THE ROADS.

So many, many roads lie traced
Where wanderers may stray—
Roads twining, weaving, interlaced,
Roads sorrowful and gay.

Running through country side and town
They climb the mountain steep
Through storied realms of far renown
Unceasingly they creep.

When silver moonlight floods the night—
O hark! across the sea
These roads, the wanderer's delights,
Are calling you and me.

Singing their challenge sweet and clear,
For wanderers to roam;
But all at once, I only hear
The road that leads me home.

—Alice Corey, in the October Everybody's.

PARTY ISSUES IN 1908.

In a published interview devoted chiefly to a discussion of political issues in the approaching campaign in his own state, Congressman Fowler of the fifth New Jersey district advances six separate and distinct suggestions as to what pledges the Republican party over there should make.

They disclose a very clear understanding of the situation and a close knowledge of what the people are talking about and thinking about, these days.

In two particulars especially his declarations will provoke a much wider interest than that of New Jersey, for they have a very general significance and may be given a very broad application.

FIRST, TO THE EXTREMELY CLOSE CONNECTION AT PRESENT BETWEEN WHAT MAY WITH PROPRIETY BE DESCRIBED AS POLITICS PURE AND SIMPLE AND "BUSINESS POLITICS"—FOR LACK OF A BETTER TERM.—Congressman Fowler says that never before in the history of this republic has there been such a universal awakening with regard to the ethics of business, more especially corporate business, as there is today.

Which is strictly true, of course—and the credit for this "awakening" cannot be placed with any political party; it had another origin.

Next, we are told, the electorate includes three classes of voters—one-third stalwart Democrats, one-third stalwart Republicans and one-third independent voters, the balance of power—and these latter "always stand ready to leave the party moorings of a lifetime, and cast their lot with the opposing party, if they believe its policies will better serve the welfare of the state or nation."

The fact, again. And, now, as to the connection between the popular awakening on the ethics of business and this balance-of-power vote our New Jersey congress says:

SO KEEN TODAY IS THE EAR OF THE PUBLIC, SO POSITIVE IS ITS CONVICTION AND SO PRONOUNCED IS ITS DETERMINATION THAT THE PARTY WHICH HOPES TO SECURE THE SUPPORT OF THIS GREAT MIDDLE THIRD OF OUR VOTERS, WHICH IS LARGER THIS YEAR THAN USUAL, MUST RESPOND CLEARLY AND UNEQUIVOCALLY TO THEIR INSISTENT DEMANDS.

But suppose both parties respond thus clearly and unequivocally to the people's demand with reference to corporate-business ethics—and almost unquestionably they will—what then?

Can either the Democratic or the Republican party make enough capital out of the great question of government control and regulation of the railroad and other corporation business to discredit its opponent on that point and capture the independent vote?

It most certainly does not appear so at the moment.

Indeed, in the sharp competition for meeting the people's "insistent demands" it is easily conceivable that one or the other party must go entirely too far in its platform promises and pledges—be too radical and drastic—and thus antagonize that very independent-conservative vote for which it had baited its hook.

It is next to impossible to imagine business ethics as an issue between the two great political parties in 1908.

It must be some other issue that will capture the independent vote—if that is needed by either party for carrying the election.

Finally, speaking directly for the Republicans of New Jersey in this instance, Congressman Fowler commits himself and would commit his party to the election of United States senators by popular vote when he says:

"The Republican party should pledge itself to the popular election of United States senators—a reform already adopted by eighteen states of the republic. . . . A Republican living in a county which seldom goes Republican has as much right to a voice in the election of a United States senator as a Republican residing in a county which seldom goes Democratic."

This is plainly a recommendation for nullifying or for completely changing the letter and the spirit of the constitution of the United States, which instrument makes the lower branch of congress to be composed of the direct representatives of the people and the upper branch to be composed of the direct representatives of the states in their sovereign capacity, and to make both branches strictly "popular representatives" would require an amendment to the constitution, of course; the eighteen states referred to have merely provided for getting at an expression of the people's preferences for United States senators—in one way or another—for the guidance of the legislature or the specific directing of it in its choice.

The idea of the framers of the fundamental law was that the legislature is the better qualified to express the will of the state as to who shall represent it as a sovereign state in the federal legislature.

If both congressmen and senators are to be chosen by popular vote, we may as well amend the constitution so as to consolidate both branches of congress into one big "popular" body with no state representation at all—and who wants that?

Further more, the people of the counties already have an almost direct voice in naming United States senators through their votes which create the legislature—the body that gives direct expression to the state's choice.

Finally, sentiment in favor of the direct popular election of United States senators, where it exists at all, is not confined to any one party. As an "issue" it has little or nothing in it.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy One of the Best on the Market.

For many years Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has constantly gained in favor and popularity until it is now one of the most staple medicines in use and has an enormous sale. It is intended especially for acute throat and lung disease, such as coughs, colds and croup, and can always be depended upon. It is pleasant and safe to take and is undoubtedly the best in the market for the purposes for which it is intended. Sold at Dr. Stone's drug store.

Acute Rheumatism.

Deep tearing or wrenching pains, occasioned by getting wet through; worse when at rest, or on first moving the limbs and in cold or damp weather, is cured quickly by Ballard's Snow Liniment. Oscar Oleson Gibson City, Ill., writes, Feb. 16, '02. "A year ago I was troubled with a pain in my back. It soon got so bad I could not bend over. One bottle of Ballard's Snow Liniment cured me." Sold by D. J. Fry.

What Would You Do

If three good physicians should pronounce your case hopeless. If they should decide that you could not live longer than six weeks. And if you should get well, after using only $12.00 worth of Dr. Miles' Heart Cure and Nerve, what would you advise a friend in like condition to do?

"I have to thank you for saving my wife's life two years ago. We had continued with the doctor until the third doctor, like the two previous ones, said that nothing could be done for her; that she had better be taken home from the hospital to quietly wait her time, which would not be over six weeks at the most. I brought her home, and then I thought probably Dr. Miles' Heart Cure and Nerve might help her, so I got a bottle of each and some Nerve and Liver Pills and commenced to give them to her. We soon seen an improvement, and encouraged by this we continued giving the medicine. We gave her eleven bottles in all of the medicine. She takes it occasionally now if she feels the need. I am in the ministry, and have been for 44 years."

Reform of the Normal Schools.

In spite of the mad determination of the governor and a few other enemies of education to close the Drain normal, the school opened Monday with a much larger enrollment than was expected, and with very bright prospects for a successful year's work. The state board of regents re-elected the faculty of the school, as formerly announced in this paper, under the able direction of Pres. A. L. Briggs. The income, which made it possible for the school to open, amounts to $9200. Of this, $4200 is by donations, $5000 is from school taxes, and an unknown sum from tuition.—Drain Nonpareil.

The above deserves some comment, because it MIS-REPRESENTS THE ATTITUDE OF THE WHOLE NORMAL SCHOOL BOARD.

The new state law creating one board for all four normal schools, and forbidding that board to incur any indebtedness whatever, made it impossible to open the Drain or Monmouth schools on any other basis than that the communities back of them should assume all financial responsibility and NOT COME UPON THE NEXT LEGISLATURE WITH A LOT OF UNPAID BILLS.

The result of this policy is going to be to force all the normal schools upon a business basis, make them more nearly self-sustaining and give them a standing before the people they have never before enjoyed.

The whole subject of proper preparation of teachers for the public schools is TOO SERIOUS TO BE TREATED FROM A POLITICAL STANDPOINT. It must command the patriotic and whole-hearted support of educated men and women to arrive at any practical solution.

The new state normal school board has cut out all local and political consideration in the management of the state normal school problem.

They have tried to carry out the spirit of the law without crippling the sources from which must come the teacher with even the slightest preparation for public school work. They also realize that GOOD TEACHERS ARE PREPARED

ELSEWHERE THAN IN STATE AIDED SCHOOLS.

Reports from school trustees and superintendents in other states indicate a serious shortage of school teachers, although salaries are good and living conditions attractive.

The five normal schools of California have placed all their graduates and are entirely unable to meet the demand.

THE SHORTAGE IN THE TEACHING FORCE OF OREGON OUTSIDE THE CITIES AND TOWNS, HAS BEEN GROWING FOR THE PAST THREE OR FOUR YEARS.

Not only are teachers scarce for the country schools, but the figures published in Washington would seem to show an impending shortage in the supply of city pedagogues as well.

Teachers' salaries have been very largely increased throughout the state, but notwithstanding this fact the number of teachers seems to be dwindling. The minimum salaries in all Pacific coast cities have been increased in sums ranging from five to fifteen dollars a month.

In the rural schools of California very general advance has been made from salaries of sixty to seventy dollars a month to from seventy to eighty-five.

The rural teacher finds more attractions and fewer drawbacks about her work than characterize similar employment in the east. The charming climate, the opulence of surrounding nature, and the freedom of the western life, ALL COMBINE TO LEND ATTRACTIVENESS TO THE WORK.

The state normal school board invites the co-operation of the best citizenship of Oregon to help solve the problem, how to get large supply of better equipped public school teachers, because that is the greatest educational problem before the people of every state in the northwest. To this end we must utilize our high schools and colleges and universities.

The Limit of Life.

The most eminent medical scientists are unanimous in the conclusion that the generally accepted limitation of human life is many years below the attainment possible with the advanced knowledge of which the race is now possessed. The critical period, that determines its duration, seems to be between 50 and 60; the proper care of the body during this decade cannot be too strongly urged; carelessness then being fatal to longevity. Nature's best helper after 50 is Electric Bitters, the scientific tonic medicine that revitalizes every organ of the body. Guaranteed by J. C. Perry, druggist. 50c

His Mistake.

"The neighbors complain that you are maintaining a nuisance."
"I wish you'd speak to my wife about it; it's her fault."
"It's her dog, then?"
"Oh, it's the dog you've come about. I thought it was my mother-in-law."—Houston Post.

The old remedies are the best. Hickory Bark Cough Remedy has been in use for over one hundred years by the old Dutch Dunkards of Pennsylvania, and is still in use by all the old families of Western Pennsylvania. It is absolutely pure; made from the bark of the white or shell-bark hickory tree. The bark is shipped to Salem, Ore. For sale by all dealers everywhere.

Poor Henry.

"Henry, do I look like you when I have your hat on?"
"I don't know, M'ria; why?"
"I wore your hat out in the yard today and mother told me it made me look like a fool."—Houston Post.

She Found Relief.

If you are troubled with liver complaint and have not received help read this. Mrs. Mary E. Hammond, Moody, Texas. "I was in poor health—with liver trouble—for over a year. Doctors did me no good and I tried Herbine, and three bottles cured me. I can't say too much for Herbine, as it is a wonderful liver medicine. I always have it in the house. Publish where you wish." Sold by D. J. Fry.

"I want a plain cook."
"Well, you'll find plenty here. This ain't no beauty show."—Baltimore American.

Had Tetter for Thirty Years.

I have suffered with tetter for 30 years and have tried almost countless remedies with little, if any relief. Three boxes of Chamberlain's Salve cured me. It was a torture. It breaks out a little sometimes, but nothing to what it used to do.—D. H. Beach, Midland City, Ala. Chamberlain's Salve is for sale at Dr. Stone's drug store.
