WARDNER IS SORE
AT EDITOR PENNEY.
(United Press Leased Wire.)
Wardner, Idaho, Feb. 17.—What would be an effort to storm the gates of the Wardner News, to ride the editor, W. L. Penney, out of his office on a rail and to demolish the press and other furnishings, was described last night after the town had been told of the formation of a mob of outraged citizens. Extra precautions were sworn in, and stationed at advantageous places in the town of attack.
The mob, however, learning of the intentions of the police, did not make the attack.
Penney declares that the proposed attack was engendered by the gambler element, against whom he has been waging a bitter fight for the last three months.

UNUSUAL ACCIDENT
HAPPENS IN DENVER.
(United Press Leased Wire.)
Denver, Colo., Feb. 17.—While walking along Sixteenth street, in the west of the city yesterday afternoon, Dr. Samuel Rothschild stopped to light a cigar.
A public drinking fountain struck a match to light a cigar. A terrific explosion followed, and fragments of the heavy iron fountain flew in every direction. Dr. Rothschild's leg was horribly mangled, and he was otherwise severely injured.
Several other persons were injured from a street main had leaked into the base of the fountain and was pouring out of the faucet when the match struck the match.

THE LEAGUE MAY PUT UP A TICKET.
(United Press Leased Wire.)
New York, Feb. 17.—The national committee of the Independent League will meet in Chicago on Washington's birthday. At that time a call will be issued for a national convention which will select candidates for president and vice-president. In many of the northern states, full state and local tickets will be placed in the field.

If the Hearst party takes this action, declares Republican politicians, the result will mean a walk-over for the Republican nominees in almost every doubtful state. There are explanations for the proposed movement on the part of the league. One is that Hearst has definitely broken off with Bryan, and the other is that Hearst believes that the defeat of Bryan is certain, and that he wishes to have a clear field for his party in the next national election, believing that Bryan's defeat would mean a political disintegration of the Bourbons. It is said that Hearst will not head the ticket this year, but wait until 1912, when he believes the league will be the great party of opposition to the Republicans.

PERU WILL WELCOME AMERICAN FLEET.
(United Press Leased Wire.)
Lima, Peru, Feb. 17.—Although the American congress has not yet bestowed upon Admiral Evans the rank of vice-admiral, the Peruvian government has issued orders that he is nevertheless to be accorded the honors of vice-admiral.

The battleship fleet is expected to arrive here next Thursday, and the cruiser Coronel Bolognesi left here today to extend the welcome of Peru to the fleet at sea, and escort it into port.

Elaborate preparations have been made, both here and at Callao, for the entertainment of the American fleet. One of the chief features will be the splendid banquet, which will be given on Washington's birthday, in honor of Admiral Evans and his officers. President Parde will preside.

WORD FOR THE WHEELS.

Thinks Woman's Club Is Standing in With Street Car Company.

Salem, Or., Feb. 13, 1908.
Ed. Journal: After a long, hard days' work yesterday I went down to the opera house to the booster's meeting, and was glad to see such a big crowd out, and so much interest manifested in the welfare of our town. One thing, however, to my great surprise, was the antagonism shown by the woman's club to the ordinance permitting wheels on part of the walks of the town. I cannot for the life of me see where there will be any benefit derived or glory gained by driving the wheels from the walks, and can see where great hardship, both physical and financial, will be engendered. I beg of the woman's club to just stop and think what this means. In many instances it means the giving up of positions, where the party went to and from work by wheel, and the distance is too great to walk. It means anywhere from one to 200 cold lunches eaten six days out of the week, where warm dinners are now the rule. It means long walks for hundreds of persons to reach the car lines, to say nothing of the car fare. Taking into consideration that Salem is scattered over a large territory, and in many instances a long tramp to the business part of town, or to the nearest car line, and a wait of 10 or 15 minutes for a car; also that occasionally it is raining in the winter season. We have lived in Salem for three years, and either myself or wife have the first time to be inconvenienced in the slightest degree by wheel riders. When we first traveled the streets of Salem and the little bells tinkled too close at our heels, it was somewhat startling, but only for a few times. I soon found that the rider dreaded a collision more than I did, and that if I was inclined to be sulky and hog all the walk even, he was not going to run into me. My first impression was that it was a great privilege. The woman's club are enthusiastic over a new library building. Public libraries are designed more for the working classes than otherwise, and I will take the position that the question, put to a vote, wheels vs. library, that the wheels win. Car fare six days a week, going and coming, will buy more books outright than the average laborer finds time to read during the year. A large percent of the male riders pay a road poll tax, and a wheel, in most cases, is his only conveyance. The middle of the streets most all the year are simply no good for a wheel, and it is on the walk or abandon the wheel. I presume the car company would gladly donate a handsome little sum, possibly a site for the new library to have this ordinance repealed. Now, Mr. Journal Man, I think this is the sentiment of all the wheel riders and laboring people in this matter, and I speak for them as a body, when I beg of you to champion this cause for us, and to show that no one is being imposed on or inconvenienced, and that great good is being daily derived from this privilege. Make the ordinance strick and the penalty swift and severe to any who may abuse it, but do not rule the wheels off the walk just because some nervous wreck was out without his blind bridle on. ALDERMEN FIX UP FAIR GROUNDS ROAD

The Capital Journal hopes the Salem board of aldermen can find some way to fix up the fair grounds road a little. It seems after the way thousands were blown in on the North Commercial street bridge, and supplemental contracts let to beat the band for thousands of dollars, all of which the council issued warrants for, there ought to be some way to get a few hundred dollars to fix a main road leading into the city without breaking and busting up the city charter too badly. It seems the charter can be bent and twisted all out of shape for a job that has a few simoleons in it for a grafter, but a straight plain job of work that means a few carloads of crushed rock and a few days labor with a shovel is unconstitutional. We hope the mayor can find some way to dodge the charter long enough to allow that road to be fixed up, so that the last half mile between Portland and Salem will not be more impassable than all the rest of the 53 miles. The merchants of this city will arise and call you blessed gentlemen if you will find a way to build that road so it can be travelled without danger of breaking the necks of the people who are compelled to travel it as the only way to get into the city. If you cannot fix it soon we have orders to give you a good roast.
