The Newport band attended, and the hostesses made everybody feel perfectly at home and happy. There are no better cooks and entertainers than these ladies, and no place on the coast where those wanting refreshment, rest and recreation can get it all in one place as perfectly as at the Monterey hotel, Newport.

A New Spud—
Robert Basey has brought The Capital Journal editor a sample of the new variety of potatoes he has grown this year from seed obtained in the east somewhere. They have eyes that are right up even with their face like a chinese beauty's peepers, a fine white skin that is easily peeled and solid white meat all through. They are about the size of a goose-egg, and when sliced raw and fried in hot bacon grease will make an angel's mouth water and a working man ask to have his plate filled about the third time. They are certainly Irish beauties of the first water.

MYSTERIOUS.

That Thomas Team Case. Where's the Driver.

Sheriff Culver, of Salem, after a trip to Thomas after the Salem livery team left at the barn of S. A. Zeysett, reports something mysterious about the affair. The team was used by R. H. Wilmerton, who had worked for the Lyons Lumber Co. at Berry, under N. H. Wheeler, afterwards going to Oregon City, and back to Salem, and had made arrangements to go to work on a planer, for the Albany Lumber Co., when the mill started up. He hired the rig for a ride into the country, was intoxicated when he reached Stayton, and Mr. Zeysett says was in a bad shape when he was at his place before going into the barn to sleep. Now he thinks that the man either committed suicide in Thomas Creek, which runs close to the barn, or went out of the barn in the night and fell in and was drowned. No other clue has been secured as to his whereabouts.—Albany Democrat.

ANOTHER FRANCHISE WANTED

Salem and Eugene and Salem and Mehama Interests United--Connect With French Line At Fair Grounds

F. W. Waters appeared before the Salem city council last night and asked for a franchise in the name of A. Welch for an electric line through the city, that is to be part of the Salem and Eugene, and Salem and Mehama system. The ordinance was read and referred to the ordinance committee and Mr. Waters has gone to Portland today to confer with Mr. Welch and his associates. A survey from Salem to Eugene via Albany is to begin at once and the work pushed.

A Salem special says: A petition was presented to the city council asking for a franchise over several streets of the city, from the northern to southern limits, with an outlet upon the Willamette river, for an entirely new electric railway system. The purpose of this is to construct a line of railroad from this city southward as far as Albany, on the initial stretch, and contemplates an extension to Portland on the north and Eugene on the south, with a lateral or feeder branching from the main line at Turner to Mehama.

The franchise is asked in the name of A. Welch of Portland. He is back-in the enterprise by eastern capital, whose identity is withheld from publication at present, but the circumstances surrounding the scheme smacks of Hill interests very strongly. The petition for the franchise covers two separate lines, both of which have their starting point at the Fair Ground store, on the Portland-Salem road, where it joins with the original L. B. French right of way. One traverses certain prominent streets through the residence portion of the city, terminating at the river brink, calculated to give an outlet to the system into Polk county. The other takes a river course through the city in a nearly direct line to the southern limits, and will connect in the vicinity of the reform school with the line that has already been surveyed and for which right of way has been secured from this city to Mehama.

The specific conditions mentioned in the franchise are that work must be begun within six months after the granting of the franchise, and the entire road completed between this city and Albany within two years. This indicates that there is need of hurry in the completion of the project. Mr. Welch, who is at the head of the Willamette Valley company, recently sold out his interests in the Eugene & Eastern to Story and others, who are promoting a system of lines out of Eugene. He is devoting his entire efforts upon the present project, which contemplates a continuous system of electric railway from Portland to the southern boundary of the state, with laterals reaching out to the most fertile sections of the valley, having no rail outlet to the prinicpal markets. Two crews of surveys will be placed in the field the first of next week, and will complete the surveys, according to the designs of the promoters, as they proceed.

An Art Exhibit.

A most delightful time was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Ostermann Friday evening, when Mrs. Ostermann gave an art exhibit of her pupil work.

Many fine paintings were displayed, and her work so true to nature, was highly praised by her many friends who wish her greater success in the future.

The time was pleasantly spent in discussing the pictures, after which dainty refreshments were served. The guests were as follows:

Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Hall and family, Mrs. Keizer and family, Mr. and Mrs. John Westly and family, Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Beadsley and family, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Beardsley and family, Mr. and Mrs. McCall and family, Mr. and Mrs. E. Kurtz, Mr. and Mrs. Rogers, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert White, Mrs. C. W. Claggett and daughter, Misses, Ora, Lulu and Neva Goodrich, Ruth Newmyer, Mrs. Jodie Hulden, Pearl and Nora Bliven, Lois Keifer, Emma Ostermann and Elsie Pearmine, Messrs. Robert Keifer, Frank Vogey, Howard Bliven, Alfred Ostermann and Phil and Willie Newmyer.

Ralph Matthews returned last evening to Berkeley, California, where he will resume his studies at the state university.

CHARTER BOARD WORKING

Compromise Plan to Seperate Legislative and Judicial Functions

The Salem charter commission is working on a compromise plan under which there will be one alderman from each ward, and the wards will remain as they are now constituted. The city council will have legislative powers only, and will be confined purely to passing ordinances and resolutions. The administrative department will be headed by the mayor, who will have increased appointive power, with an administrative board composed of three persons, such as city engineer, city attorney and city auditor or recorder to be chosen by the council. These with the mayor will have control of all public improvements, which are to be made under the taxation district plan. This embodies some of the best features of modern charters. Mayor Rodgers has collected the charters of many progressive cities and laid them before his committees and some of the best features of all will be embodied.

Staying in Town in Summer.

Just at this season of the year, when every one is talking about Nature, and trying his best to get out of town where he may commune with her, it seems fitting to put in a word "on the town side," as Charles Lamb phrased it. It is exceedingly difficult for one who loves his fellow man to understand why Nature should be supposed to include the vegetable and mineral kingdom only. Why a cabbage should be more natural than a dog, or a pine than a man, or the sea than the city, or the mountain than an army, it is not easy to see. It has been the fashion of late years to assume that forests were better company than men. There has been an effectation of solitude. As an editorial writer put it the other day, "Almost every man one meets has a bungalow on the brain," and thinks he wants to go off where he can see nobody, and where he can commune with foliage. Now foliage is very fine, whether it shows itself in bosky underbrush, or flaunts itself from the top of majestic trees. We have lived on beautiful islands, and tried the solitude of the baked adobes of the yellow wilderness; and we say, after a good many years of reflection, that the town seems wonderfully natural, that no combination of anything the vegetable and mineral kingdom can offer can, after all, come up to man. When it comes to us, let us have "poor human nature," please. The very "poorness" of it commends it. We like it that way. We are that way ourselves. There is something in the way it sits down beside you that is worth all the vegetables in the world, no matter whether you call them pines or palms.

It takes a good deal of courage to start in on a defense of Town in August, when the town is, so to speak, the under dog. No one has a good word for it. It is made hateful by the accumulated evil suggestion of hundreds of thousands of gastric pessimists and lazy folk who think they are tired, and durable brain workers who think they are fagged, and by women who have been bored at home, and who have gone to their comparatively quiet retreats to be bored worse than before—yes, bored in spite of almost the millinery and modistes have been able to do for them.

You who are in the country, no doubt, still hold to your ideals of it. You think you like the whispering of trees and rivers better than the swift storm of the city, the overture; you fancy [illegible] more to you than woman, [illegible] ter than neighbors, the [illegible] the night and day more [illegible] than that of the street, and [illegible] over the empty places [illegible] the grip of a friend's hand.
