SALEM'S NEW PLUMBING BUSINESS

Two Enterprising Young Business Men of This City Open Modern Plumbing Establishment.

The establishment of an up-to-date plumbing establishment at 141 Liberty street by Messrs Joe and John Graber has added a new and substantial firm to Salem's business circles.

The spacious store room which will be occupied in a few days by Graber Bros.' Plumbing Shop" was formerly occupied by the firm of Bernardi & Dunford and is one of the best locations for that line of business in the city. The building is being remodeled and fitted up with the latest conveniences for the plumbing business. Graber Bros. will carry a full line of bath tubs, toilets, basins and all articles which properly belong to an up-to-date plumbing establishment.

Both Joe and John Graber are experienced plumbers the latter having been associated with the Fraser plumbing shop for the past 14 years, while the former has followed the business for the past four years.

Both young men are well known citizens of Salem and deserving of the liberal patronage which they doubtless will receive.

THE DEBATE WAS WARM.

But the Philippine Islands Are Still in the Swim.

After much deliberation, at the close of the debating contest last evening in the University chapel, the judges awarded places to the following young ladies, who will compose two teams to represent "Old Willamette" in the tri-debating league:

Miss Nora Emmel, first place; Miss Selma Norberg, second place; Miss Atha Dimmick, third place; Theo. Bennett, fourth place; Mabel Glover, fifth place, and Miss Helen Smith, sixth place.

The first three young ladies will meet McMinnville some time in March.

The debate was a hard-fought linguistic battle, and when the smoke and mist of oratory lifted the Philippine islands were riddled with opposition and plastered together with affirmative argument until it was difficult for the judges to determine whether or not the islands would be a valuable acquisition to Uncle Sam. Though some of the co-eds are reported to have been somewhat embarrassed when first appearing before the audience, they soon forgot all else but the question to be discussed, and surpassed even the best expectations of their friends.

Class rivalry was in evidence in all parts of the spacious chapel. During the suspense when Judges McNary, Gatens and Marlette were arriving at a decision, the entire audience joined in singing America.

CONVICTED ON 53 COUNTS

(United Press Leased Wire.)

Chicago, Jan. 18.—John R. Walsh, former president of the Chicago National and Home Savings banks, has been found guilty on 53 counts in the indictments accusing him of misappropriating funds of the former institution.

The jury reached a verdict shortly after midnight this morning, and it was read when court opened at 10 o'clock. It was charged that Walsh used savings entrusted to his care by depositors to finance his railroads and other enterprises.

After listening for two months to a recital of the "frenzied finance" methods of the banker, the jury consumed 30 hours in reaching its verdict. The verdict is based upon 53 of the 150 counts in the indictment, and he was found not guilty on the remaining 97 counts.

Thus ends the final drama of an Irish lad who came to America in 1849, and immediately set out to build an immense fortune and wield power in the political world. Success attended his efforts to become a money king as the years rolled on, but as a politician he never became a great power.

The collapse of the Chicago National, Home Savings and Equitable banks, all controlled by Walsh, created a tremendous sensation in the financial world in 1905. At first it was generally supposed that the government would allow Walsh to escape prosecution, but opposition to such a plan was so strong in certain quarters that an invitation was started.

National bank examiners, according to their report, discovered that Walsh, in following a shrewd system of juggling the funds of his three banks, had employed $7,000,000 of depositors' savings in promoting railroad properties and other enterprises in which he was interested.

This discovery was of such startling character that there was no possible way for the banker to escape indictment. After the grand jury had indicted him his attorneys sought in vain to have all the counts, at least the ones most damaging to their client, quashed.

Surrounded by array of the most learned attorneys that his wealth could retain, John R. Walsh went to trial and today's verdict is the result. After the bank examiners showed in black and white how the defendant had juggled the funds of his banks, in violation of the federal laws, Walsh took the stand and made a sweeping statement, the burden of which was that he did all he was accused of for the best interests of the institutions.

"The fight has only begun," was the only comment the defendant would make this morning after the verdict was announced.

Again the Servant Problem. He—I thought they weren't going to get married until later?

She—Yes; but they changed their minds suddenly. You see, they happened to hear of a good servant out of a place, and they wanted to secure her.—Roseleaf.
