PRESIDENT AND VICE-PRESIDENT ASPIRANTS

Favorite Sons, and Others.. Possibilities and Near Possibilities for the Republican Nominations for President and Vice-President—Their Personalities and Achievements—Written by Staff Representatives of the United Press Who Are Personally Acquainted with the Subjects.

Washington, June 12.—The things best known about Robert M. La Follette are: That he is a reformer who has figured in Wisconsin for a number of years; that he has been governor of that state and is now a member of the U. S. senate; that he lives on nuts and vegetables instead of meat and potatoes; that he does the Chautauqua circuit profitably during the summer time; that the railroads hate him; that members of the U. S. senate are not fond of him; that he makes a good speech and that he is opposed to the vested interests and that all railroad men think he wears hoofs and horns.

He has been in political life for 25 years, during which time he served three consecutive terms in the lower branch of congress, and three times as governor. He was defeated for re-election to the house in 1890, and that year marked the beginning of his remarkable struggle against the domination of railroad and other corporations in the politics of Wisconsin.

At the end of ten years' effort he became the governor of the state. The experiences of those ten years were varied. They included house to house campaigning, many defeats, patronage bribes and even offers of money by corporations interested in getting him out of their way. In one instance, it is alleged, the nomination for governor was stolen from him by the purchase of delegates. But at length his strength with the people became so overwhelming that he was nominated and elected.

During his service as governor, La Follette was so successful in his propagand of reform that an honest majority was secured in the legislature and laws were enacted compelling the valuation of railroads and other quasi-public corporate property and revising the taxes of these corporations so that they have been compelled to pay more nearly their just proportion. A primary election law for senatorial and other nominations was passed. A good law was secured covering the grant of street railway franchises to municipal corporations in the state and permitting a vote by the people on all such important privileges.

Having cleaned house in his own state, La Follette decided to enter a broader field, and in 1905 he was elected to the United States senate to succeed Joseph B. Quarles, and took his seat January 4, 1906.

That La Follette would be ineffectual as a member of the United States senate was the prediction freely made by his numerous enemies. The powerful interests which he had antagonized in his own state feared and resented his presence in the United States senate.

He has disappointed his enemies, no less than he has pleased his friends. Those who believed that he would be content to make a noise and let it go at that have found that they were mistaken. Others who thought that he would render himself useless by ill-advised personal attacks or undignified conduct have found they were equally in error. On the other hand, the smooth, diplomatic gentlemen who run the senate have found it impossible to move La Follette from his regular course of action by soft speech, promises or hopes of any kind of reward. Neither offices, nor tendered appointments on important committees, nor pleasant social relations have been effectual in swerving La Follette from the course he had mapped out.

Senator La Follette has constituted himself a very important minority of one. In this capacity he objects to bad legislation and uses his objections to secure what is possible of good legislation, and the fact that the senate does business practically by unanimous consent, has made La Follette's legislative independence a potent factor in the law making power.

The best speech on the administration's railroad rate law was that delivered by Senator La Follette. He is responsible for more amendments to that law as it now stands on the books than any single member of the senate. His long fight with the railroads in Wisconsin had given him a wonderful preparation to deal with this subject intelligently and forcefully. President Roosevelt acknowledged the assistance rendered by La Follette in this fight, and several of the latter's amendments were adopted by the administration before they were presented to the senate.

Senator La Follette was a pioneer in the work of saving the public utilities. In the 59th congress he exposed an effort by the Standard Oil company to acquire the oil and mineral lands in the then territory of Oklahoma and Indian territory. He prepared, but was unable to secure the passage of an excellent law to protect the rights of the government, and thus of the people, in coal and mineral lands which still are part of the public domain. He aided the passage of the meat inspection law, the pure food law, the employers' liability law, and practically all the good legislation enacted in the 59th congress.

In the 60th congress La Follette single handedly defeated the original Aldrich currency bill. He held that the bill was intended primarily to create a market for railroad securities which had been crumpled by Rockefeller, Morgan, Ryan and a few other New York capitalists, and at Senator La Follette's demand the so-called "railway bond feature" of the Aldrich bill was stricken out.

A record of this character had its natural effect in drawing upon the head of La Follette the bitter enmity of nine-tenths of the members of the senate. He found himself the object of a conspiracy fostered by the "Old Guard," the object of which was to "segregate" him. The leaders of the senate apparently agreed to speak to him once during the day, but otherwise to ignore his presence as a member of that body. This has, however, made no difference to the Wisconsin senator, who has gone on with his self-appointed task of being a thorn in the side of those who he believes represent the vester interests.

His most notable effort in this direction was during the last days of the recent session of congress, when he talked 18 hours and 23 minutes continuously in opposition to the amalgamated Aldrich-Vreeland currency bill. He did not kill the bill, but he succeeded in impressing his personality more strongly than ever upon the country, and incidentally in accomplishing a feat in long-distance oratory never before recorded in the annals of the senate. Rules that had not been invoked in a generation had to be enforced by the senate leaders to prevent the continuation of his filibuster and the indefinite postponement of the adjournment of congress.

No Need of Suffering from Rheumatism.

It is a mistake to allow anyone to suffer from rheumatism, as the pain can always be relieved, and in most cases a cure effected by applying Chamberlain's Liniment. The relief from pain which it affords is alone worth many times its cost. It makes sleep and rest possible. Even in cases of long standing this liniment should be used on account of the relief which it affords. Do not be discouraged until you have given it a trial. For sale by Dr. Stone's drug store.

Cotton Growing in Corea.

Consul-General Henry B. Miller of Yokohama transmits an article from a local financial and economic journal on the cultivation of cotton in Corea, from which the following extracts are taken: "It is a well-known fact that the future of cotton planting in Corea is full of promise, and since the establishment of the Cotton Plantation association various measures have been adopted to introduce improved methods of planting and the result has proved very satisfactory. The cultivators of cotton have each been given a farming implement regardless of the size of their holdings. Prizes have been given by the government to those who are diligent in the work. Thus everything possible is being done for the encouragement of the cultivation of the plant. During 1907 the work has been quite satisfactory, with the exception of a few plantations, and there is no room left to doubt the adaptability of the Corean climate and soil for the production of cotton. Now the question is, how far the cultivation can be extended in Corea. If things progress at the present rate, within five years there will be an area of plantation extending over 122,500 acres, and the output of ginned cotton will be 28,666,666 pounds, valued at $2,225,000. Compared with the sum realized by the old Corean method, which is 12,500,000 pounds, valued at $1,910,000, an excess of 16,166,666 pounds, valued at $1,810,000, will be obtainable. Thus, if all the plantations in Corea will use the new seeds the output of ginned cotton will be 67,200,000 pounds, valued at $7,560,000.

When you need to take something take it promptly for the stomach, but take something you know is reliable—something like Kodol for Dyspepsia and indigestion. Kodol is pleasant to take, it is reliable and is guaranteed to give relief. It is sold by all druggists.
