COMPANY M INSPECTED LAST NIGHT

COLONEL PLEASD

INSPECTORS HAVE WORDS OF PRAISE FOR SALEM COMPANY'S EFFICIENCY—DANCE FOLLOWS INSPECTION AND FLOOR IS CROWDED WITH SALEM'S PRETTY GIRLS.

A large and appreciative crowd witnessed the annual inspection of Company "M" in the armory last night. Notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather every seat in the spacious hall was occupied, and standing room was at a premium when shortly after 8 o'clock the buglers sounded "Fall In," and Salem's guardsmen, in full uniform, marched briskly to their respective places in a single rank. The line thus formed was too long for even the length of the armory floor. The boys appeared at their best, and to say they made a favorable impression on the visiting officers and all others present is putting it mildly. Glistening rifles, polished shoes, white gloves and a general neatness, backed by a precision and gracefulness in executing the intricate marches made an impression which caused every one to feel like getting up and giving three cheers for Company "M."

Besides Colonel Jackson, the inspecting officer, who is a veteran in the United States army, Captain Murphy, Lieutenants Holman and Abrahams, of Company "M," Captain Settlemier, of Company "I," of Woodburn, and Major Baker, of the Oregon National Guard, of Portland, were present.

After roll call, which showed all members of the company present, with the exception of three, who were reported sick, a rigid inspection as to the general appearance of the militiamen was held. Various maneuvers were executed, through which the guardsmen proved themselves to be men of whom the city and state should be proud. Captain Murphy and his lieutenants took turns in giving orders.

At the close of the inspection Salem popular and efficient orchestra, "The Peerless," began an enjoyable dance program of 15 numbers. The excellent music, the large number of Salem society people present, and the general spirit of enthusiasm made the evening one long to be remembered.

Major Baker, in speaking to a Journal reporter, after the inspection last evening, said: "I consider that Company "M" is one of the foremost companies in the state, and considering that the Oregon guard holds third place for excellency and marksmanship in the United States, the Salem militia is getting near the top-notchers." In speaking of the inadequacy of the armories of Oregon, the major said: "Outside of Portland there is not an armory in the state which is either large enough or built on the right plan to properly accommodate the companies. Not only are they too small, but many of them have poor roofs, which allows the storms to beat into the building, damaging the floors and rusting the firearms. The state is paying at present $5000 per year for the use of inadequate halls for the militia. The armory bill, which the people will be allowed to vote upon in June, provides $100,000 for the construction of armories. This amount not only save the $5000 each year but will enable the various counties of the state to have comfortable homes, provided with club rooms, gymnasiums, which will make work of the guardsmen attractive.

SENATOR CULBERSON ATTACKS CORTELYOU

Washington, Feb. 6.—Senator Culbertson this afternoon, in the presence of a full gallery, resumed in senate his onslaught on the administration of the United States treasury.

The senator filed six specifications of alleged illegal actions against Secretary Cortelyou, and charged that New York banks used $75,000,000 of the government's money in speculation that was not legitimate. Senator Culbertson declared that Secretary Cortelyou's report on the manner in which he dealt with the recent money panic and owing to the fact that he violated the law in the following instances and

First, that he issued Panama canal bonds without the necessity of such a proceeding.

Second, that he excluded individual bidders, giving the national banks the preference, when the law explicitly provides that all citizens should have an equal opportunity.

Third, that he used the proceeds of the sale as public deposits, the law providing that they should be used only for canal purposes.

Fourth, that he issued three percent certificates which were not for a lawfully expressed purpose meeting the government expense.

Fifth, that he permitted the national banks to use circulating notes as a basis for circulation.

Sixth, that he abused the discretionary powers in the distribution of public deposits, which were unjust and inequitable, and that much of the deposits were in New York for speculative purposes.

A CONSIDERATE BURGLAR.

A considerate thief entered the apartments of E. W. Pierce, on the corner of Court and High streets yesterday afternoon and took $27 in cash which had been secreted in a bureau drawer, but left several valuable rings, a gold watch and a bracelet. Mr. Pierce, who is an electrician with the Western Manufacturing Company, after finishing his day's work, yesterday went to his rooms shortly after 5 o'clock, and, noticing that a few articles had been misplaced, his suspicions were aroused. Going to the bureau drawer and taking out the purse which had contained gold and silver to the amount of $27 he found that it was empty. Mr. Pierce has rooms in the Buren house, and that the thief must have closely watched the movements of Mr. Pierce was proven by the fact that no one in the other part of the building was disturbed, and did not know of the theft until told by Mr. Pierce late in the evening.
