Case of Property
The case of L. E. Bradford, a Polk county farmer vs. C. A. Muths, to recover a sum of money claimed to be due the plaintiff for drying prunes belonging to the defendant was argued in Judge Webster's court Friday afternoon and taken under advisement. The amount claimed by the plaintiff was only about $10 more than the sum offered by the defendant. The attorneys represented both sides in the case and the cost of the proceedings in which some 12 or 14 witnesses testified alone with probable expense $20 or $40.

Board of Trade Has Light
A fine seven-globe chandelier was placed in the Board of Trade rooms Saturday as a gift of the Western Electric Company. The chandelier is one of the finest that has been made by Salem's enterprising fixture firm, and will be a valuable acquisition to the large number of Salem products which are on display. It is not only ornamental, but is a practical fixture for the rooms and an advertisement for the city's progressive factory.

Bought Mason's Lot
In the transfer of the Masonic property on the corner of State and High streets, which was arranged last Friday night, one of the most valuable pieces of property in the city will probably go into the possession of the Oregon Electric Company. Thomas Sigourney stated to a Journal representative yesterday that he had purchased the property for $7500, and that it would be transferred to a Seattle company in the near future.

Stock in Fine Condition
State Veterinary Surgeon Korniek has returned from Rickreall, where he transacted professional business last week. In speaking to a Journal reporter yesterday Dr. Korniek said: "In my recent trips throughout the state I found the stock in good condition. In a few localities it was necessary to kill cattle which were diseased, but in every case this was accomplished in harmony with the owners. Not long ago," continued the doctor, "I had occasion to remove one of the largest teeth from a horse that I have seen in my practice." Turning to a cabinet he got a tooth, which at the request of the reporter, he weighed. The tooth balanced the scales at 5 1/4 ounces and measured four inches in length and five inches in circumference.
