are the copperhead, the moccasin, the rattlesnake and a little snake of southern Florida and Georgia known as the coral snake. Of course there are a number of different species of the rattler (about thirty), but they inhabit different parts of the country and are all to be known from the fact that they "rattle" when approached. All the rest of our snakes are absolutely harmless, and their bite is to be less feared than that of a mosquito.—Scrap Book.

A Difficult Feat.

Have you ever tried to stand upright on a log perhaps a foot across the butt out in an open lake, keeping your balance to every roll and dip of the log? Well, if you had you would realize better the marvelous balance of the man who not only has to do this, but also maneuver other logs down the current with a long pike pole, chain booms together with numbed fingers, and, in fact, do the whole of his day's work while balancing on a twirling, twisting, half submerged tree trunk.—Wide World Magazine.

One of the days we remember with pleasure, as well as with profit to our health on which we became acquainted with Dr. King's New Life Pills, the painless purifiers that cure headache and biliousness, and keep the bowels right. 25c at J.C. Perry's drug store.
