Music Classes at the University.

The Philharmonic, a choral society, composed of all the musical people of both the University and the city, will meet every Monday evening in the University chapel at 8 o'clock. All who helped in the state fair chorus, or ever sang in a choir, or even if you never sang in any chorus, but have a fairly good voice, all these are cordially invited to come next Monday evening and help to start off with a splendid chorus for this season's work.

On Wednesday evenings will be a sight singing class for all who wish to learn to read music at sight. During the coming winter, all who will try can become very efficient readers of music. On next Saturday morning at 9:25 o'clock will be organized a beginning children's singing class, and at 10:10 an advanced children's singing class. These classes are intended for children from 5 to 13 years of age. Since there is no music taught in the public schools, this will be an excellent opportunity for children to study music at a very low rate of tuition. Come to the first lesson and learn full particulars about the work to be done.

Veracity.

Question twelve, the last of the history examination paper, was extremely puzzling to a clever lady student "What was the fate of Rameses the Second?" it ran, and for several minutes the fair aspirant for university laurels strove to recollect details of this monarch's career, but without result. Being, however, a person of resource, she replied as follows: "Varied and interesting as was the career of this remarkable potentate, he could not escape the common fate of humanity. He died many centuries ago!"—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Don't Neglect Your Eyes

The time is now approaching when your eyes need attention. The evenings are short and to strain your eyes may result fatally in the end, if neglected.

School children's eyes should be looked after before starting them to school. Those wearing glasses should have them examined to see they are still correct. Don't delay and see Salem's best eyesight specialist.
