

ONLY TWO DAYS IN WHICH TO DO IT MUST SELL ALL Friday and Saturday

The management has decided that the doors of the Yokohama Tea Co. will again be thrown open for two days more selling of the sensational heartbreaking selling in an effort to close out the great $50,000 stock of this company. Thousands of dollars worth of the biggest kind of bargains have been carried off during the tens days sale, every day of which has been history-making for Salem, but thousands of dollars worth of the finest merchandise remains. The force of clerks spent yesterday bringing goods up from the basement to replenish the depleted tables and shelves and marking the goods at new rock bottom prices such as will eclipse all previous efforts at bargain giving, and positively compel the public to carry away the goods today and tomorrow.

Perils of London Streets.
"Knocked Down by a Motor"
* * * is becoming a common heading of newspaper paragraphs, and it seems to us that the people on foot have a right to claim some further protection against accident than is provided for them by the acuteness of their senses and their own alertness, especially as there are wayfarers who have not the faculty of taking things at the right time or of successfully steering clear of two streams of motor traffic proceeding in opposite directions. Moreover, the absent-minded are entitled to some consideration. The tooting of the horn is, as a rule, not far short of being simultaneous with the approach almost to touching point of the swiftly moving motor. * * * Individuals who were not previously nervous are rapidly becoming so when the crossing of a street amounts almost to a rush across a busy railway junction. The right of the pedestrian to the road is gradually being wrested from him, and certainly most motor drivers have little respect for him. This right must not be yielded, and the conductors of motor traffic on the roads must be made to learn that pedestrians have as much claim to the use of the road as they have. What we think should be done, now that the old relatively slow horse traffic is being so rapidly ousted by motor vehicles, is that more "islands" should be placed in the main streets. Such refuges at least enable the pedestrian to keep an eye on one stream of traffic at a time. But it is next to impossible to calculate upon the safe chances of passing through two lines of fast motor traffic going in opposite directions. We think, therefore, that the public should be assisted in this matter and that more "islands" should be placed in the streets. We commend the suggestion to the police and the street authorities, as we are convinced that the risks of crossing the busy streets, which are very rapidly increasing, would be considerably reduced if the could be divided, at shorter intervals than is now the case, into distinct up and down lanes—Lancet.

Copenhagen is full of streets men, while farmers are suffering lack of laborers.
