Terrific Case of Indigestion.
Mr. Donald Robb, Jr., 16 Wrights Ave., Nova Scotia, Canada, Deputy Supreme Chief Ranger, Independent Order of Foresters, writes:
"While on a visit to Boston I must have eaten something that did not agree with my stomach, as a terrible case of indigestion followed. Peruna was recommended to me, and after using three bottles I was entirely cured. I therefore recommend Peruna to any one suffering with stomach trouble."

Every Trace of Catarrh Gone.
Mr. James P. Bracken, 610 Tenth Ave., New York City, N. Y., has occupied the office of Water Inspector of New York City for the past fifteen years. He carries on an extensive plumbing business at 610 Tenth Ave. He is Post Deputy of Grand Knights of Regina Cella Council Knights of Columbus, N. Y. He writes as follows:
"For nearly a dozen years catarrh has bothered me in one form or another. I was troubled with nasal catarrh, that had affected my stomach, which troubled me most in the morning. My appetite was poor, and I did not seem to relish my food. Indigestion bothered me at times also.
"I was advised to take Peruna, and I took it as prescribed for a month, when my cure was almost complete. Today there is not a trace of catarrh in my system, and I can say without hesitation that Peruna cured me."

Agreeable and Effective Tonic.
Corporal John Pinn, Washington, D. C., veteran soldier of the Civil War, a prominent Grand Army man and commander of the oldest post in the United States, John A. Rawlins Post No. 1, department of the Potomac, Grand Army of the Republic, writes:
"Peruna was recommended to me by many of my associates, and I have given it a fair trial. Have found it a most agreeable and effective tonic, pleasant, soothing, and leaves one free from the deleterious effects produced by the many nostrums now on the market. I have suffered from catarrhal affections the past winter, and have found Peruna most beneficial and commend it for what it has done for me."

Relieves Mind and Body.
Mr. G. W. Woodbury, Rogers, Ohio, formerly Captain and Center of the Hiram College Basketball Team, writes:
"When body and mind alike were weary and refused to work, a few doses of Peruna restored lost strength and invigorated quicker and more permanently than anything I know."

Unhesitatingly Recommends Pe-ru-na.
J. Edwin Browne, National Commander Army and Navy Union of U. S. A., 419 11th St., N. E. Washington, D. C., writes:
"I have no hesitation in endorsing your Peruna as a most efficient cure for catarrh. My own experience and that of many friends who have been benefited by its use recommend it to all persons suffering from that complaint."

Pe-ru-na Tablets.
For two years Dr. Hartman and his assistants have incessantly labored to create Peruna in tablet form, and their strenuous labors have just been crowned with success. People who object to liquid medicines can now secure Peruna tablets. These tablets represent the medicinal ingredients of Peruna, and each tablet is equivalent to one average dose.

The Family Relies on Pe-ru-na.
A. Howitt Nickerson, Captain U. S. Army, Adjutant General on General McCook's staff, writes from the Census Building, Washington, D. C., as follows:
"It affords me great pleasure to commend Peruna as a most excellent tonic with many medicinal qualities that assist nature in overcoming the various ills with which the human family is often afflicted, and is always in danger.
"As a general thing, I have been opposed to what are known as patent medicines, but Peruna has long since overcome this feeling. It is now, as it has been for a long time, a well-established family medicine with us, upon which we rely to give tired nature substantial restoration."

ROOSEVELT AND THE PEOPLE

Why He Should Be Re-elected President of the United States

By FRANK H. NORCROSS
Justice of the Supreme Court of Nevada

This paper, submitted in competition with hundreds of others, was awarded the prize of $1000 offered by the Hon. Jonathan Bourne, United States senator from Oregon, for the best argument in support of certain propositions, which he laid down, to the effect that Theodore Roosevelt should and would be selected and elected for a second elective term.

The assertion that "the sovereign people and not Theodore Roosevelt, the individual and public servant, will decide who shall be his successor" is so manifest that it will not admit of argument to the contrary. The views of the President are entitled to most respectful consideration, but they are not necessarily conclusive, even where the question is whether he shall succeed himself.

The position of the President regarding his own candidacy is well known. Immediately following the election in 1904 he issued a statement to the people, which statement he reiterated on the 11th of December last, upon the occasion of the call of the Republican National Committee for the convention at Chicago. That statement is as follows:

The only custom that prevails in this country regarding the terms of office of our Presidents applies to elective terms. The President, unquestionably, does not come within the letter of this custom. If the custom is to undergo modification Mr. Roosevelt certainly has not the right to all the say regarding that modification. Doubtless, when Mr. Roosevelt issued the foregoing statement, he was prompted more or less by modesty. For him to insist, however, that the views therein expressed are conclusive would be the height of arrogance. It is probably the fact that the people do not care for any innovations upon the custom in question. The great mass of the American people are well pleased with the administrations of President Roosevelt. They want him for two elective terms, and they have the right to say whether his re-election will be a violation of a custom of debatable wisdom. Mr. Roosevelt has never been an advocate of short measure in any of his dealings with the people. There is neither reason nor consistency in his saying now that the people shall accept three and one-half years as a full term when they are entitled to four. The citizens of this country are already entitled to the full bushel of wheat. If, in order to obtain it, they must take it heap d and running over, who will object, unless it be those who, for personal reasons, do not want the people to have all that is coming to them?

"I am deeply sensible of the honor done me by the American people in thus expressing their confidence in what I have done and have tried to do. I appreciate to the full the solemn responsibility this confidence imposes upon me, and I shall do all that in my power lies not to forfeit it. On the 4th of March next I shall have served three and a half years, and these three and a half years constitute my first term. The wise custom which limits the President to two terms regards the substance and not the form, and under no circumstances will I be a candidate for or accept another nomination."

The only reason offered by the President why he will not again become a candidate is that it will violate the "substance" of the custom. To insist upon such a conclusion, in view of all the facts to be considered, would place "his own personal desire or egotistical opinions paramount to the combined wishes

There is no reason why the foregoing announcement should be accepted by the American people as conclusive simply because it comes from Mr. Roosevelt. If there is room for a difference of opinion as to "fact or reason, or both, the good judgment of the whole people must be, and is, decisive.

The only reason offered by the President why he will not again become a candidate is that it will violate the "substance" of the custom. To insist upon such a conclusion, in view of all the facts to be considered, would place "his own personal desire or egotistical opinions paramount to the combined wishes and intelligence of the Republican party and the electorate of the nation." As a matter of fact, the people will not have had the substance of two administrations of President Roosevelt at the close of his present term. To prove this, all that is necessary is to quote from the language of the President and cite a little of our recent history. In that dark hour of universal sorrow following immediately upon the death of our loved President McKinley, President Roosevelt was notified of the President's death by the members of Mr. McKinley's cabinet, present in Buffalo, and advised at once take the oath of office as President. The reply of the Vice-President is significant:

"I shall take the oath at once in accordance with your request. In this hour of deep and terrible national bereavement I wish to say that it shall be my aim to continue absolutely unbroken the policy of President McKinley for the peace and prosperity and honor of our loved country."

This declaration quieted the hearts of the people that there might be a change in the policy of the administration, the uncertain nature which would have a tendency to set, to a greater or less extent, financial and commercial interests of the country. In line with this solemn declaration, the President requested the members of McKinley's cabinet to remain at the head of their respective departments, constitute his official family, as had constituted his predecessor. This invitation was accepted. Mr. Roosevelt is pleased to call this term as, in reality, the second term of President McKinley. Theodore Roosevelt, acting in a capacity similar to that of an administrator with the will to do it. It may be conceded that in those three and a half years the people obtained some intimation of character of administrations of Roosevelt would inaugurate, should he be elected President, and they come free to carry out his own policies. As a matter of fact, he never lost sight of his declaration, made in all solemnity at Buffalo, "to carry out absolutely broken the policy of President McKinley." How, then, can his election violate the substance of custom? It violates neither.

If the great mass of the American people, regardless of party affiliation, desire that the President cease himself, and I believe this unquestionably, it would be for them to regard the statement of office of President of the United States is so excited, and its

Labor Leader Retires.
Indianapolis, Ind., April 1.—John Mitchell retired today as president of the United Mine Workers of America and was succeeded by Thos. L. Lewis of Ohio.

Mr. Mitchell stepped down after spending many years of his life in the labor movement and gaining the reputation of being one of the world's foremost labor leaders. Under his leadership the United Mine Workers of America have grown from a mere handful of miners to an organization with 360,000 members. The event of his whole career that stands out most prominently is his successful management of the great strike on the anthracite district in 1903.

The labor leader has not announced his plans for the future, but his name has been mentioned as a possible Democratic candidate for governor of Illinois. His home is in Spring Valley in that state.

Rioting in Philadelphia.
Philadelphia, Penn., April 1.—Closely following the throwing of a bomb in a street riot in New York city last Saturday, several thousand unemployed men who sought to hold a street meeting today in Philadelphia clashed with the police and several of them were injured.

The riot occurred on the sight of Hammerstein's new opera house when a squad of policemen charged the crowd. For a few minutes a reputation of the New York trouble was feared, but after the jobless mob was clubbed it was dispersed without further trouble. The men scattered in all directions, some of them suffering from injuries inflicted by the policemen's club. Several policemen were stationed on the scene of the riot to prevent a fresh outbreak.
