

CAMPAIGN BEGINS SATURDAY NIGHT FOR CROSS-VALLEY RAILROAD

Stayton Boosters Get Little But Empty Promises From Portland Railroad Magistrates COMMITTEE O'BRIEN, OF THE SOUTHERN PACIFIC, DID NOT KNOW, BUT EXPRESSED AN INTEREST IN STAYTON. SUPERINTENDENT TALBOT, OF THE OREGON ELECTRIC, HAS STAYTON IN MIND, BUT CANNOT BUILD HIS YEAR. MANAGER WELCH, OF THE PORTLAND, SALEM, ALBANY, EUCLID & EASTERN, COULD MAKE NO DEFINITE PROMISE TO STAYTON.

The Stayton hustlers went to Portland to get an electric line, and will tackle the railroad at a big meeting of their committee Saturday night.

The committee, composed of E. O'Brien, president of the Willamette Development League; A. Huck, president of the Salem Business League; J. Frank Hughes, president of the Board of Trade, and Treasurer Richardson and J. C. Pery, of the Oregon Sienna Paint

Co., will go up from this city to help start the ball rolling for the Salem and Stayton railroad, the first of several lines across the valley, short lines to the Capital City.

The committee of Stayton boosters who were in the city yesterday were W. F. Klerker, Geo. Spaniol, R. A. Elwood, L. P. Brown, W. A. Wright, W. A. Weddie, Dr. H. A. Beauchamp, Jacob Spaniol, G. L. Brown, H. J. Marking, Charles Streff and E. D. Alexander.

WALKER COMING THROUGH

San Francisco, March 27.—Penny-broke in health, John Dalbey, assistant secretary of the California Safe Deposit Company, is anxious to return to San Francisco from New York to turn state's evidence against the financiers who are held responsible for the crash of the trust.

When he has made, through the confession, and he is willing to come back if he is promised a pardon. He disappeared immediately after the bank failed, and has been fugitive for four months. He was indicted for embezzlement by J. Dalsell Brown, Walter Bennett and James Treadwell, of the institution. Claims against him are said to directly involve three men.

JEANS FEAR THE JAPANESE

March 27.—Fear of a Japanese campaign of assassination has stirred officials in the United States and foreign departments. The object of the campaign is being exercised by all the offices to learn the names of all callers before granting admittance.

A Swedish jaw is not pleasant. Whether caused by neuralgia, toothache or sore throat, Ballard's Snow Liniment cures the swelling and relieves the pain. The great and sure cure for rheumatism, cuts, burns, bruises, sprains and all aches and pains.

BRUZZI MAY BE RECALLED

(United Press Leased Wire.)

London, March 27.—Duke D'Abuzzi, reported to be engaged to Miss Katherine Elkins, is said to be prepared to take steps to ask the recall of the Italian ambassador at Washington, because he blames that official for divulging his identity during his visit to America.

This report was circulated today upon the arrival of the duke at Liverpool. He would not discuss the report, but it is said, on what seems to be good authority, that he feels that he would have been able to travel incognito had it not been for the interest the Italian ambassador at Washington had taken in his affair. Another report is that he will carry the matter directly to the king and ask for the diplomat's recall. Abuzzi refused also to say whether or not he was engaged to Miss Elkins.

GENERAL GREELY RETIRES

(United Press Leased Wire.)

Washington, March 27.—Many changes in the personnel of the army will be brought about by the retirement today of Major-General Adolphus W. Greely, famous as an Arctic explorer, and formerly chief signal officer, and now commander of the department of the Dakotas.

Brigadier-General Winfield S. Edgerly, who has been temporarily in charge of the department since January, when General Greely was granted leave of absence, will succeed him. Brigadier-General Chas. B. Hall, now commandant of the army school of the line at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, becomes a major-general today, taking the place of General Greely. General Hall will be succeeded by Colonel John B. Kerr, of the Twelfth cavalry, stationed at Fort Oglethorpe.

General Greely retires under the operation of the age limit. He was born in Newburyport, Mass., March 27, 1844. His army career has been long and meritorious, and he is also famous as an explorer. He discovered a new land north of Greenland, crossing Grinnell land to the polar sea. He built thousands of miles of telegraph in Porto Rico, Cuba, Philippines and China.

Has Summoned Witnesses—District Attorney McNary has had subpoenas issued for witnesses in all state cases, returnable March 31, when he will sit as a grand jury. There will probably be 30 witnesses brought from different parts of the district to testify in these cases.

THE DALLAS OBSERVER PLAYS THE OREGONIAN

(The Dallas Observer.)

The Observer would like to suggest that a mighty good way to keep Governor Chamberlain out of the senate would be for no Republican to vote for him at the June election. By pursuing this course, a Republican senator would be assured and the desired result could be accomplished without putting old corrupt and discredited machine politicians in charge of the state again.

Commenting on the foregoing paragraph, the Oregonian says: "Let us have none of the old corrupt, discredited politicians in charge of the state again; no man who ever has stood up for the principles and purposes of the Republican party and fought its battles. No more of Geer, or Simon, or Moody; no more of Lord, or Williams, or Fulton, or Fee. As a helper, of course, the Oregonian is not needed."

"Again, the simplicity of the appeal to Republicans or so-called Republicans not to vote for Chamberlain at the June election, is touching. It is so childlike and bland. What have these same voters been doing these many years? Are they expected to forsake Chamberlain now?"

"Brothers, you have turned down or cast out of the Republican party everybody who has or has had any force or character in pushing and sustaining its principles or purposes. Every man who has been earnest in his support of the Republican party is under the ban as a machine man. You will get on famously, no doubt. All happiness to you! It will be easy going, since party needs no organization and no helpers."—The Oregonian.

Dyspeptic, unreasoning, and vindictive! Not seeking to discriminate between friend or foe, but striking out blindly and vengefully in every direction! "You have disrupted the Republican party!" "You have cast out every Republican of prominence and influence!" "You have done this, and 'You' have done that! It would be interesting to know just who the Oregonian means by 'You.' Surely, that paper does not mean to include the Observer, which has always worked to the extent of its ability for party organization and the success of Republican principles. No man can point a finger at this paper and truthfully say that it has had any part in bringing about existing political conditions in Oregon.

At no time has the Observer said, or thought of saying, that the Oregonian was "not needed" as a helper in fighting the Republican battles. We have never said this, because it never was true. Nor have we sought to read any Republican out of the party. We could not have done so, if we would, and it is certain that we have had no desire to do so. Then why drag in the names of Mr. Geer or Mr. Moody, or Mr. Williams or Mr. Fee, or any other of the prominent Republicans named?

The editor has never voted for Mr. Chamberlain for any office, nor does he intend to in future. This paper has never printed a line (paid for, or otherwise), in favor of Chamberlain's candidacy for governor, attorney general or any other office. Can Mr. Scott say as much?

The Observer was fighting the primary law when nine out of ten newspapers in Oregon—the Oregonian included—were either working for its enactment or saying nothing against it. We fought the entire measure, with Statement No. 1 and all other trills and trimmings thereunto belonging or in any wise appertaining. We opposed the measure because we believed that it would lead to the very conditions that exist in Oregon today. Therefore, it does not become any paper to try to place the Observer among those responsible for present conditions.

This paper believes in organization for the preservation of the party and the carrying out of party policies, but it does not believe in "machine" politics, in the ordinary acceptance of that term. There is a vast difference between decent, legitimate organization and the banding together of a few scheming politicians who care nothing for party or party principles farther than they can use them for selfish ends. We are of the opinion that had the Republican party in Oregon been dominated a little less by these machine methods, it would have been in a healthier condition today.

To whom do we refer, when we speak of machine politicians? To the gang of political pirates who pursued their policy of rule or ruin in Oregon for nearly 30 years, and who finally disgraced the state in the eyes of the nation. To a few bosses whose odious methods not only made possible, but hastened, the adoption of the revolutionary direct primary. To the gang that defeated Mr. Scott in his honorable ambition to represent his state in the highest lawmaking body in the United States, and whose leaders, not content with betraying him, shamelessly gloated because one of their number gave to the public certain private correspondence that, by every law of decency and honor, should have been held sacred. To the same political bosses who are even now attempting to repair their old, discredited machine and again fasten their grip on the fair state of Oregon. Do we make our meaning plain?

The Oregonian sneers because the Observer urges Republicans to support their ticket in the coming election; because it appeals to Republicans to cease voting for Democrats for the important state and county offices. If a newspaper may not appeal to the voters of its party to stand by the party ticket, then, in heaven's name, to whom may it appeal? To the leaders of the gang that corrupted Oregon politics for 30 years? No thank you! If Mr. Scott desires to assume the role of a spectator and stand idly by while the old gang secures control of the state again, that is his affair. We agree with the Oregonian that appeals to party loyalty in the last few years have mostly been in vain, but if an appeal for party loyalty and decency and clean politics will avail nothing, then this paper has no other appeal to make.

The Observer had nothing to do with the enactment of the new primary law, but now that it is a law, we shall endeavor to respect and observe it. And we still maintain that the way to keep Mr. Chamberlain out of the senate is for no Republican to vote for him. It will be a difficult matter to make the average voter believe that it is necessary to have a machine to keep him in line and make him vote his ticket, and for this reason we believe it will be possible to elect a Republican senator and still prevent a few discredited bosses from securing control of the politics of the state again.—The Observer.

BIG DOUGH BAG TO BEAT RACE-TRACK BILL

(United Press Leased Wire.)

Albany, N. Y., March 27.—A $200,000 "dough bag," the biggest sent to Albany in the last decade, is said to have arrived today and been placed in the custody of a prominent Brooklyn politician, who has orders to distribute it among those senators who are "right" on the anti-racing bill.

According to report the bribe money was collected in New York last week, every bookmaker in the ring having been forced to give up. Had the bill to stop race track gambling been killed in the assembly yesterday, when a vote was taken, the money would not have been used. The passage of the measure by a vote of 125 to 7, however, showed the race track men that they must adopt heroic measures if they hope to win in the senate.

The gamblers now claim 23 of the 50 votes there. With the arrival of the "dough bag today, they are confident of landing the other necessary votes.

PARASITES THAT SAP LIFE EXPELLED BY NEW METHOD

The interest created in leading cities during the past year by young Mr. Cooper with his new preparation, is largely accounted for by a peculiar quality possessed by this medicine, which he calls his New Discovery.

Mr. Cooper believes that internal parasites, or tapeworms, are responsible for much ill health, and it is an undoubted fact that his medicine has expelled immense numbers of these creatures in various cities visited by him. The young man also believes that stomach trouble is the main cause of all ill health. He claims that few can have poor health with a good digestion. He further claims that his New Discovery medicine does nothing but tone up the stomach, yet it not only expels the parasites but relieves many other ailments not as a rule associated with stomach trouble.

Little Jessie Birdsall, daughter of Mrs. Ida Birdsall, living at 2138 Carroll avenue, Chicago, is among many relieved of a large parasite by Mr. Cooper's preparations during his stay in that city. In speaking of the matter to Mr. Cooper, the mother said: "My child Jessie, who is 14 years old has been suffering with this trouble for over seven years. Until this morning we did not know what the trouble was. She was extremely nervous; the least thing would upset her; her tongue was coated, and at times she would have a good appetite, then again could not bear the sight of food; she was restless at night, had a bad breath, especially when she got up of mornings. We tried everything to relieve her, but met with no success. We were just on the point of giving up trying anything else, when we began to read of Cooper's New Discovery. Several days ago we purchased this medicine. Jessie has been using it regularly, and this morning this parasite left her system. I don't wonder that she has always felt bad and nothing we would give her seemed to relieve her. Now that she is relieved of this tapeworm I feel sure that she will grow better each day, and enjoy perfect health. Mr. Cooper, your medicine is worth a thousand times more than your charge for it. I know of a number of people troubled the same way as Jessie has been, and I certainly expect to tell them personally to try your medicine."

We would advise anyone who has been troubled for some time with general poor health to try this great medicine. We are agent for it in this city.—J. C. Pery.

NAPOLEON BONAPARTE AND THE SIMPLE LIFE

Grattan did not always adhere to the details of the simple life which he first outlined. He multiplied his minimum needs. So did Napoleon when, in reviewing the past, he thought what he would do were he again at the outset of life.

In those moods thoughts of empire were farthest from his mind. Twelve francs a day would have sufficed. Dinner for 30 sons a day, and lodgings for a lous a month would have been the order. Then he would have been free to frequent the haunts of literary men, the libraries and the parquet of the theater.

"Oh, but I must have a servant," he would reflect, "I have been too much accustomed to one; I could not dress myself," which is a little helpless for the man with but 12 francs a day.

And, though he swore that the poor man was happier than himself and enjoyed his dinner better, yet the dream would pass into another phase in which he would be the benevolent patron of art and literature, to whom all men should go for approval and reward. They would not talk of arms and empires, but of things apart from the court and the camp, and he would entertain and enrich them, which could not be done on half a lous a day.—London Standard.

SENATOR FULTON ARRIVES AT PORTLAND.

Interviewed upon his arrival at Portland by the Telegram, he was asked:

"Have you changed to Statement No. 1?" he was asked.

"No," replied Fulton. "That is a matter which belongs to the men who are candidates for the legislature. I leave that to their conscience. If they want to subscribe to the statement, well and good, and if they do not, very well. The law is not mandatory, and leaves it optional. I do not wish to dictate what candidates for the legislature should do. They are seeking an office, and so am I, so why should I interfere with them?"

"I have always advocated the election of United States senators by the people, and this has probably given rise to the report that I am a Statement No. 1 man. I am neither for nor against it, and I stand on the declaration I made at Corvallis."
