IN EXILE.

Morn, but no breath of pines;
 Noon, but no river's flow;
 Eve, but no sunset glory shines
 On Hood's eternal snow.

Sunrise, but not the hills,
 Or their forests wild and free;
 Twilight, but ah! no white sail fills
 With airs from the salt, blue sea!

Dawn, but no mountain's crest,
 Halo-crowned on high;
 Sunset, but never the ocean's breast
 Aflame with the burning sky.

Morn, but no waves at play,
 Noon, but no flowing tide;
 Night, but no breeze from down the bay
 Where the fishers' squadrons ride.

Morning and noon and night,
 Only in dreams for me
 The glow of Hood in the sunset light,
 The voice of the changeless sea.

AN EDITORIAL ANALYSIS OF THE DEMOCRATIC POLITICAL SITUATION.

The Capital Journal has a great many Democratic readers and likes to take a look at things once in a while from their standpoint of interest.

The position of Oregon as a factor in the makeup of the Democratic presidential ticket is a PIVOTAL ONE, AND IS ATTRACTING THE INTEREST OF THE ENTIRE NATION.

It is not assumed that a remote state like Oregon will receive any consideration at the hands of the national managers who figure only on New York and the middle west.

The provincialism of the Tammany politicians, and of eastern Democrats in general inclines them to overlook the far west AS HAVING ANYTHING TO SAY IN MAKING UP A TICKET.

But stranger things have happened than that Chamberlain of Oregon should have a place on the Democratic presidential ticket, and stranger things have happened than his nomination and election.

Let us consider then first of all the situation in which the New York Democracy finds itself.

The result of the Democratic primaries there is much more far reaching THAN APPEARS ON THE SURFACE OF THINGS.

The defeat of Mayor McClellan and the victory of Charles F. Murphy as leader of Tammany hall means that Murphy and his up-state friends will be able to control the vote of New York state in the next Democratic national convention.

That means that Murphy and his combination will be in a position to demand some recognition when the nominations are made.

They will probably continue to boom Chamberlain, who was the first Democrat to carry the state of New York in years, as a candidate for president.

Their real purpose, however, IS TO SECURE THE SECOND PLACE FOR THEIR CANDIDATE.

They believe that with Chandler as vice president they can carry the state of New York again for their candidate for governor and perhaps secure a Democratic legislature.

THE LATTER IS THE OBJECTIVE POINT, for with state government in their hands the Democratic political leaders who have been out of office for many years will be able to rehabilitate their machine.

The latter is still sadly in need of repairs, especially as the last campaign with its schism over William Randolph Hearst PROVED TOO MUCH OF A STRAIN ON THE ANCIENT CONCERN.

What Hearst expects to do and what attitude he will assume towards one or the other of the two national parties is not yet quite clear.

The announced intention of the Independence League TO GO IT ALONE IN THE NEXT CAMPAIGN on the heels of the published statement from Mr. Hearst that UNDER NO CIRCUMSTANCES WOULD HE BE AGAIN A CANDIDATE FOR PRESIDENT has confounded the politicians in both parties.

Hearst still holds the balance of power in the Empire state AND THEREFORE, as well as because of his influence in other localities HE MUST BE RECKONED WITH.

Mr. Hearst's admirers have been pointing with some pride to the similarity between the methods which he has advocated for many years for the control of corporations and the LEGISLATION ENACTED BY A REPUBLICAN CONGRESS AND BY LEGISLATURES OF BOTH PARTIES IN VARIOUS STATES during the past legislative session.

But even though this be admitted to be true, the result is merely this, that Mr. Hearst has been deprived of one of his best campaign arguments.

Nor has the administration of Governor Hughes, whom Hearst so bitterly opposed, SERVED TO HELP THE HEARST PROPAGANDA.

He must therefore look for some new point of attack, something that the other parties have not yet taken up, and he has hit upon the judiciary as needing reform.

The attack made upon the bench at the state convention of the Independence League which was called to nominate candidates for the court of appeals HAS NEVER BEEN EQUALLED FOR VIOLENCE OF EXPRESSION AND DENUNCIATION.

It seems therefore likely that the Independence League will again take up the GOVERNMENT BY INJUNCTION ISSUE.

In connection with the states rights question the argument might prove attractive, if it were directed against the federal judiciary.

Prominent Democrats believe that William Jennings Bryan has at last STRUCK A GREAT POLITICAL KEYNOTE in his arraignment of the Roosevelt administration.

It is plain that the STATES RIGHTS WILL HAVE THE OPPOSITION OF THE VESTED INTERESTS.

The Republican party, being committed to the policy of centralization of government, will probably get the support of the capitalists IN SPITE OF MR. ROOSEVELT AND HIS POLICIES.

That an effort will be made to put the corporation tag on the Republican party.

It is well known that the Republican machine leaders ARE OPPOSED TO THE ADMINISTRATION.

The opinion is being very generally expressed that with Bryan, as the logical candidate of the Democrats, only Roosevelt stands between them and victory.

Should Roosevelt adhere to his announced decision not to run again, the Democratic party would have A FAIR CHANCE TO REACH THE WHITE HOUSE with its candidate.

This would be especially the case if the much heralded business depression should assume large proportion.

HIGHER PRICES FOR HOPS

A telegram from New York under date of October 6, says:

The sharp rise in the price of hops on the Pacific coast in the last two weeks has impressed the trade with the crop shortage in that section and the strong position generally of the hop markets of the world. A New York authority on hops has issued the following statement on the subject:

"The serious shortage in England's crop of hops naturally directs anxious attention to the crop of this country. The current hop demand in England is 400,000 bales (650,000 cwt.). The present crop of 200,000 bales (340,000 cwt.) therefore is not one-half of the crop required for England's own consumption.

"Nor can England look to Continental crops for any reduction of her deficiency. The total European crop outside the British Isles is this year barely enough to supply home requirements. Belgium for example, which requires 60,000 bales of hops for home consumption, has a production of only 24,000 bales, a shortage of 36,000 bales which the balance of Continental Europe will find it hard to supply in view of the universal shortage.

"There remains only one market for England to turn to for 200,000 bales of hops to supply her deficiency—the market of the United States. But the United States can give no help. She has a shortage of her own to deal with. Against a current consumption of 280,000 bales there is a crop showing of only 240,000 bales distributed as follows: Oregon 100,000 bales, California 80,000 bales, Washington 30,000 bales, New York 30,000 bales. Thus the United States contributes a deficit of 40,000 bales to swell the shortage of the world's hop crop.

"Allowing therefore that Continental Europe can hold its own, which is doubtful, there remains a shortage in the world's hop supply of 240,000 bales.

"The question arises: What effect will this great shortage have upon prices?

"Looking back at the crop conditions in 1903 we face a situation that throws considerable light on the present condition and future possibilities of the hop market. In the year 1903 the American and Continental crops were practically the same as this year. But in 1903 the American consumption of hops was 75,000 bales less than is required to meet the present demand. And in that same year, when the American crop showed a surplus of 35,000 bales over demand, the English crop was also 50,000 bales larger than this year's production. Yet with the average hop supply of the current year, the price of hops in September was from 12 cents to 20 cents and by Christmas the price had gone to 30 cents. At present hops are selling on the coast at from 8 cents to 12 cents. Will Christmas show another advance to 30 cents?

"A comparison of the relation of hop productions to prices in 1903, shows that the same conditions which then caused such an advance in price exist today, and these conditions of shortage and inferior crops are even greater than in 1903 when hops went to 30 cents."

The Oregonian commenting on this says:

The statement of the New York hop man is interesting and if his facts and figures are correct, it will be most gratifying to the hop growers of this state. The Oregonian thinks, however, he has overlooked some important details. While the American crop may not be as small as he puts it, it is considerably less than that of last year. On the other hand the output of Continental Europe, even including Belgium, is acknowledged to be far in excess of that of 1906. But what is hurting the market and making very high prices unlikely is the big surplus of the 1906 crop that was carried over into this season, and is yet to be disposed of. The New York expert seems to have forgotten about the surplus. Still, the market is strong at the moment, as the shorts have numerous sales to cover, and prices may advance several cents over the current quotation of 16 cents.

Happy comedy and lots of it is to be found in the newest comedy drama "Uncle Josh Perkins." The play is by Lem. B. Parker, whose name is to be found attached to many successful productions that have pleased our theater-goers for the past several seasons.

A Certain Cure for Croup—Used for Ten Years without a Failure.

Mr. W. C. Bott, a Star City, Ind., hardware merchant, is enthusiastic in his praise of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. His children have all been subject to croup and he has used this remedy for the past ten years, and though they much feared the croup, his wife and he always felt safe upon retiring when a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy was in the house. His oldest child was subject to severe attacks of croup, but this remedy never failed to effect a speedy cure. He has recommended it to friends and neighbors and all who have used it say that it is unequalled for croup and whooping cough. For sale at Dr. Stone's drug store.
