THE CALIFORNIA BOYS.

Came Up From the Land of Sunshine, and Bring It With Them.

The Stanford Glee and Mandolin clubs arrived in this city this morning, in their private car, and are and have been entertained in most of the cities visited by various social functions, which have made the trip a most enjoyable one. They will render several sacred oratorios in the Congregational church in Portland tomorrow, and sing at the Hellig Monday evening. Judging from the advance sale this evening's performance promises to be one of the largest social events of the season. By request of the Stanford Club, in Salem, the stunt men will appear in the first part as well as the second.

"Why Girls Leave Home."

E. J. Carpenter's new offering, "Why Girls Leave Home," is a play which has created a great deal of interest throughout the east, and which is a strong melo-drama with MUSIC, FUN AND JOLLITY.

When the Stanford Glee and Mandolin Clubs Come.

The Stanford Glee and Mandolin Clubs, which appear at the Grand Opera House tonight, are going to introduce a distinct novelty into their entertainment. The first part of the concert resembles, in many instances, a minstrel show, but instead of having the old stereotyped manner they are going to appear in their every-day college clothes and give the first part more as a sketch than anything else. College gossip will be indulged in and gradually each number will be introduced.

As for the second part, it will have the boys appear in full dress suits opping at the Willamette hotel. The combined clubs are en route to Victoria, B. C., where they will join the Stanford varsity football team, which is competing for the Pacific coast championship, and the $2000 Cooper trophy cup. The clubs have been playing nightly since they left the university more than three weeks ago, and are capable of rendering a very high-class performance. Press reports from cities visited speak in the best terms of the work of the clubs. Sketches from the latest popular music, combined with classical selections, make a widely varied program. One of the features is the specialties rendered by Bernard, Kellogg and Bradford. These men have won fame on the Stanford stage a pure, natural and consistent story, will be presented at the Grand opera house Monday, Dec. 30. It tells of the folly of a young girl of respectable family connections, whose heart has been won by an unprincipled scoundrel; the anger of a brother who endeavors to show his sister the waywardness of her behavior, and she, in her true innocence of heart, and believing the affection of her lover to be all that a young girl could desire, scorns her brother's advice, at which the brother, in a fit of anger, strikes her to insensibility. She is chloroformed by the villain and smuggled to a roadhouse in the country and imprisoned there. She effects a sensational escape, and after a run of eight miles across the and give the balance of the concert in the usual fashion.

The reason for doing this is to show the world how college men really get along and to partially show their environment.

The performance given by the Stanford boys is a clean one from start to finish and to quote one of the leading dailies of the Pacific coast "One of the cleanest and best musical entertainments ever held in our city."

have worked together for the past four years in various stunts. Bernard is the leading member of the Stanford Dramatical Society, and his ability as a fan-maker may be seen from a clipping from the Evening Courier: "Barney Bernard, his pathetic song 'Who Broke the Bank?' did the best piece of character work ever seen in the city." Kellogg and Bradford complete the trio, giving a burlesque on the famous melodrama "Balakabas," and various other stunts and specialties. At Eugene the performance was one-half hour later on account of the number of curtain calls this bunch received. The clubs are a combination of the Stanford's most representative men, country, breathless, with her clothes torn, bleeding, exhausted, staggers into the corridor of the prison in time to save her brother's life, who in a fit of remorse believes he has killed her, is about to commit suicide by stabbing himself with a dagger which the female villain has smuggled to his cell. The author is said to have handled his subject in a most delicate and masterly manner and the story as presented appears to be all to assist rather than to "turn down" those who are attempting to do right.

WHO WANTS TO ANSWER THIS IDEA?

Cincinnati, ec. 23.—"The greatest tyranny on earth is the tyranny of an unsanctified labor union," declared Rev. Dr. Jennings, head of the Western Book Concern of the Methodist Episcopal church.

"In some places," said Dr. Jennings, "there is a belief on the part of the workmen that the church is prejudiced against them. This idea has originated largely from the mouthings of anarchistic agitators and from those who spend $1,000 a year in saloons and not a cent in church. Hardly anything more than such a misconception can be expected from those who hold their meetings on Sundays in saloons or back of saloons.

"The wage question has been crowded to the limit," Dr. Jennings declared. "If this thing keeps on much farther the breaking point will certainly be reached."

"Why, brethren, I could tell you things that have happened right here in this book concern within the past fifteen months that would open your eyes. The Saturday night's work is not half so hard on the workman as his Sunday night's carousing. I tell you right now that things are being crowded too hard in this country. There has got to be a limit.

"If the workingman does not go to church it is because the workingman does not want to go to church. I don't see that he goes to church any more when he gets his Saturday half holiday for recreation than he does when he has to work all day Sunday. It is the whisky bill that the workingman pays that is his ruin."

Jennings speaks from the standpoint of a selfish, seab Christian!

When you're languid, when you're lazy,

When you're loose, lank and lean, A pitiful object you soon will be Unless you take Rocky Mountain Tea.
