

DYSPEPSIA PROOF.

How Any Meal Can Be Thoroughly Enjoyed by Any Stomach.

Men, as a rule, are first discovered by their enemies. Their antagonists learn on the searchlight, and the proof of merit will lie in being able to stand the flash.

- Stuffed Olives. Boston Clam Chowder. Strained Gumbo. Sirloin Steak with Mushrooms. Roast Beef Hash. Stuffed Ox Tongue with Sauerkraut. Lobster a la Newberg. Baked Pork and Beans. Combination Crab Salad. Hot Mince Pie. Pineapple Fritters.

Mr. White ordered a "little of each." Mr. Dyspepsia Black ordered crackers and a glass of milk. "I had such a big breakfast this morning," he said, "that I'll just take a bite to keep you company." But White could not be deceived; "I am afraid you can't stand the gleam, Mr. Black. Why don't you say you have the dyspepsia, and be done with it? You'll always have that hungry look, anywhere as long as you have dyspepsia. Now listen. My stomach was in just as bad condition as yours at one time. But now I can eat anything, at any time. For instance, this clam chowder or sirloin steak or even the lobster salad would be just as welcome to my stomach as your crackers and milk. You don't realize how this dyspepsia business is robbing you of your spirit, of your energy and ability to think quickly. I can't help it. You haven't the cheer and sociability you had three months ago. Now, I'll tell you what to do," and thereat the cheerful Mr. White took a vial from his pocket and extracted a wee tablet. "There, there is a tablet that contains an ingredient, one grain of which digests 3000 grains of food. For even the worst dyspeptic it is the only thing that really gives relief. The reason is it relieves the stomach of nearly all the work it has to do, digests everything in the stomach and stimulates the gastric juice. It can't get along without them. They are Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. You can get them anywhere on earth for the price of a package."

Yes, it is true, Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets absolutely stop heartburn, nausea, indigestion, dyspepsia of the worst type, sour stomach, bloaty feeling and all eruptions and irritation, and freshen and invigorate the stomach. They cheer you up, and make you get all the good there is in your food. You will forget that you ever had a stomach to worry you. Send us your name and address today, and we will at once send you by mail a sample package, free. Address F. A. Stuart Co., 159 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

HE TOOK THE SUICIDE ROUTE

Husband of Woman Caught Shoplifting in Albany, Hangs Himself Monday at Home Near Halsey.

Despondent and worried over family troubles, and in ill-health, Henry Vanderlip, a well-known farmer, residing on the Peoria road, about a mile west of Halsey, yesterday morning, committed suicide by hanging himself. The deed was committed in a small out-building adjoining the Vanderlip residence, about 11 o'clock yesterday morning, and was evidently premeditated. Mrs. Vanderlip, wife of the deceased, discovered her husband's body suspended by a half-inch rope from a rafter about 15 minutes from the time he is known to have left the house. Though so short a time had elapsed, life was extinct, a later investigation showing that the man had died from strangulation.

Circumstances surrounding the suicide indicate that the act was due to ill-health and worry over the arrest of his wife, Mrs. Ellen Vanderlip, in this city last Thursday, on a charge of shoplifting. Ever since the deceased, who was nearly 70 years old, heard of the trouble into which his wife had fallen while in this city, he is said to have been despondent and with this preying on his mind, his illness became more serious, so that early yesterday morning when John Corcoran, his son-in-law, came over to the house, it was necessary for him to start immediately for Halsey after a physician. During his absence Vanderlip hung himself.

Vanderlip was afflicted with erysipelas and was in great pain apparently. He did not eat any breakfast, according to Mrs. Vanderlip yesterday morning, but left the table and went out into the little out-building near the house. Little Willie Corcoran, a grandson, aged five, followed his grandfather, and watched him tie the rope with which the latter hanged himself to the rafter. In answer to the boy's question as to what he was going to do, the old man replied that he was going to kill a hog, and hang it up there.

Returning to the house Vanderlip sat down before the stove, while his wife was fixing his bed, but after a few moments arose and his wife heard him walk out on the back porch. This was the last seen of Vanderlip alive. John Gould, an old friend of the Vanderlips, who was boarding at the house, states that after breakfast he went out to the barn to feed the stock, and when he returned about 11 o'clock Mrs. Vanderlip met him at the door and inquired if he had seen anything of her husband. Replying that he had not, he went on into the house, and Mrs. Vanderlip meanwhile instituted a search for her husband, finding him a few minutes later hanging by the neck from a rafter in the small out-building, located about 20 feet from the house.

Rushing to the house she called to Gould, who ran out, and while Mrs. Vanderlip held her husband's body, Gould cut the rope. Corcoran and Dr. Marks arrived a few minutes later from Halsey, examination by the physician showing that Vanderlip had been dead for about 15 minutes. Though the deceased had stood on an apple box while he tied the rope around his neck, and afterwards kicked the box out from under him, his weight had stretched the rope so that his feet touched the floor, and it seems clear that he might have saved himself had he so desired.

Coroner William Fortmiller, who was summoned from this city, held an inquest yesterday afternoon over the remains. The jury returned a verdict that the deceased came to his death by hanging himself, and that the act, in their judgment, was due to despondency and ill-health. Those on the jury were Doug Taylor, Berry Cummings, John R. Gould, Clayton Smith, George Prichard and W. F. White.

Henry Vanderlip came to Oregon three years ago with his wife from Iowa, and has resided on a farm near Halsey since that time. He was born in Erie county, New York, and later moved to Johnson county, Iowa. He conducted a hotel at Oxford, Iowa, for many years, and was also engaged in the drug business for a time. He was mayor of Oxford, Iowa, a number of years, and also served as justice of the peace for more than 20 years. He was married twice. The deceased was a member of the Modern Woodmen of America. Arrangements are being made to ship the body to Iowa for interment.

The shock of her husband's tragic death is feared may result very seriously for Mrs. Vanderlip, who has been under the physician's care for the past week and more.—Albany Herald.

GOSSIP FROM THE CAPITAL

Washington, Jan. 22.—Like a thunderbolt from a clear sky, the open letter issued by Congress-at-large George Washington Cook of Colorado denouncing the administration's policy of land fraud cases in Colorado as "high-handed pernicious political persecution" has caused quite a jar in official circles here. The President, vice president, Speaker Cannon, members of the cabinet and all the members of congress, together with a number of the heads of bureaus, received copies of this letter in the same mail, and for a time interest in things political has waned and public attention has been riveted to the contemplation of what may result from this appeal for a "square deal." Everybody is wondering whether the administration will see fit to reply to the charge that it is attempting to brand as criminals many of Colorado's most honorable, upright, and law-abiding citizens. Will the "Big Stick," for some time past laid away and gathering dust in a remote corner of the President's private office, again be brought forth? Will congress undertake an official investigation? These are questions which are being asked on all sides, and for the time being even the rumpus which the Hale resolution promises to stir up in the naval establishment is being overlooked, while official and civil circles discuss the various phases of this momentous matter.

Little surprise was manifested when the announcement was made that the original estimates for the construction of the Panama canal will fall far short of meeting the actual cost of the monster ditch. Instead there was a chorus of "I told you so's" for, while there were many in congress who regarded the original appropriations as merely preliminary to the big undertaking, the several jankets which have been made since the work was fairly under way have demonstrated to the congressmen who participated in them that before the "ishman shortcut" was a reality Uncle Sam would be poorer by several million additional dollars. Therefore it was that, with the senate canal committee's inauguration of a series of hearings to determine the progress of the construction work, little surprise greeted the declaration of the members of the canal commission that approximately $150,000,000 additional would be required to finish the great waterway and link the two oceans. The necessary increase in appropriations, it is pointed out, is due largely to the fact that the original estimates did not cover the stupendous task of making the canal zone sanitary, the cost of maintaining the zone government, relocation of the Panama railroad, and waterworks, sewers and paving in Panama and Colon. Furthermore, the board of consulting engineers underestimated the amount of excavating necessary, while the enlargement of the locks will increase the ultimate cost very perceptibly.
