A Great Show Ring.

The show ring parade of fine stock this year will be a marvel. The day all the prize-winners are paraded in the circle with their ribbons will be a proud one for Oregon. Never before have so many animals been seen in the ring at the fair grounds. In the implement department the exhibits are already well assembled. The Mitchell, Lewis & Staver firm leading off with one whole building. The pavilion is filling up with the county exhibits, which will be larger this year than before. The plant exhibit and the flowers will surpass anything ever seen at the fair. The dairy exhibit is also coming out strong.

Liquor But No Pools.

Contrary to expectations, there will be the usual bar under the grand stand, where all kinds of liquors will be sold to the dry and thirsty souls that will be at the fair. This is done in spite of the fact that Actor's Life a Hard One.

It is commonly thought that the actor's life is an easy one, and their path is strewn with roses, but Miss Verna Felton says it is not true. From her viewpoint she claims that it is work, real hard work.

"Why, look at me," she said, "I rehearse my people every day to correct the slightest flaw; that takes from three to four hours, then I always occupy my leisure time in reading new plays, in hopes of finding one that is more pleasing to the public than another. An hour or so is spent at a music lesson, then a horseback ride, a little rest, dinner and then the performance. I am continually studying."

It is this busy little lady that comes to Salem next week in the Allen Stock Company, and we may look forward to a real treat. Her support is an excellent one, and she says she is proud of it.
