lington, May 7.—When Greeley said "Go West, man" he probably did not his disposal the statistics to he soundness of his advice. ntier west has disappeared, ew west has been born, nev- s it would appear that it at greater inducements to e earner of today than any ction of the United States. tern man or woman who is d in a manufacturing estab- receives a much greater ation than his fellow work- ewhere, according to a state- ued today by the census The average per week out the west is $13.65 as $10.62 in the central north $10.11 in the north Atlantic; the south central, and $7.31 outh Atlantic.

dollars is the average weekly roughout the country. Some verage double this amount ond cutters earn $21.68 per and, on the other hand, the t, illiterate workers in the ine industry, those who the crude gum, receive only age of $5.23 a week. Work- the cotton seed oil and cake y receive on an average only a week.

of these last two classes are employed in the South, and oor compensation emphasizes t that the southern workman s less than his brother crafts- nywhere else in the country. nsus bureau explains the low in a measure by directing to the comparatively re- velopment of the factory sys- d the large percentage of and children and negroes d.

statistics which the bureau plied, including 123,703 es- eats and 3,297,819 wage , it is shown that women r less than men. In the cot- ills, female operatives make week; in shoe factories they 7.60.

evidence of the extent to women earn their own livelihood out of three million odd em- 588,599, or 17.9 per cent of the gentler sex. However, drew only 11 per cent of the st, or $3,633,481, as against 0,287 earned by the man. tics of child labor are start- Out of the total of employes, , or 2.7 per cent were chil- receiving $312,023 per week. Thus the average child worker received only $3.46 a week, as contrasted with the man's average earnings of $11.16 and the woman's of $6.17.

In cotton mills, children earn only $3.21 per week, on an average; in tobacco factories the earnings were still lower, the average being only $3 a week, while in pickle factories the average was only $1.84 a week.

In connection with the cotton industry, the census office makes an interesting comparison of the earnings in the north and those in the south. By confining the comparison establishments engaged in the manufacture of print cloths, it eliminates to a considerable extent the differences between the character of the industry in the two sections, and thus presents a fair basis to measure differences in earnings. This comparison shows that the average earnings of men were, in New England $8.52; in the south 5.14. For women the average was, in New England $7.23; in the south 3.77; while for children the average in New England was $4.45, and in the south $2.73.

For all classes of cotton operatives the average weekly earnings in the north were $7.62 as contrasted with mut $4.16 in the south.

One of the most striking conclusions inferred by the census report on this subject is that the figures indicate that the differences in average earnings between large and small establishments are slight. In those employing less than 10 wage-earners or more, it was $10.24.

Whooping Cough.

"In February our daughter had the whooping cough. Mr. Lane, of Hartland, recommended Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and said it gave his customers the best of satisfaction. We found it as he said, and can recommend it to anyone having children troubled with whooping cough," says Mrs. A. Goss, of Durand, Mich. For sale by Dr. Stone's drug store.

Brave Men Have Their Weak Spots.

But everybody is coward and hero both. Some people are afraid of one thing and some are afraid of another. One man would go to war who would not go to sea. Another man delights in the "terrors of the deep" who is afraid of lightning. I knew an English naval officer who was described as the "bravest man in the service." He was not only brave. He was a byword for recklessness wherever soldiers or sailors met. On one occasion, on a bet, he went up in a balloon, agreeing ot descend in a parachute. He knew little or nothing about parachutes. When he was ready to come down he found that the "harness' of the parachute, which was supposed to go under his arms couldn't be disentangled. So he seized the bar of the parachute in his hands and dropped out of the basket. In Cuba he joined one of our batteries at El Caney. Our men proceeded to bombard a Spanish blockhouse. The first shot was a good one, and the English visitor showed his appreciation by slapping the artillery officer on the back. At that minute the Spanairds replied with an even better shot. The correspondents and some of the soldiers behind the gun, seeing the shell coming, dove into the bushes for cover. The shell burst with terrific explosion. Everybody thought that everybody else was killed. Out of the cloud of dust and splinters emerged the sailor man. His face was red, but only moderately excited; his monocle was held firmly in his eye; he was leaning forward, clapping his hands and shouting to an enemy some miles distant: "Well played, sir. Played indeed! Capital! Capital!" as if he were applauding a fine catch at cricket. Another time a shell burst very near him, and everybody in the neighborhood thought he had been killed. But by some curious chance he escaped and was heard to remark; "Extraordinary! The same thing happened to me at Omdurman." These and a hundred stories are told about his intrepidity and coolness in the presence of danger. No doubt some of them are fables, but even the existence of many fables about a man's gallant deeds is pretty good proof of his courage. I was talking about these stories one day with a man who knew him well. "Most of them are true," said he, "but do you know, I never saw a greater coward in illness than ——. Whenever he has a toothache he 's sure he's going to die."—American Magazine.

Not the Right Name.

She was extremely bashful when she entered the florist's shop.

"I—I'd like to get some flowers for a young man's birthday party," she said, blushing a cherry red.

"Yes, miss," replied the polite florist, with a low bow. "How would sweet williams do?"

She was all confusion.

"I'm afraid they wouldn't answer," she faltered. You see, he is not a William; he—he is a sweet Charlie."—Chicago News.

Valued Same As Gold.
