

PE-RU-NA RECEIVES PRAISE

For Relieving Such Symptoms as Debility, Backache and Headache.

THERE are a great many phases of woman's ailments that require the assistance of the surgeon. But by far the greater number of such cases are amenable to correct medicinal treatment.

No surgeon in the world has relieved so many women from the different phases of ailments peculiar to woman-kind as Dr. Hartman through the use of Peruna.

Here receives many letters from all parts of the country relating to subjects of vital interest to womankind.

Of the vast multitude of women Dr. Hartman cures annually, only a small per cent. of them consider it necessary to write to the Doctor at all.

Not one in a thousand of these fortunate women report their success. Of those who do write testimonials, only a very small per cent. are ever used in public print.

While it is not affirmed that Peruna will cure every case of this kind, it is certainly the part of wisdom for every woman so afflicted to give Peruna a fair trial. Her chances of relief are so many that any woman would be doing herself an injustice to neglect such an opportunity of relief.

Mrs. EMMA E. GILDNER

Mrs. Emma E. Gildner, 729 Santa Fe Ave., Denver, Col., Financial Secretary Germania Order der Haragari, writes: "Peruna has been a great blessing to me. I suffered agonies with severe headaches and a weak back and could hardly drag myself around."

"A friend who was visiting me was taking Peruna for the same trouble and induced me to try it. I soon found that I was being helped and in less than three weeks I felt like a different woman and in four months I was well. Peruna certainly gave me strength."

"I consider it an ideal woman's remedy."

Very Precarious Condition.

Mrs. Lottie Ward, 617 Tracy Ave., Kansas City, Mo., writes: "A few years ago my health was in a very precarious condition, the result of womb trouble and general debility. I suffered a great deal and was glad to try Peruna when it was recommended to me so highly. I found it very beneficial. In a short time the pains greatly decreased and in two months I was completely restored."

"I am pleased to endorse Peruna."

POLITICAL UNREST IN INDIA

The world's political center of gravity is changing. If one were asked to name the four or five most significant events that have happened during the last twelve months he should include among them these three: The adoption of a constitutional form of government by Persia, the insistence by the last session of the Indian national congress upon the rights of the Indian people as British subjects to govern themselves, and the decree issued by the emperor of China calling upon the Chinese to prepare so that within two years that empire would be ready to adopt a constitutional form of government.

India is well within the circle of this world movement. There are many things to indicate that the people of India are slowly finding themselves, are coming to their own. Everywhere there is ferment and a murmur of discontent. The cry, "Mother mataram!" (Hail to the mother country) is heard throughout the land, and "swaraj" (home rule) and "swadeshi" (home country) have become words of magic to conjure with. What does it all mean? Briefly and fundamentally it means this: A new nation is about to be born.

There are three dominant notes in the murmur of discontent, one political, another industrial, and the third religious and social. During Christmas week in 1906 Dadabhai Naoroji, a Parsee gentleman of Bombay, for some years past resident in England and formerly a member of the British parliament, in the course of his presidential address at the opening of the twenty-second session of the Indian national congress, insisted upon the right of the Indian people as British subjects to govern themselves and asked that this right be realized. There were nearly 10,000 delegates and visitors present, and the address was received with a tumult of applause. The members of the congress belong, for the most part, to the Moderate party. They maintain an attitude of confidence toward the British government, and believe that in the end they will gain what they ask by persistent agitation. They do not on any account wish the guiding hand of the British raj to be withdrawn, for they know full well that the people of India are not yet ready to take the government into their own hands. There is, on the other hand, an "Extreme" party, led by such men as Bal Gangadhar Tilak of Poona, Bipin Chandra Pal of Calcutta and Lala Lajpat Rai of Lahore, who openly assert that it is useless to continue to ask the government for what they want; that to do so is to play the part of beggars, and that the thing to do is to take by force what they cannot get otherwise.—American Review of Reviews.

HABIT GROWING

Canon Welch rendered a good service by his straight and rather courageous words of denunciation touching the social habits of not a few of Toronto's "four hundred," and the general increase not only in drinking, but also in drunkenness. The sermon, addressed to a Massey hall audience composed largely of militia forces of Toronto and the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company of Massachusetts, was a timely warning against a growing evil in Canadian life. And it required not only the prophet's sense of public responsibility, but also his fearlessness for the preacher from St. James' to strike so direct a blow at one of the chief sins of the social circles to which not a few of those who heard his words belong.

Canon Welch is quite within the mark in his estimate of the downward tendencies during the past ten years. Not only do the police records show an alarming increase in the number of convictions for drunkenness, but those who know the habits of society as seen at small pleasure parties, at social functions, at private and semi-private dinners and at banquets of various sorts, know right well that the use of wines and liquors has considerably increased and is now common in circles where it was unknown ten years ago. The increase of the drink habit among women is even more alarming than among men. Not only at private parties, but also on semi-public occasions at leading downtown restaurants and hotels the ugly facts are too often forced into prominence.

A variety of causes contributes to the present situation. The influx of people from Britain, where the drink habit is more prevalent, has provided recruits for the roll of drunkenness at both ends of the social scale. The shifting of the emphasis in the temperance crusade from the total abstinence of the individual to prohibition by the state has allowed the growth of a generation very largely untainted and unpledged, so far as personal convictions and habits are concerned. The general prosperity of the country, providing an abundance for the average man and luxury for not a few, has made possible excessive expenditures in all directions, and with many excess in eating and drinking and dressing is the most desirable way of using surplus wealth. Among women, especially among a certain class of young women, the foolish notion that drinking champagne is "chic," just a little bit wicked, is sufficient reason for acquiring the habit.—Toronto Globe.

Rheumatism is caused by the improper working of the kidneys. The uric acid which should be removed from the blood remains in it. Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea removes the cause and drives it from the system. 35 cents. Tea or Tablets. For sale at Dr. Stone's store.

A Union of French Beggars. Not long ago an Austrian association of dancing masters sought redress at the hands of the law for the infringement of their prerogative by an unfortunate doctor of medicine who had found it impossible to make a living by the practice of his own profession. But the most remarkable trade union of which we have heard is one in the south of France formed by beggars for the suppression of unqualified practice.

A meeting of street singers and of the lame, the halt and the blind who extract voluntary contributions from the charitable public was held at Marseilles, a one-legged man being in the chair, for the purpose of organizing themselves into a body strong enough to resist the encroachments of pretenders. The association was duly constituted, with statutes and by-laws. It was de-

Compliance with this condition may not be altogether easy to enforce, for the limitation of diseases is a fine art. Readers of the life of Ambrose Paree may remember that when he was still a barber's apprentice he won some reputation in his native town by the exposure of a beggar who used to stand at the door of the parish church exposing to the pity of the faithful a frightful fungating tumor of the arm, which proved to be a piece of decomposed mutton. Since the foundation of the association two one-legged men—named, we learn from the Journal des Debats, Roisin and Carlier—have started on a mission, delivering addresses wherever they go, warning the public against impostors.

The headquarters of the association are to be in Paris, and the organization will be under the direction of one Doussineau, who though he walks on crutches, is said to be a man of devouring activity, going no end down beating up recruits. Somedifficultly seems to have arisen in regard to contributions, many of the members preferring to keep their earnings to themselves. A feeling of uneasiness seems also to exist lest the list of members should find its way into undesirable hands.—British Medical Journal.

The Motor Car in Fiction.

We have learned to bear the speeding motor car of the crossways, and have grown used to its chug, chug, as it brings the odors of the nether world to our sweet, leafy country roads, but it is with a certain dismay that we realize how fully the last retreat of a quiet mind, literature, has been invaded by the machine. I can think of few recent American tales where it has not been a chief feature. We can dodge it upon the highway, but who can dodge it in the magazines? The escaping villain uses it, only to be overtaken by the victorious hero in one of better make; the eloping lovers find it indispensable; philanthropy disdains any other vehicle for swift rescue of suffering; birth and death seem unworthy, and burglary unsuccessful unless associated with it; and in the matter of adventure, whether it dashes off the cliff into the sea, or wrecked by striking miners, serves as a barricade for the besieged capitalist, it has no rival. We find it pictured on every spot of earth from desert sand to mountain height, and Kipling's "They" shows it running between the visible world and the invisible. It has dimmed the glory of football tale, tar-
