PRESIDENT HOMAN
and clean cut features that belated more of the business man than the preacher—although those who heard him at the First M. E. church last night declare he is a seven-story preacher.

Captured the Students.
At the close of his address to the students, Zimmerman, the yell leader, had the students nearly raise the roof with ebullitions of enthusiasm over the new president. He certainly captured the student body, and showed himself a broad-minded man, when he said it was their duty to go forth and welcome young men and women to this institution of learning regardless of religious opinions. "It is for moral uplift and character building that our doors must ever swing open to every hungry-hearted boy and girl in Oregon. Tell them this is the most beautiful city in Oregon and the finest place on the Pacific coast to get an education. While I appreciate all that has been done by the great men of the past, no man living or dead has done as much as the Hon. A. E. Eaton of us the magnificent new $70,000 building for which ground will be broken next Thursday. (Great applause.) While this campus is sprinkled with the life-blood of consecrated men and women who have gone before, and the foundations of these buildings have been laid with sacrifices and prayers, the stability and security and permanence of Willamette of the future is made possible by such gifts from large-hearted and liberal-minded business men." (Great applause and cheering continued.)

The Week's Programs.
A reception is being tendered this afternoon to President Homan at Lausanne hall on behalf of the faculty and their wives and the alumnae and students and ministers and business men of the city are taking part. The college annex for the women is beautifully decorated. This afternoon and evening the college of music at the Grand opera house. Tuesday at 9 a. m. the annual meeting of the board of trustees will be held at the college chapel. The board will organize, appoint committees and proceed to organize for the year's work.

Wednesday graduating exercises of the institute academy and normal school at the M. E. church, Rev. Gilliland of Idaho delivers the address. Wednesday is alumni day with banquet at the First M. E. church at 6 p. m. Thursday evening, commencement exercises of Willamette University at M. E. church. Addresses by A. E. Eaton and Rev. Bauer.

COLEMAN ELECTED

000, and there is no debt. The present endowment is about $150,000, and there are about 150 students. Since the resignation of President Eli McCallah, D.D., in 1906, the professor of Greek, Dr. M. S. Cross has been acting president. Prof. H. S. Tillman of Salem is a graduate of the institution had a former member of the faculty.

At the last session of his conference Dr. Coleman was appointed to raise $100,000 to rebuild the Conference Academy which was burned during the conference session. It is expected that Dr. Coleman will have his task completed in time to accept this call from the west.

The fact that Dr. Coleman has been called twice across the country to the work of securing a Methodist institution in a critical situation, is good evidence of his ability in educational work. Dr. Coleman's many admirers in Salem rejoice in the prospect of his early return to the Pacific coast.
