

DEDICATES THE MONUMENT.

One Hundred Thousand Present at Ceremonies.

Canton, O., Sept. 30.—With an address by President Roosevelt, in which he paid a glowing tribute to the late President McKinley, the McKinley monument was dedicated today. The President arrived at 10 a. m. and was immediately driven to the school house, where he addressed the high school students. He was then taken in front of the monument, he, with 4000 people, witnessing the unveiling. Fully 100,000 people were in the city to hear his address. Two thousand regular army soldiers and 1000 police protected the President and kept the crowd in order.

Don't Neglect Your Eyes

The time is now approaching when your eyes need attention. The evenings are short and to strain your eyes may result fatally in the end, if neglected.

School children's eyes should be looked after before starting them to school. Those wearing glasses should have them examined to see if they are still correct. Don't delay, and see Salem's best eyesight specialist.

SCHOOLS OPEN TODAY.

Attendance is Large and Will Eclipse All Former Years.

The city schools opened today in a seemingly flourishing condition, the pupils turning out in crowds from all directions. From present appearances it looks as if it were going to be a banner year for Salem, in the way of school attendance.

The high school attendance, from the large crowd of pupils that gathered there this morning, looks as if it were going to eclipse all past records. The teaching facilities have been made ready for this expected large attendance by the addition of three new teachers to the faculty. These are Miss Edna Pearl Luckey, formerly of the Eugene high school, who will be in the English department; Miss Lottie Devoe, also in the English department, and Miss Jean Tuttle, who will assist in mathematics.

At the High School.

A short session was held at the high school this morning, and the few changes explained by Prof. Marshall and Superintendent Powers. One important change concerning the enrollment was that pertaining to non-resident pupils, who have heretofore been paying no tuition, but who after this will be charged a tuition of $2 per month, or $9 a term. This change was made necessary by the large attendance of about 60 non-resident pupils last year, compelling the employment of two extra teachers. This fee charged is just the cost of the instruction which they receive, and is a very fair deal for them.

The complete change in the school text this year will, no doubt, cause a great deal of talk and complaining, but the change was made for the pupils' own good, and it is claimed that better results in instruction can be obtained from the use of the new books than those used formerly. But it is to be hoped that this will be the last change for some time, as it works a hardship on some of the parents in having to furnish these new books, although the old ones may be traded in at the book stores in part payment for the new ones.

To Organize Football.

The high school football men will have their first tryout practice on the Willamette grounds tonight, under the coaching of Chauncey Bishop, who is going to give the team some coaching during his spare time, about three times a week. Captain Lloyd Farmer has been going the rounds of material, and says he is going to have a large squad out for the first night. Manager George Cartwright has several games already, but no definite dates can yet be announced.

The Klinger Grand.

The management of the Klinger Grand theatre has been lucky in securing "The Norwoods," a comedy team that has the reputation of being the best on the coast, also J. W. Woods, a favorite as a monologist. In all, the bill presented this week promises to be a treat for the patrons of this vaudeville house, and we know it will be well recommended by all who witness this performance. Two performances nightly. Regular matinee Saturday for ladies and children.

Roosevelt Dedicates McKinley Monument.

Canton, O., Sept. 30.—With an address by President Roosevelt, in which he paid a glowing and tender tribute to the martyr president, the McKinley national monument was dedicated today.

Governor Harris, of Ohio, presided at the exercises and on the speaker's stand with the President were cabinet members, supreme court justices, senators, representatives, foreign ambassadors and diplomats and many other distinguished men. Miss Helen McKinley, niece of the president, unveiled the statue.

President Roosevelt arrived this morning and was escorted to the high school for the children's salutation, after which he reviewed the parade from a stand on the public square. At the school building all the public and parochial school children of the city were massed, and joined in singing "America" and "The Star Spangled Banner." The President delivered a brief speech to the youngsters.

The parade was the most imposing ever seen on the streets of Canton, the marchers including United States troops, state militia, patriotic organizations, members of the Grand Army, fraternal bodies and several bands. Both union and non-union bands marched in the parade, a special order permitting this having been issued by the president of the National Federation of Musicians.

After reviewing the parade, the President and other distinguished guests of the city were tendered a luncheon at the auditorium, after which they proceeded to the monument.

An invocation by the Rev. F. M. Bristol, of Washington, opened the exercises. Associate Justice Wm. R. Day, of the United States supreme court, was then introduced by Governor Harris, and told briefly of the work of the National McKinley Memorial association, of which he is president. Then came the President's speech—a tender, loving eulogy of the man who passed away at Buffalo over six years ago, whispering "God wills it so," leaving to his successor of today the glories and the cares of the chief executive of a great nation.

Following the President's address the thousands of spectators joined in singing "The Star Spangled Banner," sending up a mighty volume of melody that was heard throughout the city. James Whitcomb Riley recited a poem prepared for the occasion. Bishop Horstman, of Cleveland, pronounced the benediction.

The McKinley national monument was erected at a cost of half a million dollars and was paid for by funds gathered from every state and territory of the union. An additional $100,000 has also been raised for an endowment fund, from the earnings of which the magnificent marble memorial will be maintained and kept in repair.

The mausoleum proper is constructed entirely of pink Milford granite, and the interior finished with Knoxville marble. H. Van Buren Mazonigle of New York was the architect.

The McKinley National Memorial association numbers among its honorary members President Roosevelt and the governors of every state and territory in the union. The trustees in charge of the work, nearly all of whom were present at today's exercises, include Vice-President Fairbanks, Justice William R. Day, Sec

Want School Books—

The book stores are selling school books on the installment plan today. That is the crowds became so large that it became necessary to lock the doors when the store was full, as the rush was so great that no one could be waited on. When all inside were waited on the doors were opened and another crowd admitted. This has been kept up all day. You ought to look in the window and see Hal Patton work.

X-RAYS

The Salem Journal seems to think that if Heney would take the stump against Fulton that it would be the biggest kind of advertisement, and would result in his election sure. We would recall to that person's attention the fact that whenever Heney has said that a certain thing was a fact he has proven it—Abe Ruef, for instance, and further Mr. Heney doesn't care for the buzzing of small mosquitos.—Forest Grove Times. It is evident from this that Heney doesn't subscribe for the Times.

A man down in Texas is building a monument to John D. Rockefeller, whom he considers the greatest man in the world. One side of the monument has this inscription: "Christopher Columbus discovered the country." "George Washington liberated the country." "Abraham Lincoln united the country." "John D. Rockefeller illuminated the country."

The horse editor suggest that on the other side might be added: "God made the country; Columbus discovered it; Washington freed it, and John D. Rockefeller took a mortgage on it as part payment for the oil he took out of it."

Mrs. Waymire says she ought to have killed Mayor Lane. If her picture does her justice, and Lane even thought of being guilty, she had.

The dispatches announced Saturday that a man in Idaho fell dead while defying God to kill him, and today the wires tell of the death of a Sunday school teacher who expired while singing a hymn.

Ezra Meeker has found out that, while "bulls" are plentiful in New York, the kind he drove are back numbers in that city. He is a sort of pathetic figure with his primitive outfit and old-fashioned ideas, back in the whirl of a modern city, but there are others in Oregon who do not realize that the world has gone beyond the ox team stage.

A Lewiston, Idaho, woman gave her 16-months-old baby a bottle of carbolic acid to play with, and is now as near crazy over the child pulling the cork and drinking a part of the acid as she was idiotic in giving the baby the bottle.
