Judge Galloway Holds Court—

Judge William Galloway, of Mc Minnville, arrived in the city this morning and convened an adjourned session of the circuit court this afternoon. The suit of Mansfield vs. Hill, a will case, is being heard.

Pioneer Dead—

J. S. Morris, a pioneer of the Willamette valley, passed away at his home at Scio Monday, September 30, 1907, of heart disease. He was one of Scio's most highly respected citizens and business men, having been the proprietor of a drug store in his home town for many years. The funeral was held from the family residence this afternoon.

Supreme Court—

The supreme court will meet next Monday, after its summer vacation, and will hear the following cases: Monday, Waterhouse & Kabath vs. Clatsop County and J. C. Clinton; Tuesday, examination of students for admission to the bar; Wednesday, Reeder et al vs. Reeder; Thursday, State vs. Kline and McMains, and Summers vs. Geer.

Quarantined in Independence—

In answer to an inquiry regarding Frances Brown and children, who are involved in a habeas corpus proceeding in the circuit court the health officer of Independence writes that Mrs. Brown and her children are under quarantine at present in his city for being exposed to diphtheria. A child by the name of Waverly Deach, who lived in the same dwelling with the Browns, died recently of the disease.

Asks Guardianship Appointment—

W. U. Baltimore has petitioned the Marion county court to be appointed guardian of his two grandchildren, Ruby Walker and Frank Walker, minors, now residents of this county. The mother of the children was killed by their father, who has recently been adjudged insane by the superior court of Whatcom county, Washington, and placed in the asylum in that state. The children have no property.

HEPPE SUCCEEDS WILSON

The Oregon State Methodist Conference at Portland came to a most interesting climax at Grace M. E. church yesterday morning, when Bishop Moore announced that Rev. Clarence True Wilson, pastor of the church where the announcement was made, would be transferred to the Centenary Methodist church, on the East Side, and that Rev. W. H. Heppe, pastor of the latter church, would lead Wilson's flock henceforth.

Benjamin Young, of Salt Lake, will succeed F. Burgette Short at the Taylor street church.

These are the strongest congregations in the Methodist denomination in the Northwest, and each has communicants running into the thousands. That any radical changes had been contemplated by the highest dignitary of the conference was utterly undreamed of, so the announcement of the exchange of pulpits of the Centenary and Grace churches came like a clap of thunder out of a clear sky. The large crowd of church and lay delegates, particularly those representing the congregations directly affected, sat in perplexed silence for some moments, hardly appreciating what was going on.

It is not an unusual thing in the Methodist church for pastors to be transferred from one charge to another. In fact, it is a custom of that denomination for the bishop to make any changes he desires "for the good of the church" whenever he deems it necessary or expedient. It was under the provisions of this rule that this morning's transfers were brought about, both Heppe and Wilson having occupied their present pastorates more than three years. The transfers, however, are a purely discretionary prerogative of the bishop, not mandatory.

Other transfers of minor importance were made, but the exchange of pulpits between the two leading divines of the faith, the one among the most fashionable and wealthy in the city, and the other greatest in numerical strength, was not looked for.

The announcement came without comment by the bishop, so the reason for it, as viewed by the delegates, resolves itself into merely being "for the good of the church."

DIED.

STARR—At the home of her sister, Mrs. Asa Tindall, at Twelfth and D streets, in this city, Monday, September 30, 1907, at 8:20 p. m., Mrs. Nannie V. Starr, aged 33 years.

Mrs. Starr is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Bell, of Portland. She formerly resided in San Francisco, where she lived at the time of the great earthquake, and where, during the disaster, she was severely burned, which resulted in nervous troubles, from which she never fully recovered.

Beside her sister, her father and mother and her husband survive her.

The funeral services will be conducted from the residence tomorrow, Wednesday, at 10 a. m. Interment in the Claggett cemetery.

BORN.

DALRYMPLE.—At the family home No. 470 Eighteenth street, Salem, Oregon, September 30, 1907, at 9:30 o'clock a. m., to Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Dalrymple, a son.

CITY NEWS

A Collection of Important Paragraphs for Your Consideration

Post Card Hall—

New subjects daily.

Carpenters to Meet—

Carpenters' Union No. 1065 will have an open meeting at their hall over Harriett's grocery store, Saturday evening October 12. There will be speaking and music, and refreshments will be served. The affair is free, and all carpenters and their families, regardless of whether they are union men or not, are invited.

To Have New Sidewalk—

The old board walk which has rested for so many years in front of the Hubbard property on State street near High has been torn up and soon a new cement walk is to take its place. Seventy cents in small change was picked up yesterday from the rubbish which was under the old timber walk.

Fell From Tree—

The 7-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Gilliam, of North Salem, fell from the branches of a tree at the home last evening, and sustained a fracture of his hip. Dr. Morse was summoned and reduced the fracture. No serious complications are anticipated.

Provided the "Kicks"—

Eyre & Mapletorpe, proprietors of the Salem Shoe Store, have made themselves warm friends of the high school by presenting each member of the football team with a first-class pair of football shoes. The gift is thoroughly appreciated by the players, and when the team gets in shape and playing in them, and with the help of some vigorous rooting by George Eyre on the sidelines, there will probably be few games lost.

The Name Is Changed—

Aug. Huckesteln, proprietor of the Salem cigar factory, has changed the name of his famous "Champion" cigar to the "Boa Ton." It will be better than ever, but the price will still be 5 cents.

Grandpa Twice—

Dr. Heritage never does things by halves, and the latest news comes to him double. It is a telegram from his son-in-law, Newton L. Hoyt, at Spokane, received this morning, as follows: "Just arrived, boy and girl." Classes are dismissed for the day, as the doctor's smile is so broad he can't sing. That's all.

George Wilson, the well-known debater of Willamette University, arrived from Portland last evening to resume his studies.

Warren Hunt, Lyle Lewis and Philip Kaiser have returned from Pendleton, where they filled a musical engagement at the fair held in that city last week.
