

SENATOR ROSS ON TRIAL BANK TROUBLE

WAS SECURED IN LESS
TWO HOURS — COM-PLETED MOSTLY OF FARMERS ABLE LAWYERS ON BOTH SIDES.

More than two hours were considered yesterday by the attorneys selecting a jury to try J. Thornton. Twenty-one men of the county were examined; nine were excused either by the prosecution, or by the defense. Following is the list of the accepted jurors:

John Satiger, farmer, Sublimity; W. Knight, farmer, Silverton; R. Riches, farmer, five miles west of Silverton; H. A. Slegmund, farmer, Mehama; George Brown, farmer, Aumville; Joseph Kirsch, farmer, Mount Angel; Charles F.
Merchant, Aumville; J. F.
Miller, Monitor; P. L. Kennerly, farmer, Woodburn; James farmer, West Woodburn; W. Myers, farmer, Stayton, and W.
Berberly, farmer, Silverton.

peremptory challenges were used by the defense and three by the prosecution. J. N. McKay was excused by the defense on challenge of cause, as he said he had been reading Portland dailies pretty closely and formed an opinion. Each was asked if he had any objection with E. N. Kedy, Harvey Scott, or Harvey Scott, of Portland. Each one was asked if he had any objection to the newspapers and a preference was made for those men who had not read newspapers.

W. Knight was accepted because he had not read any Portland dailies. Charles Merchant was accepted by the defense because he had read nothing but the papers in the "Journal." Several challenges by the defense because they had looked at editorials in "Oregonian." One man was excused by the court because of illness opening the case for the state Martin L. Pipes presented in a clear manner the evidence which he said the state hoped to substantiate with their evidence.

He pointed out that when that case in the history of the Title Guarantee and Trust company when he paid out its own money, the court had paid out the money held which constituted the education fund of the state of Oregon and by State Treasurer Steel.
In this act, said Judge Pipes, J.
Pipes Ross, the defendant in this case as well as T. T. Burkhardt, R. A. Atchison and George Hill, are responsible and are criminally guilty. But this point was dismissed once by Wallace McCamant.

He said it could not be proved that his client was at any time in possession of the education fund of the state of Oregon, but the Title Guarantee & Trust company only had possession of the fund.

McCament intimated from the fact that the immediate contention of the defense would be that the fund had been construed differently than it had been construed by Judge Steel. He said he would prove the fund had not converted the fund to his own use as the state charged.

He was further stated by McCamant that the jury would be called in this case to discriminate between misfortune and crime, and the impression that should be conveyed as a last resort, he appealed to the personal feelings and sympathies of the juror.

STATEMENT NO. 1 CARRIES DOUGLAS

Review: From a legislative standpoint the result of the primaries as regards the Republicans, as well as the Democrats, may be considered a victory for Statement No. 1. While Calkins' majority over Fulton does not exceed 100 votes, that he should have won at all is noteworthy from the fact that the Statement was denounced by the central committee. One of the men who participated in that denunciation was A. F. Stearns, of Oakland, who wound up third in the three cornered fight for the state senatorial nomination. Another was J. A.
Buchanan, who, though unopposed in his candidacy for the joint representative nomination (with Jackson county), ran far behind his party vote indicating that the independence of the party elector is going to loom up largely against him in the June election. The defeat of C.
S. Jackson, together with Stearns, for the nomination for senator, is the logical sequence of a two-sided platform, which afforded powerful campaign material for his successful opponent, Albert Abraham, who supported Statement No. 1 equivocally. Of the two successful nominations for representative, George Jones supports the Statement while E. R. Applegate did not commit himself either way.

NO SHEEP SOLD

Deadlock Between Buyers and Growers Check Sales.

Reports from Umatilla county state that not a sheep has been sold this spring, although the season is well advanced. Compared with last spring the situation is radically different for the deadlock between the buyers and growers is much worse than usual. According to one buyer the drought that has prevailed all over the sheep region for the past few weeks has affected the situation while another reason that tends to delay matters this spring is the fact that the growers do not know just how much of their flocks they will have to sell.

But a few days ago the Oregon executive committee petitioned the forestry bureau to forego any cut to be allowed in the number of sheep to be allowed upon the reserves in this state this summer. If this petition is granted it will help much in strengthening the market, for if the cut is not made it means that there will be 100,000 less sheep for sale than otherwise.

From appearances there will be little doing in the way of sheep selling this spring until the forestry bureau sets upon the woolgrowers' petition or at least until the situation assumes a more definite shape.

As is true in the wool market the buyers this year, are talking low prices on the strength of the financial condition, the prospects of tariff changes, drought, etc.

But on the other hand the buyers maintain that the sheep and wool markets should both be strong and they object strenuously to accepting lower prices for their surplus sheep.
Thus far no prices have been established in this county and, according to those well informed it is impossible to tell at this time what figures will prevail.
