"GOOD-BY, GOD BLESS YOU"

I like the Anglo-Saxon speech
 With its direct revealings;
 It takes a hold and seems to reach
 Way down into your feelings;
 That some folks deem it rude, I know,
 And therefore they abuse it,
 But I have never found it so—
 Before all else I choose it.
 I don't object that men should air
 The Gallic they have paid for,
 With 'au revoir,' 'adieu ma chere,'
 For that's what French was made for,
 But when a crouny takes your hand
 At parting to address you,
 He drops all foreign lingo and
 He says, "Good-by, God bless you!"

I love the words, perhaps, because
 When I was leaving mother
 Standing at last in solemn pause
 We looked at one another;
 And I—I saw in mother's eyes
 The love she could not tell me—
 A love eternal as the skies,
 Whatever fate befell me,
 She put her arms about my neck
 And soothed the pain of leaving,
 And though her heart was like to break,
 She spoke no word of grieving;
 She let no tear bedim her eyes
 For fear she might distress me,
 But, kissing me, she said good-by
 And asked our God to bless me.

—Eugene Field.

THE MAN, NOT THE ISSUES.

Just about this time—a busy political year—one hears a great deal about men of all sorts—with all sorts of claims for the support of the body politic and with all sorts of pasts, presents and futures.

Usually these men represent some particular issue or some particular element among the people.

These are men like Taft—like Hughes—like Fairbanks—like Bryan—like Johnson—indeed like almost any man who has been mentioned in connection with the presidency of this country.

Without any regard to his chances for success or his qualifications for that office, there is one man powerful in American public life who is at least interesting as a man.

One of the last of the race of "men who look like Lincoln," and he has that old-fashioned, homely but valuable sense of humor, commingled with common sense, such as the great war-President had.

Such a man is "Uncle Joe" Cannon, speaker of the house of representatives, and a man who would do well to history if his friends would allow him to die with his record as such.

If Mr. Cannon be anything, he is an American.

He is so typical that some men refuse to accept him as a mirror. But he is an American and a man who is one of the sea-walls such as will always prevent the washing away of true Americanism by any set of pessimists or any malignant influences.

In a recent speech, Speaker Cannon said: "I am certain that today, in 1908, the republic, which you and I help to make, never gave better and firmer assurance that it will endure by virtue of the patriotism, devotion, sanity of the majority of its 90,000,000 of people."

Commenting upon this the Philadelphia Public Ledger said:

In a false shame to be thought ignorantly innocent and a false wearing of much shrewdness, men profess cynicism.

Who are the only consistent pessimists?

The worthless who do nothing, live obscure and die unknown.

Napoleon, prince of cynics (a affectation, trusted lavishly the people of France, the soldiers of his army, the captains and field marshals whom he might not see, but to whom he must assign the execution of designs.

Of them he even believed impossibilities; that they could overrun Russia and unite under one way the races of Europe.

Byron, royal among scoffers and porphyrogenitus among misanthropes, performed his long hours of labor because he believed and delighted in the intelligent appreciation of a kindly race of men whom he professed to despise, but apart from whose admiration or astonishment he never thought of living.

Not an engineer can project a railway, not a cunning and cold calculator can set up a bank, not a politician can aspire to the honors and gains of office without in his heart implicitly trusting the sustained honesty, morality and industry of men.

No two or three planners or plotters, though their talk may be reeking with the wickedness of cynicism can meet without basing every plan or plot upon the better qualities of humanity.

If it were not so the race would stgn and fall prostrate in dissolution. The farm would cease producing, the store would neither buy nor sell, the capitalist would turn with disgust from his vaults, and the empires and republics would crumble.

Even seeing how action pulses on confidence that men will work, pay, love loyally and give nobly, the thinker must often be humble and abashed at the heroism, the sacrifice, the unyielding courage and the stubborn persistence of men.

So much has been heard of surface talk filled with evanescent little accusations of human defect that his own faith has been cowed.

When he looks straight at the plainest groupings of the commonest facts he comprehends that in the colossal onward march, though the individual is lost the multitude is many individuals.

The one man fails and dies and is forgotten, but mankind still moves on, still worlds revolve, and the will of God is done in earth and heaven.

Personal Mention

Mr. and Mrs. D. F. Carnes left last evening for Los Angeles.

Miss Erma Hunt left last evening for Eugene, where she will visit relatives and friends.

Mrs. A. W. Prescott has returned from Hillsboro, where she was the guest of relatives and friends.

Professor Frank Newberry left this morning for Woodburn on business.

Charles Schomaker, formerly of this city, now of Stayton, was visiting in the city yesterday.

Mrs. P. E. Gifford, of Portland, is visiting her daughter, Mrs. F. H. Curtis of this city.

Miss Juanita Miller, of Lebanon, passed through the city this morning, en route for Portland, where she will visit friends.

Father A. A. Moore left this morning for Portland on business.

Mrs. L. M. Dimler was among those who went to Portland this morning.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Lewis, who have been visiting in the city, left this morning for Lewiston, Idaho.

Wooden Wedding Celebration.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Iddings entertained a number of friends at their home on Court street last Friday evening, the occasion being the fifth anniversary of their wedding. At 8:30, to the strains of the wedding march from Lohengren, played by Miss Lena Heise, the couple entered the parlor, where the marriage ceremony was repeated, followed by congratulations and the presentation of gifts. An amusing feature of the evening was a shower of comical wooden articles, but still more amusing were the drawing and peanut eating contests, won by Miss Edith Drager and Miss Florence Cunningham, respectively. Laughter and merriment reigned supreme until a late hour, when the guests departed after wishing the host and hostess many more years of wedded bliss. Delicious refreshments were served.

For Rheumatic Sufferers.

The quick relief from pain afforded by applying Chamberlain's Pain Balm makes it a favorite with sufferers from rheumatism, sciatica, lame back, lumbago, and deep seated and muscular pains. For sale at Dr. Stone's drug store.

A Long Creek Eagle.

Oscar Schafer brought in a foot and wing of an eagle to this office Monday. The bird measured seven feet, five inches from tip to tip. The bird was killed with a club near Mr. Schafer's home on Wall creek by J. J. Murphy. Mr. Murphy says he found the eagle and a porcupine fighting. The porcupine had the eagle down and that the fight was about equal. The eagle's feet were filled with quills.—Long Creek Ranger.

Baby Hands

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy a Favorite.

"We prefer Chamberlain's Cough Remedy to any other for our children," says Mr. L. J. Woodbury of Twining, Mich. "It has also done the work for us in hard colds and croup, and we take pleasure in recommending it." For sale at Dr. Stone's drug store.

Nurse Girls Get Sore.

Several weeks ago Ferdinand Cook, a wealthy New Yorker, complained to the police because nurse girls with baby buggies, blocked the sidewalk in front of his home. A policeman was stationed in front of Mr. Cook's house to compel the nurse girls to walk single file.

For having caused this change the Nurse Maids' union has blacklisted Isabella Marie, the infant daughter of Mr. Cook. In other words, no nurse will work for him. Meanwhile Mr. Cook has taken the question into the courts, and is attending his own child.

Gallon House Must Go.

(Dallas Observer.) The Salem Statesman says District Attorney McNary will take steps to put the Yamhill gallon houses out of business by having them declared a public nuisance. If such action is taken, Mr. McNary will receive any assistance that the people of Polk county can render in helping to rid the county of those dispensers of vile booze. The residents of the precincts along the northern border of the county have long desired the removal of the gallon houses, but have been powerless to act in the matter, as the proprietors were receiving permission to maintain them direct from the government. Success to Mr. McNary in his undertaking, is the sentiment of all.

CUT THIS OUT.

Fine Receipt for the Quick Cure of Coughs and Colds.

"Mix half ounce of Concentrated oil of pine with two ounces glycerine and a half pint of good whiskey; shake well each time and use in doses of a teaspoonful to a tablespoonful every four hours.

This is the formula prescribed by the renowned throat and lung specialist who established the camp for consumptives in the pin-woods of Maine and whose remarkable cures attracted wide-spread attention among the medical fraternity. He declares that it will heal the lungs and cure any cough that is curable and will break up an acute cold in twenty-four hours. The ingredients can be secured from any prescription druggist at a small cost and is easily mixed at home.

Be sure not to buy the ordinary bulk oil of pine nor potent medicine imitations frequently found put up in wooden boxes, as they will produce nausea, on account of t's impurities they contain and frequently do permanent injury to the kidneys. The real "Concentrated" oil of pine is put up for medical use in half ounce vials enclosed in tin screw top cases which protect it from heat and cold.

LECTURE ON WILD BIRDS

Tonight in the assembly hall of the high school building, the citizens of Salem will be given a rare treat in the form of an illustrated lecture by James Finley, the famous wild bird photographer.

He will illustrate his lecture on the wild birds of the Pacific coast by stereopticon views made from actual photographs taken by him from life, showing principally pictures made from the birds which congregate on the islands of the Pacific coast recently set aside by President Roosevelt as bird reservations.

The lecture is given under the auspices of the Salem Bird Study club, and admission will be free. The lecture will begin promptly at 8 o'clock.

BIJOU STOCK COMPANY

AT GRAND OPERA HOUSE

Commencing Monday, February 10 the Bijou Stock Company will open a week's engagement at the Grand opera house which may be extended indefinitely. What the opening play will be has not yet been decided upon, but will be announced during the week. The company is a very strong one. Miss Canright who is an artist, remarkably strong in emotional parts and character portrayal, is the leading lady. Miss Carleton, who does soubrette is also an actress of much ability and of fine stage presence, who brings a charming personality to the aid of her art and gives strength to the cast; and Miss Pierce in character work is always a favorite.

Mr. George P. Shaw comedian is an actor of ripe experience and his work is as smooth, strong and efficient as the action of a Corless engine.

Harry Cornell, who does eccentric comedy parts, is a genuine artist whose work always brings applause and Clarence Love who does the "heavies," has a warm corner in the hearts of all theater-goers reserved especially for him.

Chic Kehoe, in the old man parts, and James Neal, juvenile, are both excellent and it predicted that the latter who is yet in his teens will some time be close to the top of the theatrical ladder of fame.

Taken all in all the company is a strong one for it has no weak links and it should prove a source of much pleasure to Salem theater goers.

Kemp's Balm will stop any cough that can be stopped by any medicine and cure coughs that cannot be cured by any other medicine. It is always the best cough cure
