INDIRECTION.

Fair are the flowers and the children, but their subtle suggestion is fairer;

Rare is the roseburst at dawn, but the secret that clasps it is rarer. Sweet the exultance of song, but the strain that precedes it is sweeter; And never was poem yet writ, but the meaning outmastered the meter.

Never a daisy that grows, but a mystery guideth the growing; Never a river that flows, but a majesty accepts the flowing; Never a Shakespeare that soared, but a stronger than he did unfold him; Nor never a prophet foretells, but a mightier seer hath foretold him.

Back of the canvas that throbs, the painter is hinted and hidden; Into the statue that breathes, the soul of the sculptur is hidden; Under the joy that is felt lie the infinite issues of feeling; Crowning the glory revealed is the glory that crowns the revealing.

Great are the symbols of being, but that which is symbolized is greater; Vast the create and behold, but vast the inward creator; Back of the sound broods the silence back of the gift stands the giving; Back of the hand that receives thrill the sensitive nerve of receiving.

Space is as nothing to spirit, the deed is outdone by the doing; The heart of the wooer is warm, but warmer the heart of the wooing; And up from the pits where these shiver, and up from the heights where those shine, Twin voices and shadows swim starward, and the essence of love is divine. —Richard Realf.

WHAT WILL BE THE REAL ISSUES OF THE CAMPAIGN?

It is a matter of vital interest to know whether the great fundamental issues on which depends the national prosperity shall be side-tracked? There is danger of harking back to wornout controversies like states rights, negro domination in the south, and also going too far in the other DIRECTION TAKING UP HAIR-BRAINED NOVELTIES.

The people have enjoyed an abounding prosperity for the past ten years.

The laborers and the producers have had HIGH PRICES FOR WAGES AND PRODUCTS.

The only complaint has been from the consumer in the cities who has had to pay too much for the necessities of life, he claims.

This has been the fruit of progressive but RELIABLE REPUBLICAN POLICIES IN NATIONAL AFFAIRS.

Can the people depart from making a protective tariff as the foundation and cornerstone of industrial prosperity?

We doubt it. TARIFF REVISION BY FREE TRADERS SPELLS RUIN.

Can the government safely abandon the principles of A NATIONAL REPUBLICAN POLICY AT HOME AND ABROAD and reap anything but the empty dinner pail brigade and the patched trousers of the Cleveland regime?

We doubt it. The memories of that time are revived BY THE SLIGHT DEPRESSION THAT IS NOW UPON THE COUNTRY. What 'ism will employ anyone?

There are those who say every seven years, or every ten years or every twenty years we must have hard times.

But has not that economic fallacy been exploded BY THIS PERIOD OF TEN YEARS OF UNBROKEN PROSPERITY.

It ought to be condemned forever—this periodical hard times cry.

Every individual has a right to make whatever he sees fit THE FIRST FLANK IN HIS POLITICAL PLATFORM.

But in a great nation, with millions to be employed, with productive energies incalculable, there is a tremendous responsibility.

The Washington state federation of labor adopted the following: WHEREAS, A strong, concerted and powerful attempt is being made in all states of the union TO DIVERT THE ATTENTION OF THE AMERICAN PEOPLE FROM THE FINAL SETTLEMENT OF THE MOST IMPORTANT AND FAR REACHING QUESTIONS OF THE DAY created by President Roosevelt to curb the unlawful practices of some of the great combinations and trusts of our land;

Whereas, It is clearly the intention to thereby BLIND THE AMERICAN PEOPLE TO THE TRUE ISSUES OF THE DAY and postpone the settlement of all absorbing questions above mentioned;

Therefore be it resolved:—That we, the Washington State Federation of Labor in convention assembled, go on record as opposing any such ATTEMPTS TO SIDETRACK AND POSTPONE THE FINAL SETTLEMENT OF THE REAL PROBLEMS CONFRONTING THE AMERICAN PEOPLE; and be it further

Resolved:—That the people be advised of these attempts, that they may refuse to be led astray on minor issues and insist on A CONTINUANCE OF TRUST REFORM, THE ABOLITION OF REBATES, THE CONTINUED PROSECUTIONS OF GRABBERS IN ALL WALKS OF LIFE and to insist on the enactment of the initiative and referendum and THE FULL ENFORCEMENT OF THE EIGHT HOUR AND ANTI-CHILD LABOR LAWS.

We do not believe the continued prosperity of the country can be founded on other than broadest principles of statesmanship.

'isms and 'ologies and creeds will not save a nation. CITIZENSHIP THAT IS BROAD AND TOLERANT ALONE WILL BUILD A GREAT PEOPLE.

Narrowing the national campaign to minor issues will leave this government enfeebled in state and nation.

The Washington Federation of Labor is right. The attention of the people is to be turned away from the robber trusts THAT ARE ENRICHING THE ROCKEFELLERS AND MORGANS.

The people are to be divided into 'isms and the whiplash of the great trust magnates is to be cracked over the backs of an enslaved commonwealth.

We advise the people to keep their powder dry, sustain local reforms as such upon merit, but never abandon the principles that have made the nation great FOR MINOR ISSUES THAT WEAKEN AND DIVIDE.

It was the motto of the imperial Caesars, "Divide et impera." Divide and conquer. Scatter the flock and the wolves have holiday.

THREE QUESTIONS FOR HUGHES.

In any analysis of the conflicting sentiments and motives at play and at work among the five hundred and twenty-four out of the six hundred and eighty-two members of the New York county Republican committee who attended the regular monthly meeting Thursday night—the net result of which was, the postponement for another month of consideration of the resolution indorsing Charles E. Hughes for the presidential nomination—it should be borne in mind, says the New York Commercial, a paper with Democratic proclivities, that this county committee is a part of the strictly political machinery of the party, the organization that at tends to the party's business during the 365 days of the year, that bears the brunt of the campaigning and that keeps the Republican hosts in training as a "solid," militant force; it is not a club to be dominated by the passing sentiment of its members, but clothed with no authority and burdened with no responsibility; nor is it voluntary, temporary association formed for some specific purpose and dropping out of existence immediately following the success or the failure of its plans; the Republican county committee cannot afford to be ruled by personal sentiment and preference, but must look always to the net political and partisan results to follow its every act and move.

In the period of political uncertainty like the present, therefore, it would be a most hazardous and uncalled-for undertaking for this committee to essay to indorse any man as the nominee of the Republican party for President of the United States six months in advance of the holding of the national convention—to attempt, in other words, to influence the action of the state convention before party sentiment has fairly begun to crystallize on this question through the state.

To do so might lead to the most embarrassing consequences. Indeed, there is no convincing evidence that there is any very considerable Republican sentiment for Hughes or for anybody else here in New York county.

"At the last meeting of this committee," declared Senator Page at the Thursday-night session, "there was a resolution presented calling upon you to express what you know to be the sentiment of this city—and that is that the names of Charles E. Hughes should be presented as the candidate of this state to the next Republican convention."

His fellow-committeemen do not know any such thing. The senator has absolutely no warrant for any such assumption.

And the very fact that within an hour of his utterance these accredited representatives of the New York county Republican masses decided by a majority of 80 votes—392, against 222—to shelve the Hughes indorsement for another month is the best possible testimony to the contrary; not necessarily that Republican sentiment hereabout is anti-Hughes or pro-Taft or anything else but that Republican sentiment is opposed to pushing any candidate to the front at present through the constituted party machinery.

THE HONORABLE JOB E. HEDGES WAS NOT A MILLION MILES AWAY FROM DOMINANT REPUBLICAN SENTIMENT IN NEW YORK WHEN HE SAID TO THE ASSEMBLED COMMITTEEMEN THAT NO MAN WOULD GO FARTHER THAN HE WOULD "FOR HUGHES," BUT THAT HE FIRST WANTED TO KNOW THREE THINGS:

WHETHER OR NOT HUGHES WOULD ACCEPT THE NOMINATION, IF TENDERED; WHETHER OR NOT, FOLLOWING ACCEPTANCE, HE WOULD CO-OPERATE WITH THE MEN WHO HAD MADE THE PARTY; AND WHETHER OR NOT HE WISHED TO MAKE HIMSELF A COMPONENT PART OF THE REPUBLICAN PARTY AND LIVE UP TO THE PARTY STANDARDS.

These are not unreasonable demands; a fore-knowledge of these things is an absolute party necessity.

Nominating Hughes for governor of New York in 1906 and nominating him for President of the United States in 1908 are two vastly different propositions.

Then he was the logical candidate of the New York Republicans—the only man in sight with whom they could win the election; now he is no more the logical candidate than is any other aspirant for this party honor—there is no "logical" candidate at all; and no man ought to expect this nomination without enlightening his party leaders in advance on the three points projected by Mr. Hedges.

Abraham Lincoln was not above doing it was not too dispassionately independent to let his fellow-politicians know where he was at; William McKinley was far too good a politician ever to allow himself to be asked any such questions; everybody knew in advance exactly where Grover Cleveland stood, what he stood for and what might be expected of him; and the Honorable Jennings Bryan of Nebraska has on two occasions gone so far as to practically tell his party that he was the man it wanted to "run" for President—the only man—and to explain just how and why nobody else would do.

Charles E. Hughes is an unknown political quantity except as an absolutely independent, honest and fearless governor of New York—and it may easily be that the Republican party wants and needs something more of a practical politician than he to carry it banner in 1908.

If he answers—or has answered for him—the three Hedges questions within the next month, he may possibly get this proposed pre-indorsement of the New York Republican county committee on February 20.

Otherwise, he is not likely ever to get it.
