EASTERN GIRLS
ADVERTISE

One of the strictly modern methods of procuring correspondents who may develop into matrimonial possibilities has been adopted by the girls who work in the eastern packing houses. Today while calling at the commission firm of Blackburn & Breck a ham was unwrapped in the presence of a Herald reporter and inside the wrapper a neatly written name and address was tucked away, with the question, "please won't you correspond" written plainly under the name. Upon inquiry it was found that a number of hams have lately contained names of young ladies who desire the correspondence of a real man.

It is presumed that the ladies who toil hard in the packing houses of the east, in their desire to get in communication with a man, have resorted to this method which might not be considered just according to the Ladies Home Journal's idea of dignity and propriety. Possibly the girls know that in Baker City there is an over supply of old bachelors and widowers who need the tender care of a girl who can fry meat and sew on buttons; they possibly have heard of the splendid appearance of the men here and the robust physical condition which some claim has been brought about by the air of certain recipes for cooking original with Baker City cooks. With all this glittering knowledge of the male element of this community it is but natural for the young and tender misses of the larger cities to forget for a moment their early training and offer their names and address to the public, with the hope that the ham of meat might be purchased by some graduate of Yale who has come west to seek his fortune in the mines. It is easy to figure that the young lady can imagine her destined-to-be helpmate is away out in the mountains by himself prospecting for the hidden treasures, and thinking of home and former social ties he might while cutting a little ham for his frugal breakfast find the address written in a feminine hand. She can also imagine the effect it would have on him and might, yes it might be the cause of his seeking a little girl to share his mountain life until the pocket of gold was struck, then they would move to some large city where they could have an automobile, a large home and plenty of servants. Think of how thrilled the little miss must have been when she slyly tucked her name and address into the wrapping of the ham with all the fairy-like visions running through her mind.

Blackburn & Breck have no intention of pushing this feature as they are not in the matrimonial agency business. However, if their wares contain such possibilities it may cause an increased trade in their goods. It is not out of reason to expect some weatherbeaten man who has not known the loving, tender ways of a woman for lo, these many years to ask his grocer for a ham with a name in it.—Baker City Herald.

DROWNED FROM CANOE

Seattle, July 27.—While canoeing on Lake Washington, in company with Effie Matzger, last night, Clinton Sheever, a bookkeeper for the Puget Sound National Bank, went overboard and was drowned. The girl says the boat took in water, and he jumped overboard to prevent its capsizing. The police think it is a case of suicide.

There Are Few
People who know how to take care of themselves—the majority do not. The liver is a most important organ in the body. Herbine will keep it in condition. V. C. Simpkins, Albu, Texas, writes: "I have used Herbine for Shills and Fever and find it the best medicine I ever used. I would not be without it. It is as good for children as it is for grown-up people and I recommend it. It is the best for La Grippe." Sold by D. J. Fry.

Big Log Rolls Over Him.
Last night's Telegram says: To have a big log roll completely over him, burying him in the mud till he was hardly recognizable, and still live, with not even a bone broken, is the experience of Vic Jacobson, a logger from Kalama, who is now at St. Vincent's hospital, has undergone. Physicians attribute his escape to a wonderful physique, for the man has muscles of iron. Despite the fact that no bones were broken, he is covered from head to foot with bruises. Jacobson works in Benson's logging camp, and yesterday one of the logs being placed at the head of the chute to the river began rolling. Before he could get out of the way Jacobson was caught and thrown off his feet, and the log passed completely over his body. Other workmen ran up, expecting to find only a mangled body. Instead they found that Jacobson had been standing on soft ground, and the weight of the rolling log had pressed him several inches into the yielding soil. He will recover.

Wretched Mail Service.
Scio now has the most wretched mail service she has had for the past fifteen years. This is not all due to the railway mail service, for railway trains don't pay much attention to schedules, seemingly. True, we are supposed to have a daily train to Woodburn and return, connecting with the Cottage Grove local, but while the train starts out on time morning it seldom returns on time evenings, often being two and three hours late. This brings the mail to Scio any time from 9 p. m. to midnight, which of course, makes the mail a day late. Mail that is brought over from Albany mornings on the C. & E. is very often taken to the front and then delivered upon the return in the evenings. We dislike making a kick but of late mail matters have become entirely too fierce. Incompetency, or carelessness, on the part of mail agents on the railroads and postal clerks in postoffices is becoming much too common. All of them need a shaking up, or a good, long indefinite rest, one or the other.—Santiam News.
