HEART'S SEASONS.

When the Earth was flushed and the trees were young
 And the bluebirds called from an April sky,
 Beyond where the moon's slim cradle swung
 Life's long, long vistas before us hung
 Half-veiled in tears, though we knew not why;
 For hearts were yearning—but on the tongue
 The slow words faltered, and lips were shy.

When the Earth was green and the trees were strong
 And the river sang to the warm, white sun,
 The hours were blithe and the days were long,
 For life was working, and work was song—
 No wailing minor of things undone—
 And not black discord of hopes gone wrong:
 Life's sands were many, and slow to run.

When the Earth is bleak and the trees are pale
 And the east wind cries through the falling rain,
 Draw close, dear heart, from the rising gale;
 We'll measure bravely our meager tale
 Of wide, poor stubble and scanty grain.
 But, dear, we have tried; if the harvest fall
 The Lord of the Harvest will count our pain.

When the trees are gay and the Earth is white
 And the northwind sings in the chimney stone,
 Then, hand in hand, we will wait the night;
 With quiet hearts, we will say good night.
 Dear heart, was not all the year our own?
 There is no darkness Love cannot light—
 We'll face, together, the great Unknown!
 —In September Everybody's.

GREATER WILLAMETTE AND GREATER SALEM.

The Capital Journal gives a great deal of space today to the promotion work of Willamette University Endowment fund. For the good name of Salem let it be said, this city has never turned a deaf ear to the DEMANDS OF EDUCATIONAL INSTITUTIONS. That sum of $30,000 towards the endowment of Willamette should be raised in the characteristic way of Salem—in one day. A greater university, with quarter of a million endowment, and a thousand students, means A GREATER SALEM, A GREATER OREGON. Oregon is growing so fast, it behooves us to keep pace with the state. We are in danger of falling behind. With paving of our streets, with an endowment for our university, with a new electric railroad coming in to the city, SALEM IS IT. Civic spirit and civic pride should dictate the quickest and heartiest response to the needs of the hour. Salem should sustain the Willamette endowment not because of Methodism, but BECAUSE IT IS IN THE INTEREST OF OUR CAPITAL CITY. This community should do just as much to endow any similar institution with similar change of growth, Catholic, Episcopal, Jew or gentile.

BUSINESS METHODS IN PUBLIC AFFAIRS.

The battle of the business men in the city council has not been against individuals but for better methods. The struggle of the business members of the Salem school board has not been against anyone member but TO ENFORCE ORDERLY PROCEDURE. That abuses creep into public affairs is not the fault of anyone in particular, but the result of accumulating errors. With increasing public intelligence BETTER RESULTS ARE DEMANDED IN ADMINISTRATION. The report of the grand jury on the North Commercial street bridge will be awaited with great interest by the public. The decision of the circuit court on the letting of the contract for cementing the floor of the North Salem school WAS BENEFICIAL. Hereafter it will be understood that the chairman of a city council committee will not be able to do business without the rest of his committee. Hereafter a single member of the school board cannot go ahead and let a big contract on his own notion, OR BY HIS OWN INDIVIDUAL ACTION. These are steps in the evolution of civic development that have to be fought out in the public forum, AND IN THE PRESS. If this paper has said a word that has grated harshly on the nerves of any of its readers, it humbly apologizes. It was a public duty.

THE PALMING OFF OF SUBSTITUTES.

One of the greatest frauds practiced today is the palming off on the people of substituted articles. When you have the money and are ready to pay you ought to GET WHAT YOU ASK FOR. The advertisers in this paper are competitors in the open market. There are many reasons why you ask for advertised articles, but absolutely none why you should let a substituting dealer palm off something which he claims to be "JUST AS GOOD" OR "BETTER" OR "THE SAME THING" as the article you requested. The advertised article must of necessity be of the highest quality, otherwise it could not be successfully sold and the advertising continued. Some of the articles advertised in this paper cannot be substituted. The buying public recognizes the superior quality of advertised articles. THE SUBSTITUTOR REALIZES THAT FACT AND TRIES TO SELL INFERIOR GOODS ON THE ADVERTISER'S REPUTATION. PROTECT YOURSELF BY REFUSING SUBSTITUTES. For instance there is no substitute in this community for The Capital Journal. It is a newspaper in a class all by itself, and the abuse of those who find it in their way has only helped it along.

THE BACHELOR WOMAN.

The bachelor woman of the present day and age is an important factor in society and in modern civilization. Many of these bachelor women fill important places in the domestic economy of families with their multiplying wants. The bachelor woman owes it to herself and to society to dress well without being gaudy or MAKING A FASHION PLATE OF HERSELF. Walking and physical exercise are important. But a quiet hour for mental recreation and spiritual refreshment ARE ALSO VITALLY NECESSARY. The society of children is a valuable help to freshness and vivacity in the life of anyone, and especially the single woman. With literature and music, with friends and flowers, with childhood to brighten part of the day the bachelor woman is not the most forlorn individual in the world.

The Late John Paul Jones Made Subject of Circular Letter By the Company

Generally when a man has given his best for a great corporation, unless indeed he becomes its real head, his death causes but little ripple in that corporation's life. There is a promotion somewhere—a new name takes its place on the pay roll, and except that those who were closely associated with him mention his fine traits or recall some pleasant incident occasionally, he is forgotten. It is on this account that a departure from this rule becomes more noticeable. The Journal notes, and commends the action of General Passenger Agent Murray and others in authority in the Southern Pacific, in officially calling the attention of the agents of the company and its other employees, to the passing of one intimately associated with them. A tribute of this kind is rare indeed, and as unexpected and surprising as a wild flower that finds place to bloom in some protected niche within a busy city. A few days ago there was issued from the general passenger department of the S. P. at Portland, the following circular letter:

Death of John Paul Jones.
 To Agents:
 John Paul Jones, traveling passenger agent of the Southern Pacific company (lines in Oregon), died at the Good Samaritan hospital, Portland, Oregon, Saturday morning, October 12, 1907, after a lingering illness of more than five months. He was first taken sick early in May, while accompanying an excursion of Portland Shriners to Los Angeles to attend their annual pilgrimage in that city, and except for occasional periods of short duration, he did not rally afterward.

Mr. Jones was one of the veterans of the railroad service of the northwest. He came to Oregon from Missouri in 1881, and soon afterward accepted the position of forage master of the Oregon & California railroad, at that time pushing construction work south of Roseburg. In 1887 he was appointed traveling passenger agent, which position he retained until his death. The peculiar duties of his position made it necessary for him to mingle with people everywhere, at all times and under all circumstances, and a fitting tribute to his long and faithful service was the high regard, confidence and affection of all who knew him. Though mild of manner he was of strong personality, gentle, courteous, and lovable, and the announcement of his death, even though hourly expected, is the occasion for widespread sorrow and regret. The funeral took place in Salem, under the impressive service of the Knights Templar of that city, of which fraternity he was an honored member. He was also an Elk and a Maccabee. His widow and aged mother survive him, both residing on his farm near Salem. Wm. McMurray, General Passenger Agent, Portland, Oregon. Chas. S. Fee, Passenger Traffic Manager, San Francisco, Cal. John M. Scott, Asst. General Passenger Agent, Portland, Oregon.

How to Cure a Cold.
 The question of how to cure a cold without unnecessary loss of time in which we are all more or less interested, for the quicker a cold is gotten rid of the less danger of pneumonia and other serious diseases. Mr. B. W. L. Hall of Waverly, Va., has used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for years and says: "I firmly believe Chamberlain's Cough Remedy to be absolutely the best preparation on the market for colds. I have recommended it to my friends and they all agree with me." For sale at Dr. Stone's drug store.
