halcyon days as butterfly wings in rainbow rays, its folds raising and falling around and above her nimble feet like clouds carressed by summer winds, bending and swaying in harmonious motion to the enticing music played. The royal dancer floats like a bubble on the palace terraces, bewitching the intoxicated monarch, who first offers half his kingdom, but finally grants the head of John, the Baptist, as a reward for sensuous delight is never lost; the conspiracy and its fateful ending hidden for the moment by the alluring acting seldom witnessed on the stage.

Miss Morey, who will appear as Salome, the daughter of King Herod is a typical Southern girl, being reared in that grand old historical town of St. Augustine, and is of the clear and magnetic type, so fitted for the beautiful daughter of Gallilee. Miss Morey is supported by an exceptionally clever cast of metropolitan fame, and a very beautiful night's entertainment is guaranteed to all who attend.

"The Lion and the Mouse,"

Charles Klein's great play, "The Lion and the Mouse," which Henry B. Harris will produce here at the Grand opera house tonight, contains elements of vital interest to all classes of people. One, a portrait of the octopus of finance who stern in his attitude to all, even to his wife and children, is relentless to his enemy, treading under his golden heel all those who oppose him or his colossal schemes. The other is a characterization of a young and beautiful girl, the daughter of the Judge who is being driven to the wall with impeachment and disgrace as the result of his righteous decision against the trusts. So that in "The Lion and the Mouse" Mr. Klein has given us an idea of the influence of money and politics in the affairs of the general public today. For the interpretation of the most successful of plays Henry B. Harris has gathered together an exceptionally fine cast and its advent here should prove a most interesting one. Despite the fact of the excellence of the attraction there will be no advance in prices.

Proposals Invited.

Proposals invited for supplies for the Oregon state penitentiary for the period ending June 30th, 1908.

Sealed bids for drugs, dry goods, groceries, butter, leather and findings, hardware, flour, meat and wood will be received in the office of the superintendent of the state penitentiary, until Monday, December 30th, at 2 o'clock p. m., at which time they will be opened.

A deposit of $200 in cash or certified check, payable to the superintendent, must accompany each bid for meat and flour, and all other bids must be accompanied by an amount equal to 10 per cent of the amount of the bid.

Samples to accompany all bids, where practicable. The right is reserved to reject any and all bids and to accept or reject any portion of a bid. On each envelope should be inscribed the nature of the bid. Goods of Oregon manufacture or production will receive preference, other things being equal.

All goods and supplies must be delivered to the penitentiary within twenty days after the contract is awarded.

Wood required is 400 cords of first growth and 800 cords of second growth fir wood for delivery between the first day of May and the first day of October, 1908.

Schedules of the various lines of goods to be bid on will be furnished upon the application to the superintendent.

Vouchers will be issued for payment on the first of the month following the completion of the contract, and monthly on continuous contract.

LUELLA MOREY

SALOME

This is Original Salome of Biblical Fame.

At the Grand opera house on Tuesday, December 17, the original Salome of allegorical fame will hold full sway, and this is the one after which all others have patterned.

And though the Salome of Oscar Wilde's creation has already died, the death-scarving of such an immoral character as the grand opera Salome was painted. While Mr. Wilde's Salome created more than the usual excitement while New York theatergoers would tolerate such a creature as Wilde's creation, still this much heralded Salome has passed from New York's theaters forever. Too bad she was ever created.

But not so with the original Salome (as spelled in the Bible Salome) of Clarence Bennett's creation, for Mr. Bennett was a journalist and a writer, and his story of Jerusalem was written on his travels in the famous holy land, and the beautiful but thrilling narrative of John, the Baptist.

Mr. Bennett chose the most dramatic story ever told, the epoch covering the birth of Christianity provides scenes of vivid comparison. The arrogant and sensual splendor of Rome, shown with greater spiritual beauty of the humble followers of the master, presents enthralling contrasts. No more absorbing tragedy was ever conceived, no greater stage pictures ever presented, spectacular and powerful acting combined, scenes of enchantment inspire ennobling thought. Among the many brilliant scenes the Holy City presents, none is more sensationally superb than the one in which Salome, the beautiful daughter of Herodias, dances the dance of the seven veils, before King Herod and his court, in diaphanous drapery,
