

Hard Coughs

If your doctor fully endorses your taking Ayer's Cherry Pectoral for your hard cough, then buy it and use it. If he does not, then do not take a single dose of it. He knows all about this splendid medicine for coughs and colds.

MINING LETTER

John H. Cradlebaugh, Well known Capital Journal Telegrapher and Prospector.

These three mines will be heard from in the near future. But to go into any detail or description of the mines would require more space than you would care to give, or The Journal readers perhaps care to peruse.

The town is the typical Nevada mining town, if not a little more so, for it is making the record in many ways. Five months ago there were a dozen or two people here and a half dozen tents. Today the town lines the canyon for three-quarters of a mile and spreads over the big flat to the west of the canyon, for a quarter of a mile. Tents everywhere and these are growing rapidly in number, though on the business streets, they are giving way to substantial frame buildings which are going up as fast as the lumber can be had—and it is, no uncommon sight to see a big freight wagon backed up to a building site unloading lumber, which a gang of carpenters take away as fast as it leaves the wagon.

To illustrate Tex Rickard, he of Gans-Nelson fame, bought a lot on Main street paying $800 for it. Ten days later a handsome one story building, 30 by 100 feet, was finished and painted, a dance was held in it the tenth night, and the next morning a 30-foot bar, stock of liquors, gambling outfits and all the paraphernalia belonging and appertaining to a Nevada saloon were in place, and five barkeepers passing out the red red booze to hundreds of arid throated miners. The institution cost in all $30,000.

Main street is packed with a buzzing crowd of men, until it looks like circus day in Salem, and there is a continuous rattle of hammer and boom of blasts. Big twelve and fourteen mule teams loaded with freight line every block. Four six horse stages carrying from 14 to 17 passengers each arrive daily and more than a dozen autos are making two trips daily to railroad points, carrying on an average fine persons each and making the trip to Schurz, 30 miles, in an hour and forty minutes.

Saloons are everywhere and nearly all of them carry a full quota of gambling, games, furo, roulette, craps, twenty-one and dozen of others, all intent on separating the outsider from his money. There are many women here, braving with their husbands the hardships of the run of civilization, and there are also others. The Babylonian part of the town lies in a side canyon, as apparently everybody knows, and there the sound of revelry is heard from noon until the following morning. There "Ragtime Kelley," a masculine terpsichore, holds forth, the dance house king, and there the piano tinkles and the resined horse-tail wakes to life the desiccated intestines of the deceased feline, until they squall again as discordantly as did their one time owner upon the family woodshed in the days of love's young dream. Here the sturdy miner and rough-shod teamster whirl the sylph-like forms of the modern Salomes in the mazy measures of the dreamy waltz at four bits a whirl including the drinks. The girls are a trifle shelf-worn, for have they not tripped it merrily in every camp in the state for lo! these many years? They are sun browned and dust blown, from long association with the desert, but when hand painted and enameled they are to some apparently good to look upon, for the dance of death, has many patrons.

On the other hand, last Sunday religious services were conducted in two places, one of which was the undertaking shop. To get back to business, for I am prone to digression—arrangements have been completed for putting in four fair sized mills six miles from town where water can be obtained from wells. The water for drinking purposes, etc., is hauled four miles and sells for $2 a barrel. It is fairly good but doesn't size up with Salem's supply not by a long way.

Last week the business men and mineowners concluded to build a railroad to connect with the S. P. at Schurz or Walker Lake, 30 miles. Fifty thousand dollars was subscribed in two hours for the preliminary work. A petition asking for a right of way sent the county commissioners, negotiations for rails began, and it is expected the road will be running into Rawhide by July 4. It is expected the mills for working the ores of the district will be erected at the road's terminus on Walker Lake as there water is abundant and fuel available over the S. P. lines. At present wood is selling here at $30 per cord and is hauled about 30 miles. It is mostly nut pine, with some juniper. Lodging houses are plentiful, but still crowded. They are furnished with single cots placed close together, and cost 75 cents a shift, as some of them do double time. This, if they are all in one corral. If partitioned off with a few yards of calico so that one can have the utmost privacy the price is a dollar. A fairly good meal can be had for half a dollar and the necessities, whiskey and cigars are handed over the bar at two for a quarter. I think it will prove the greatest of Nevada's recent day camps, and that Tonopah, Goldfield and the rest are not in its class. It will add materially to the state's output before 1909 opens a new era for it.

SMILES

Poem prepared by M. J. Phillips of Baker City and read to the members at a recent meeting of the lodge:

If he's liking up, not down,
He's an Elk.
If he'd rather smile than frown,
He's an Elk.
If he's jolly, broad and fat,
If he wears a man's sized hat,
Take a tip from things like that,
He's an Elk.

If he sees some good in all,
He's an Elk.
If he helps the men who fall,
He's an Elk.
If he looks you in the eye,
Gives a courteous reply,
If he's shrewd, but never sly,
He's an Elk.

When he dies and goes above
Brother Elk.
To the Golden Lodge of Love,
Brother Elk.
Does St. Peter hesitate?
No, he swings the pearly gate,
"Come in, you don't have to wait,"
Brother Elk.

NEW SUBSCRIPTION SYSTEM WORKS WELL

The new ruling of the postoffice department which limits the length of time a newspaper may be sent to a subscriber after the expiration of the paid subscription, is going to prove popular with the reading public. The Capital Journal will mail out statements of account to all subscribers who are in arrears, and hopes to keep busy writing receipts for money. Subscribers, without single exception, express their hearty approval of the new plan. So far we have not lost a subscription, and judging from present indications it does not seem likely that we will. In conducting a credit business, this paper has always endeavored to use judgment as to whose names were placed on the list and whose were left off, and by so doing we have kept subscription losses down to the minimum. If the new ruling of the department is satisfactory to the subscribers, it is certain that it will be welcomed by the publishers. Any business man would rather do business for cash than on a credit basis, even though his losses on bad debts be kept at the lowest notch. So it would appear that the department is satisfied and the readers and publishers are satisfied—a case of satisfaction all around.

BEER PROMOTES TEMPERANCE

Recognized as a Food Product, and So Dealt With by the Government

It is being recognized the world over that the drinking of beer promotes temperance and sobriety to a far greater extent than all the prohibition laws on the statute books.

All enlightened European nations are encouraging the manufacture and consumption of light beers containing about three and one-half per cent alcohol, and the result has been most gratifying to all sincere lovers of temperance.

The United States government has taken a positive stand in this direction, the war department holding that the re-establishing of the army canteen for the sale of beer being an absolute necessity in the interest of temperance and sobriety.

Beer is today recognized as a "Food Product," and is so dealt with by the government.

All the great insurance companies have contradicted the lies that have been given currency through prohibition sources that the drinking of beer was a bar to securing insurance, and have lately published to the world at large the statement that those drinking beer moderately (not more than two quarts during twenty-four hours) were the very best of risks. The latest British life insurance reports show that the ratio of death rate among abstainers is thirty per cent greater than among moderate drinkers.

Beer is pure and wholesome, and the day is not far distant when it will be as much a part of the daily subsistence of every family as are milk, bread and other food necessities.

The beer brewed by the Salem Brewery Association is in every sense the very best that modern enterprise can produce. It speaks for itself and is its own best advertisement.
