BOATING PARTY ENDS IN DEATH OF ONE SEVERAL HURT WHEN BALLOON DROPS FROM GREAT HEIGHT

HARDEN WILL BE RETRIED UNFAIR TRIAL

WHO EXPOSED COUNT MOLTKE AND KNIGHTS OF MOLTE WINS IN SC ME TRIBUNAL.

May 23.—Editor Maximilian Harden, whose exposure of the immorality of members of the Knight of the Round Emperor William's "kitchen cabinet" resulted in a sentence of imprisonment for libel, secured a victory today when the court of the empire, decided in a retrial and sentence were unfair and ordered a rehearing. Harden was sentenced to imprisonment for accusing Count von Moltke of unspeakable practices. The decision is a crushing condemnation of the methods employed at Harden's trial. The reversal is expected to quiet public clamor against the injustice done the editor.

Before the judges withdrew to their chambers to discuss their decision, Harden made an eloquent plea for justice, describing how the lower court maneuvered against him.

The court ordered the editor's release on bond. Prince Zu Eulenberg, von Moltke's most intimate friend and at one time one of the emperor's chief advisers, is now under arrest, awaiting trial on a charge of perjury, alleged to have been committed when testifying in the trial of Harden. The prince denied under oath the charges made against him, which were similar to those made against the count, but a later hearing of the charges against the prince developed such convincing evidence of his guilt that his arrest on the perjury charge was ordered.

CHAUFFEUR DROWNS IN THE RIVER

GIRL JUST SAVED

OUT LAUNCHING—ATTEMPTED TO GAIN SHORE ON LOGS— —BOTH FAIL IN — OLIVE DREUMOND RESCUED.

Tess Schafer of Portland, 25 years of age, chauffeur for E. S. Stewart, wireless telegraphy company promoter, was drowned this morning at 11:25 o'clock among the logs anchored behind the Spaulding Lumber company's mill on the Willamette. By a miracle, Olive Drummond, 15 years old of this city, was saved from a similar fate through the heroic work of Henry Folkes, who pulled her out of the water just after the young couple fell off the logs, on which they had landed after having been out launch riding during the forenoon. The authorities were immediately notified of the fatality and volunteers from the mill together with the loggers, began a systematic dredging of the waters around where the unfortunate young man was reported to have sunk from sight, but to no avail.

O. G. Davey, who was working on Cummings saw, ran two blocks, plunged into the icy water and went to the assistance of the young woman, but she had already been rescued by Folkes, who was in a boat. The tragedy occurred at 11:25 this morning. Schafer had been out riding in the launch with Miss Olive Drummond of 163 Front street. After making the boat fast to the boom Schafer and Miss Drummond started to walk the logs to the shore. The logs turned, throwing them both into the water.

Two men, Henry Folkes and Sam Minnard, who were standing on the steamboat dock near the mill saw the accident and put out in a boat to the rescue. By heroic efforts they succeeded in getting the young lady out of the water, but they could find no trace of Schafer who probably went down under the logs.

Schafer is a young man about 25 years of age, and is a chauffeur for Fred Stewart of the Wireless Telegraph company of Portland. Stewart came up from Portland in his automobile last week, but returned a few days ago leaving Schafer at the Cottage hotel in charge of the machine.

During his stay at the Cottage Schafer had become acquainted with Olive Drummond, who lives near the hotel. Schafer wanted her to go riding with him on the river this morning, but Mrs. Drummond would not consent.

Schafer's remains were recovered by Chief of Police Gibson at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

Messrs. R. Turney, Delbert Burton, Edward Capper, Henry Stoudenmeyer, members of the Peorle's orchestra of this city, went to Eugene this morning to fill an engagement with Arthur Hendershott's orchestra for the junior prom tonight at the U. of O.

VANDERBILT MUST SET ASIDE $5,000,000 FOR SON

New York, May 23.—Five millions instead of the $10,000,000 she demanded is the enormous sum of money that Alfred G. Vanderbilt must set aside for his son as the result of the divorce granted Mrs. A. G. Vanderbilt, according to a report.

The cash settlement was agreed upon by a compromise reached by lawyers representing the young millionaire and his former wife. It is said that he has been willing right along to give $5,000,000, but he insisted that twice that amount was excessive and unreasonable.

Countess Had Male Chaperon.

Paris, May 23.—It will be a surprising bit of news for the American friends of Mme. Anna Gould to learn that she employed a male chaperone to accompany her on her tour of the Mediterranean ports and Italy; that his name is Ellsworth Chapman; that Chapman had a verbal clash with Prince Helle de Sagan, who wants to marry Mme. Gould, and that the "chaperon" has returned to New York to resume his duties as a law clerk.

Mme. Gould conceived the idea of a male companion after her relatives had declined to make the trip with her. She cabled to her lawyers in New York and they recommended Ellsworth Chapman, familiarly known as "Chapple," who was employed in their office. Chapman joined the former countess and was with her and Prince de Sagan on a five-week tour. Everything went along swimmingly. Chapman was handed big wads of money and instructed to pay the prince's bills. He did it. He was told to do various other things. He did them. It was one round of pleasure for the "chaperon" until one night not long ago when Mme. Gould de Sagan and a party of friends gathered around a table in the restaurant Des Ambassadeurs to dine. After the diners had satisfied their appetite with various and sundry dishes with unpronounceable names Chapman was right on the job with a handful of money to pay the waiter. Prince de Sagan had flashed a thousand-franc note and was trying to attract the attention of the waiter. When Chapman insisted upon settling de Sagan stammered that he was "inmited."

Chapman there and then declared he had been slighted in the presence of company and quit his "soft snap."

Students Get Two to Quit.

Stanford University, Cal., May 23.—Rather than be criticized by the students for actions of the students' affairs committee arousing their ire, Prof. A. M. Cathcart and R. E. Swain have resigned from that body. It is generally believed that the resignations will take effect on June 1, when the new committee for the next academic year will be announced by President Jordan. The two professors, it is thought, gave notice of their resignation at this time to signify unwillingness to serve the term. The students' affairs committee is the board which cut such a wide swath in the ranks of the undergraduates for the wholesale suspensions. It was the severe punishment meted out to the men in the parade of March 12 which aroused the student body almost to the point of rebellion and opened a breach of ill-feeling between the undergraduates and the faculty. Prof. Cathcart is an associate professor in the law department and Swain occupies the same position in the department of chemistry.

When the doctor is called he asks: "How are the bowels?" They are generally wrong. His visit might have been saved by a timely dose of Lane's Family Medicine.

AIRSHIP TUMBLES 200 FEET

MANY ARE INJURED

BIG DIRRIGIBLE BALLOON DROPS LONG DISTANCE BE- FORE LARGE CROWD AT BERKELEY, CALIFORNIA.

Berkeley Cal., May 23.—The Morrell airship, with 15 men aboard, exploded when two hundred feet in the air today, collapsed and fell swiftly to the ground injuring nearly every passenger, including Captain Penfold, an Australian aeronaut, who secretly climbed aboard as the ship started, and C. A. Morrell, inventor of the ship.

Berkeley Cal., May 23.—The big Morrell airship which is 450 feet long, collapsed when at a height of 200 feet here today and came down in a tangled mass of ropes and canvas. The airship was scheduled to make an ascent from Milvia and Alhilton way. It swung into the air amid the applause of a great crowd which had gathered to see its flight shortly before 12 o'clock.

The airship was the largest ever constructed. It was 450 feet in length and the great bag contained 50,000 cubic feet of gas. The ship was propelled by five 40-horsepower engines, fastened to the rigging at intervals under the large cigar-shaped bag.

The crowd immediately rushed to the rescue of the occupants, cutting their way through the cord, canvas and balloon envelope to the men who lay groaning beneath. The injured aeronauts were quickly removed to where they could receive immediate attention for their injuries.

John Burns, known as "Shorty," riding on top of the gas bag, escaped injury by marvelous agility in scaling the net work that surrounded the gas bag. He climbed 100 feet up the side of the bag as it turned on end and started to come down.

Those who were in the airship were: C. A. Morrell, inventor of the air ship, inside rigging forward end; crushed by rigging of propeller when air ship hit the ground. Leg broken and badly lacerated. Taken to Roosevelt hospital.

C. Tripple, of San Francisco, engineer of engine number four, crushed by engine.

Justin Barber, photographer, in forward end of rigging. Ribs broken.

W. Tyson, valve tender, jumped 50 feet before collapsed bag struck ground. Badly bruised and cut.

E. C. Wilfen, newspaperman, badly bruised and suffering from shock.

P. H. Goodfriend, first engineer. Jumped before bag struck ground, dodged engine and escaped with slight bruises.

Herst Miller, valve tender, slightly bruised.

Captain Penfold, an Australian aeronaut, now employed at Idora park, stowed away on the big airship at the last minute and went up contrary to Morrell's orders. His leg was crushed and he is thought to be severely injured.

J. Christensen, anchor watch, was uninjured.

CABRERA PLANS TO EXTERMINATE ENEMIES

San Francisco, May 23.—Passengers arriving here on the Pacific Mail liner San Jose from the port of San Jose, Guatemala, today tell a story of swift and mysterious vengeance on the part of President Cabrera by which the most prominent men in that country who were opposed to him have been disappearing and each disappearance has been followed by a burial at the penitentiary. They give the names of nine men who have not been seen lately and whose friends and relatives have given them up as victims of the president's anger.

RAILROAD COMMISSION TO ENFORCE ITS ORDER

A complaint was filed by the Multnomah Lumber & Box company of Portland with the railroad commission today setting forth that the Southern Pacific company has not complied with the order of the commission to connect its tracks with those of the United Railway company of Portland, so that freight could be switched from the main line of the Southern Pacific to any point on the United Railway tracks.

The order, which the Southern Pacific company has ignored, was made on March 21, and 45 days were given the railroad company to make the connection.

Bandits Rob Inn Guests.

Reno, Nev., May 23.—After severing all wires so that no assistance could have been summoned, three bandits entered the old Kirk Inn, a road house in a suburb of Reno Friday night, engaged in a wild fight with their victims, but finally escaped on bicycles.

The inn was crowded with men and women when the holdups surprised them by rushing in and commanding them to throw up their hands. One or two men more brave than the others grappled with the desperadoes, whereupon the bandits opened fire. In the meantime women were scrambling for places of safety, some of the weaker ones being trampled on.

A wild scene of confusion reigned for a few seconds. Finding their intended victims unwilling to surrender as a whole, the holdup men dashed through a door, leaped on their bicycles and escaped in the darkness. It was learned later that the trio did damage amounting to $1000 in cutting the wires.
