

Doctors

You could not please us better than to ask your doctor about Ayer's Cherry Pectoral for coughs, colds, croup, bronchitis. Thousands of families always keep it in the house. The approval of their physician and the experience of many years have given them great confidence in this cough medicine.

MEMORIAL OF RESPECT FOR THE LATE HON. TILMON FORD

At the opening session, Monday, April 6, 1908, in the Circuit Court of the State of Oregon, for the County of Marion, there was adopted this memorial of respect to the Hon. Tilmon Ford, deceased:

The special committee chosen by the Marion County Bar association to leave to report the following memorial of respect to Hon. Tilmon Ford, deceased:

Memorial of Respect. Tilmon Ford was born on the 5th of May, 1843, in what was then organized Indian country, probably within the boundaries of the present state of Nebraska, while his parents were crossing the plains to Oregon. The family arrived in Oregon in the autumn of that year and settled on a farm about five miles north of Salem, where they resided many years. Tilmon Ford was the eldest of eight children born to his parents, and left surviving him a sister and two brothers: Dr. Charles Ford Warren, of Portland; Charles D. Ford, of Rochester, Montana; and Charles D. Ford, of Seattle, Washington.

Entered into life amid the strenuous conditions and severe hardships incident to pioneer endeavors, his character was largely moulded by the environment. Like most of the pioneer boys he assisted his father on the farm between the short sessions of district school. Before he passed out of his teens he was met with the common youthful desire for adventure and joined the ranks of gold seekers who rushed to the Eldorado in Northern Idaho. He labored zealously as a prospector and miner for about three years. He met with various successes and reverses, and came in direct contact with men of all shades of character. These experiences gave Ford a broad insight into human nature, which served him well throughout his life. Having saved two thousand dollars from his mining ventures he expended it in getting his education upon his return to Salem. He graduated from the State university in 1870, was admitted to the bar in 1872, and immediately began the practice of law.

He established a law office in the Patton building in Salem, and worked at the same desk in the same building almost 35 years. He soon won reputation as a reliable legal adviser, a tactful trial lawyer and an attorney of unusual ability. He was grounded in the philosophy of law, and readily applied the established principles of law and equity to matters under consideration. He was long recognized as a leader of the bar of Marion county and had a state-wide reputation as an advocate. His skill in clearly stating facts to a jury made him a strong advocate in the trial of cases upon their merits. He had a faculty possessed by few, of instilling into the consciences of men the vital truths which win souls to the cause of right. The suits which brought him most to public attention were the damage cases against the Southern Pacific company, arising from the wreck of a passenger train at Lake Labish in this county, where a great many people were injured. He was attorney for nearly all the claimants, and won every case. Mr. Ford was not a speculator, but his financial investments were characterized by the same prudence and foresight displayed in his legal career. Castion was one of the watchwords of his character. Whether acting for himself or others he was always vigilant, energetic and honest. He was slow to give his word, but when once given it was his bond. By carefully investing the fruits of his labor, he had amassed a fortune perhaps not exceeded by any practicing lawyer in Oregon.

His ability as a public speaker made Mr. Ford a strong factor in politics and he served Marion county as its representative in the legislative assembly of the state at the sessions of 1880, 1882 and 1893. He it was who introduced and secured the passage of the bill which removed the State Insane Asylum from Portland to Salem. As an active practitioner he had large opportunity of knowing the rules of practice in our courts were defective and did much to correct and improve our laws. It has well been said "He grew to manhood with this western commonwealth, a part of it, and left his impress on its policies in the courts and in legislation."

He was chosen one of the presidential electors in 1900, and during that campaign, as well as many others in which he had engaged, his audiences were highly instructed and entertained. He was one of the most popular Republican speakers in the state.

In the summer of 1900, accompanied by his sister, Dr. Angie Ford Warren, he made a tour of Europe, and latterly spent much time in traveling throughout the United States.

He at all times evinced an active interest in public affairs. During the last years of his life he suffered much from the effect of a serious accident, but bore his misfortune with patience and fortitude, and with slight intermissions continued his professional labors until within a few days of his demise, which occurred on March 1, 1908, at Salem, Oregon.

Tilmon Ford was the product of pioneer conditions, and illustrated the qualities of the men of those times by integrity and candor in all his dealings with other men. He was generous to his friends and helpful to those less fortunate than himself in the struggles of life. His modesty obscured most of his many acts of kindness to those about him, and he ministered to the needy, not for fame, but in obedience to the promptings of a generous heart. Were one blossom carried to his grave for each kind deed, he would be now resting beneath a wilderness of flowers.

Resolved, That these memoirs be duly entered in the records of this court and that a copy be furnished to the supreme court of the state of Oregon, and to the sister and brothers of our deceased brother, and that copies be furnished to the newspapers for publication.

LOCAL BASEBALL BY JOCK

It appears that Milo Rasmussen, first baseman for the Fairmount club last season, did not make the nine this year. Taking all features of the first sack position into consideration, a more likely player could not be found in the city than "Mike" as an amateur. Rasmussen has ever action of a first-class baseman in the younger aggregation as was plainly evidenced last year when he held down the number one corner both for Fairmount and the woolen mill nine in the city league games.

The Athenian Giants, members of the Tri-City league, are said to have a pitcher with various kinds of mysteries up his sleeve. The Cherry Pickers have several Sherlock Holmes men.

Portland played an errorless game Sunday forenoon with the San Francisco aggregation and lost out by four scores. If that isn't hard luck, please, what is it?

The new 1908 baseball guide is very nearly the same as that of last season regarding rules, etc., although it may possibly place a little more power in the hands of the umpire. It appears as though a little more leg power would be more beneficial to a few well known umpers.

It is very seldom one will hear an American say a baseball game does not cut any ice with him, but of late one can hear most any place that a ball game in July cuts more ice in one day than a football game does all winter.

PAMELIA LAKE HAS GONE DRY

According to Fish Story of Several Trappers Who Have Recently Returned from There.

News was brought to this city last Saturday by Mr. Tom Smith of Stayton, which will no doubt be received by the Salem rod and line enthusiasts as a real bit of hard luck, owing to the fact that it involves the complete destruction of one of the finest fishing spots in Oregon, known as Pamela lake, near Mt. Jefferson, on what is called the Bunch Grass Mountain, and according to Mr. Smith's statement, there remains only the dry bed in which the body of water formerly stood.

Pamela lake covered quite a space, it being one-half mile wide and about two miles long, with apparently no outlet, the water being freezing cold and very clear. In the fishing season the banks were seldom unoccupied by the lovers of that sport, and some of the finest specimens of the speckled beauties ever exhibited in this city were caught in that lake.

The news of the lake's disappearance was given to Mr. Smith on Monday, the 16th., of last month by two trappers situated up in around Mt. Jefferson, they having made a trip to Stayton, and at the time they had passed that point they saw thousands of fish principally trout, lying dead, and animals of every description feeding on them. The two men could form no suggestion as to the cause of the water leaving its bounds, but from the examination made, they found quite a large crack in one of the walls through which the water undoubtedly passed.

It is thought by those at Stayton who are thoroughly acquainted with the actions of the Santiam river, that the extremely high water which

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN

LYDIA E. PINKHAM

No other medicine has been so successful in relieving the suffering of women or received so many genuine testimonials as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

In every community you will find women who have been restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Almost every one you meet has either been benefited by it, or has friends who have.

The reason why Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is so successful is because it contains ingredients which act directly upon the feminine organism, restoring it to a healthy normal condition.

Women who are suffering from those distressing ills peculiar to their sex should not lose sight of these facts or doubt the ability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to restore their health.

prevailed in that river several weeks ago, was due to the large volume of water released from Pamela lake. If such is the case, the Santiam river must have received a good many lake fish.

WORKING TO STAMP OUT ANIMAL PESTS

Governor Chamberlain has secured the assurance of James Wilson, secretary of agriculture, that the federal government, through the Bureau of Animal Industry, will continue to co-operate with this state in the eradication of the disease of "scabies" from sheep. The assistance of the government, which was also secured by Governor Chamberlain, has proved a great benefit during the two years the state and federal authorities have worked together, and "scabies" will probably be a thing of the past during the same period in the future.

Governor Chamberlain has written another letter to Secretary Wilson requesting the assistance of the government in fighting that scourge of horses, "the mange." A reply will probably be received from Washington during the next ten days.

E. C. DeWitt & Co., Chicago, Ill.—Gentlemen—In 1897 I had a disease of the stomach and bowels.
