ODD FELLOWS CLOSING WORK

The three-days convention of the Odd Fellows grand lodge is drawing to a close, and is regarded as one of the most successful in history. This afternoon the grand parade took place from the Odd Fellows temple to the state house.

Social events concluded Wednesday's labors, a literary and social program at the representative hall, with address of welcome by Col. Stockton of this city, and punch served at the conclusion by the Salem ladies. The Muscovite order parade in uniforms and a light mist on Court street, and banquetted at the Elks hall.

Both the assembly and the grand lodge worked hard all the forenoon on routine matters relating to the order, and both will install this afternoon, although it is going to crowd them hard to get through.

All unite in voting Salem the ideal convention city. The next grand lodge will be held at Albany, that city winning out over Hood River, Eugene and Corvallis.

An excellent program has been prepared for the final event in the commencement exercises of the 1908 law class of Willamette university. The exercises will take place at the M. E. church at 8:30 this evening, and will be as follows:

(Pipe organ solo.)
Concert Rondo—Albert Hollin, Thomas S. Roberts.
Invocation—Rev. Philip E. Bauer.
Soprano solo, "Angel's Serenade," Broga—Edna Earle Browning.
Violin obligato—Lillian Stege.
Address—Hon. Julius C. Moreland.

MARTIAL TROUBLES IN MINTYRE FAMILY

A suit for divorce was filed yesterday in the circuit court by Ethel McIntyre against her husband, William McIntyre, the plaintiff, alleging cruel and inhuman treatment on the part of her husband.

The complaint says that for two years the matrimonial state was normally happy. One night, to Mrs. McIntyre's surprise her husband came home very late, and in an intoxicated condition. When she remonstrated with him he brutally assaulted her.

When the husband became sober he asked forgiveness, and the marital relations were resumed on condition that the husband should behave himself in the future.

According to the complaint, however, McIntyre failed to keep his promise. He got drunk continually. Domestic affairs became worse and worse, until finally the husband not only beat his wife whenever he became intoxicated, but even tried to kill her. His favorite weapons were the axe and the razor, and these Mrs. McIntyre hid, thereby, she alleges, saving her life.

The wife says she was always kind and forgiving, and took her husband back even after he had been sent to jail for larceny. But he never appreciated it, and now the wife says she will not give him another chance. She asks that she have the custody of her two year old child, and that the father be compelled to support it.

NO JAPS SAYS CHAMBELAIN

(United Press Lensed Wire.)
Roseburg, Or., May 21.—Governor Chamberlain has come out flat-footed against the assimilation of the Japanese in the commonwealth of Oregon.

"I would rather let my children go uneducated than allow them to sit with a Japanese in the school room," he declared Wednesday night in a speech here. The statement was greeted with applause.

Governor Chamberlain is stumping the state in the interests of his candidacy for the United States senatorship.

ABSOLUTE CURE FOR DIPHTHERIA

(United Press Lensed Wire.)
Chicago, May 21.—Dr. Ernest Jentsch has sprung a surprise in medical circles by the announcement that he has discovered a treatment which is an absolute cure for diphtheria.

With this remedy, which he calls a "vegetable antitoxine" or lobella, he claims to have cured 150 cases of diphtheria by administering it hypodermically.

Although lobella is known to be a poison among physicians, Dr. Jentsch has demonstrated that it is harmless when it is used in this way. At the request a physician attending a meeting of medical men at which he announced his discovery Jentsch injected thirty drops of the antitoxine into his body. Not one of the physicians present had ever before heard of the use of lobella as a cure for diphtheria.

GOULD LINES WILL EXTEND INTO NORTHWEST

(United Press Lensed Wire.)
Los Angeles, Cal., May 21.—Edwin Gould, pathfinder for the "Ocean to Ocean" railroad ambition of his brother, George, announced that the Gould lines will not only reach San Francisco, but they will enter Los Angeles and the ports of the Pacific Northwest.

Mr. Gould arrived in this city from Texas in his private car "Dixie."

Gould is a director of the Western Pacific and makes the positive announcement that the ocean to ocean Gould line will be consummated with the early completion of the West and Pacific into San Francisco and that the lines of the Goulds will also extend to Seattle and Portland in the near future.

Further, Mr. Gould declares that the Pacific coast will be the scene of the most extensive railroad operations ever known.

Almost Drowned in Tub.

(United Press Lensed Wire.)
San Francisco, May 21.—Weak and still unable to speak, August Verdier, who for six hours last night struggled against drowning in a bath tub, was taken from the hospital to his home today for treatment.

Early Wednesday Verdier engaged a tub at the Lurline baths. Six hours later, in making his rounds, the attendant found Verdier in the tub, almost exhausted from holding his head out of the water. It is believed that upon stepping into the cold bath the shock caused paralysis. Unable to cry out or to get out of the tub, Verdier was barely able to keep his face above water and when discovered he was on the point of fainting from exhaustion.

Eating Not Popular in Fiction.

An English writer notes that eating, as a necessary and important part of social life, has lost its place in fiction. What he says is true, and is equally true of dress as an essential part of the description of the personages of the tale. Modern novelists, for example, seldom describe the heroine's garb, leaving that to the reader's fancy or to the pencil of the illustrator. Omission of such description either by pen or brush is not unwise, since feminine fashion change so rapidly that too accurate portrayals serve to classify the book as belonging to a fixed period.

The matter of eating, however, is different. To eat in company is more a part of social life among the rich and poor than ever before. Every year dining is becoming more of a fine art and cookery has advanced to a profession. Mr. Mincawber, who broiled bacon and toasted bread at his broken grate and entertained his friends with joyful hospitality, has his counterpart in these days in the man who proudly displays his mastery of the chaffing dish. Women flock to cooking classes, and a new and savory dish excites as much interest among them as ever it could have done among those famous cooks, their grandmothers.

Why this art does not figure more in fiction is not clear. People dine in novels, but never by chance do readers know what is served to them or how they enjoy it. There are, of course, such exceptions as Upton

Sincclair's fantastic tale in which members of the four hundred indulge in a gluttonous "feed," but this is not to be counted. Eating as one of the simple and universal pleasures of life is not recognized by fiction writers. Do they fancy that such portrayals are beneath their art or that the public prefers more aesthetic themes? If so, they are wrong. Dickens knew how much the social meal enhanced the joy of living in his day, both in high circles and low, and conditions in this respect are not different now. A little recognition of the fact that a dinner is something beyond an interchange of wit, or an hour of dull dialogue, would not lower the standard of any novelist.—Indianapolis Star.
