REPUBLICAN PLATFORM AND TAFT

Washington, June 1.—There will be no lukewarm indorsement of President Roosevelt and his policies in the Republican national platform. If the wishes of Secretary Taft and his friends have potency in the framing of that document. This much was made known today after the first of a series of conferences to be held on the subject of the platform. Should the Chicago convention adopt this sort of platform in authoritative quarters that his letter or speech of acceptance will contain a pledge to carry out the Roosevelt policies already inaugurated and earnestly strive for those not enacted, which will have a ring similar to that pronounced by Mr. Roosevelt on taking the oath of office over the body of the dead McKinley.

Wade Ellis, attorney general of Ohio, who has prospects of being the Ohio member of the resolutions committee of that convention and who was largely responsible for the conceded virility of the Ohio Republican platform, is here for a thorough understanding with the secretary of war. He was with Mr. Taft at his office for several hours today and at the Taft residence for a long time tonight. Another conference is to be held tomorrow, when it is not unlikely the result will be brought to the attention of the President.

Mr. Taft had made no secret of his position on the tariff. He is for revision at a special session of the sixty-first congress, to be called immediately after the inauguration, March 4, 1909. His ideas as to what the tariff should be also are public property. The schedules should be drawn as near as possible to cover the difference between the lesser cost of production of a given article in foreign countries and the cost to produce that article in the United States. This he regards as the "protection" in its true and fair sense. Schedules which are fixed at a rate higher than this difference, he believes, are not only unnecessary as means of protection, but are evidence of the temptation to capitalists to form monopolies and trusts in this country for the control of the market in that particular product.

From this information the prediction is declared to be a safe one that the tariff plank to be presented to the resolutions committee by the Taft adherents will follow closely the lines of the Ohio platform, with the added specifications regarding the manner of arriving at the amount of tariff which should be levied.

Mr. Ellis is known to be heartily in favor of a plank stipulating that amendments should be made to the Sherman anti-trust law, and Mr. Taft is known to be a thorough believer in the efficacy of trust control through federal laws. The embodiment of these ideas into a plank, which might take the form of an indorsement of the Hepburn bill, which died a peaceful death in the house judiciary committee, is said to be a safe prediction.

The conference will not be restricted in their personnel, and it is believed that before the Taft platform is finally perfected for submission the views of many of the party leaders will have been obtained.

Ohio Platform.
The Ohio Republican platform, which is to form the basis of the national Republican platform, says on the leading issues:

"In the nation, we stand for those ideals of government which mean justice, equality and fair dealing among men; a brace and impartial enforcement of the law; commercial and industrial liberty; individualism as against socialism; competition as against monopoly; government regulation as against government ownership; the promotion of the best interests of labor and capital and the unflinching protection of both; compensation for injured employees of the government; the re-enactment in constitutional form of the employers' liability act; a limitation in the exercise of the power of injunction, in order to prevent its abuse; a greater merchant marine and an adequate navy.

CITY COUNCIL LAST NIGHT

The friends and opponents of the bill granting further franchises in Salem to the Oregon Electric Railroad company clashed again at the meeting of the city council last night.

The committee to which the bill was referred at the last meeting reported, asking that the measure be voted down, and in connection with their report presented a remonstrance signed by about 100 property owners strongly urging that the company be compelled to place their Ys and switches on their own property. The remonstrance stated that the company already had property of their own, and that the placing of switches and turn tables on High and Mill streets would be an everlasting damage to the property in that section.

Another petition signed by a like number of citizens, urged the city fathers in equally strong terms to reconsider their action in rejecting the franchise bill. One peculiar feature of the petitions was that several signatures by the same persons appeared on both of them. The latter paper stated that many of the signers of the original petition, which was responsible for the squelching of the bill, had labored under the delusion that High and Mill streets were to be used for side tracks, where freight and passenger cars were to stand for an indefinite period when not in use, and that turn tables would be placed on them, and that these signers had come to see the error of their ways. The petition also stated that on account of the action of the council in this matter, statements had been made in the public press pointing to our lack of enterprise and progress. The paper declared that no possible damage would accrue to the property owners by the passage of the bill, and advised that the council reconsider and repeal its action.

This petition was backed up by a petition from the Board of Trade, which read as follows:

"The undersigned committee appointed by the Board of Trade represents that we have carefully examined the improvements of the Oregon Electric Railroad company on Mill and High streets, as prayed for in the petition and embodied in the ordinance recently rejected by your honorable body, and are of the opinion that no material damage or injury would result to the adjacent property or to the owners thereof. We therefore respectfully request your honorable body to reconsider the ordinance which was lost, and to enact the same in the form requested by the Oregon Electric Railroad company."

With these two conflicting petitions before them, the council was between the Devil and the deep sea, and the discussion which followed almost equaled in intensity that of a week ago, when Galvani made his reputation as an orator. As before, the majority of the council indicated that they were not ready, on the spur of the moment, to decide so weighty a question, and the matter was postponed by referring the report of the committee to the committee on ordinances, which will report at the next meeting of the council.

The meeting last night opened in a rather sensational manner, when Councilman Stoltz called his honor, the mayor, to task for interfering with the work of the street committee, and ordering the workmen on State street to haul the excavated dirt to the South Commercial street fill instead of in front of the private property on Winter street. Stoltz said that the dirt was placed on the street bounding the property of Wilamette university, and that this was not private property.

"The university property is not private property," said Stoltz. "It is public property, and has been so dealt with by the street committee. We are amply repaid for the little favor we have granted them. Many of us have subscribed for the university fund. I subscribed for it. I considered it public property when I did so. If it is not public property then I will withdraw my subscription at once. Not one yard of dirt has been given to private property owners. The committee had a right to dispose of the dirt in the manner they did."

"No one questions the gentleman's right to give his money to whom he pleases," retorted the mayor, "but the chair seriously questions his right to give city property to any institution."

Councilman Stockton thereupon moved that the street committee have charge of all work pertaining to the streets. The chair informed him that there was already an ordinance to that effect, and the argument closed.

A motion by Stoltz that the street committee be instructed to put in all the necessary catch basins on State street as fast as possible, that the paving may proceed at once, was passed.

The report by the Warren Construction company of the work completed to date on State street was referred to the committee on reports.

A liquor license was granted to F. C. Fish and August Schreib. The report of the city attorney, describing the method of procedure to be followed by the street committee, was adopted.

The assessment ordinance for Broadway was referred to the committee on streets. The bill regulating the handling and storing of gasoline, benzine and naphtha, was referred to the committee on fire and water. The bills presented against the city were ordered paid.

It was passed that the committee on streets meet with the Park board, discuss the expediency of placing a curb in front of Marion Square, and report at the next meeting of the council. Passed that assessment

The Cause of Many Sudden Deaths.

There is a disease prevailing in this country most dangerous because so deceptive. Many sudden deaths are caused by it—heart disease, pneumonia, heart failure or apoplexy are often the result of kidney disease. If kidney trouble is allowed to advance the kidney-poisoned blood will attack the vital organs, causing catarrh of the bladder, or the kidneys themselves break down and waste away cell by cell.

Bladder troubles almost always result from a derangement of the kidneys and a cure is obtained quickest by a proper treatment of the kidneys. If you are feeling badly you can make no mistake by taking Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy.

It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often through the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases.

Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and is sold by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful new discovery and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address, Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

notices be served on the property owners on Commercial street between Trade and Center, for paving, on June 8. Passed that the service of the pound master be dispensed with on June 15.

The petition to improve Pine street was referred to the committee on streets, and the petition to grade Commercial street between Columbia and Pine was referred to the same committee. A special committee was appointed to investigate the Fair Grounds road, and to report on the best means of repairing it. The bids of the Warren Construction company for the paving of Commercial street and of High street, were referred to the committee on streets.

The report of the park board was accepted, and the suggestions offered by the board were approved. The report showed that more money was needed to keep the parks in proper condition, and the council voted $300 for their present maintenance.

PROTEST AGAINST CHANGING NAME OF MOUNTAIN

(Pendleton Tribune.)
The people of Umatilla and adjoining counties are preparing to raise a storm of protests against the changing of the names of the Blue mountains as suggested and ordered by Gifford Pinchot, chief of the bureau of forestry.

According to an official notice recently received, the Blue mountain district, east will be hereafter called the Whitman reserve. The name of Umatilla will be applied to the other part of the system. The name of the blue mountains has now become a household word among the residents in four counties, and the change in the name will also demand a revision of legal papers relating to those mountains.

The change of the names as ordered by Pinchot is not without its romantic and sentimental aspect. Always a lover of the history of the history of the pioneer life in America, and consequently in the northwest; and also being directly acquainted with the wealth of the Pacific northwest which was saved to the nation by Dr. Marcus Whitman, Mr. Pinchot has dedicated to himself the task of perpetuating the name of Whitman by writing it forever on the imperial summits of the Blue mountain range.

"The dulcet euphony of the word, 'Umatilla,' according to one thoroughly acquainted with the situation has also been a favorite with the forestry chief since he first pondered over it in the profusely illustrated geographies of old, and it has always been his ambition to apply the name wherever opportunity might enable him to indulge his alphabetical hobby.

For these reasons alone, according to members of the forestry service, Pinchot has ordered the forestry reserves and mountains to be christened anew. Umatilla and Whitman will be the common expressions, supplanting Blue mountain east, etc. The residents of Umatilla and adjoining counties are willing, if necessary to have the name of their county bequeathed to the mountains by Gifford Pinchot, but they feel that the forestry chief is exceeding the limits of his jurisdiction when he demands that the name of his youthful hero should be adopted by the people as the official title for the mountains, and mountain reserves which have gone down in the history of the county and northwest as the Blue mountains.

If sentiment alone is responsible for the change, the protestants feel that they have an equally adequate amount of sentiment demanding the continuation of the name to more than overbalance that of the chief, and to that effect, will word a protest addressed to Gifford Pinchot asking that the change in the names of the mountains be not made.

According to the orders that Mr. Pinchot has made, the change in the names of the reserves will occur on July 1. The people of Umatilla county will be interested to learn of the change being made in the title of their mountains by the Washington official.

A Polylingual Technical Dictionary.

A new technological dictionary in all the principal languages of Europe and America has long been recognized as a pressing want for the convenience of large industrial and commercial concerns as well as for the international communications of engineers and men of science. The polylingual dictionaries now existing are to a large extent antiquated and do not contain enough of the professional terms used in the work shops and the offices. For this reason the Association of German Engineers took this grand problem up already some years ago. But in the course of the preparatory work it was found out that the large means of this flourishing association were not sufficient for the elaborate execution of the work contemplated. For not only the whole literature of all technical branches was to be gone through, but even the customary expressions used by the foremen in the work shops had to be properly defined. The council of the association, after finishing the splendid "History of the Steam Engine" in two volumes, found it necessary to interrupt the lexicographical work intrusted to a large staff of experts, because the funds needed for completing the whole were beyond the means available. In this situation the interest taken by the German Emperor in this German work of international importance has come to the rescue. Professor Slaby was authorized to announce that the Kaiser would greatly regret the discontinuation of such a useful work and that public money may be available for supplying the gap. It is now expected that substantial support will be granted to the committee on compilation and that the first volume of this gigantic technical dictionary will be published in due time.—Continental Correspondence.
