State vs. Young. The belated appeal in the case of the State vs. Joseph Young was filed with the attorney general this morning, and the trial of the case before the supreme court began this afternoon.

Four years ago Young shot Caspar Van Drand of Portland, who afterwards killed himself. Young was convicted of assault with a deadly weapon, and sentenced to six years in the penitentiary. Young has now served two-thirds of this sentence. The appeal, which has been dragging along for four years, is taken on the grounds that Young had a right to shoot Van Drand because he was attempting to ruin Young's wife and family.

Freak Newspapers. The discussion on the subject of using black paper and white ink for newspapers recalls the fact that one of the most remarkable freak newspapers ever printed was the Lumina, published in Madrid. It was printed with ink containing phosphorus, so that the paper could be read in the dark. Another curiosity was called the Regal, printed with nonpoisonous ink on thin sheets of dough, which could be eaten, thus furnishing nourishment for body as well as mind. Le Blen Etre, a French paper, promised those who subscribed for 40 years a pension and free burials.

LANDS IN SALEM BY ACCIDENT

Here is a true story of a stranger in a strange land. Louis Howlet, 17 years of age, left his home in Byron, Nebraska last Sunday for Selma, Oregon, a small town near Grants Pass, to join his father, Samuel Howlet, a prosperous rancher of that place. He asked the station agent at Byron for a ticket to Selma, but the agent for some reason made a mistake and gave the boy a ticket to Salem.

Young Howlet arrived in the Capital City yesterday afternoon and began inquiring for his father, who by the way, has lived in Oregon for 16 years and owns a half section of the finest timber land in southern Oregon. Louie thought it strange that no one could tell him in what part of town his father lived, so he consulted the city directory, but with no better success.

He discovered at length that he was not in Selma, but Salem. He went to the postoffice and inquired if there was any mail for him. The clerk handed him a letter addressed to his father Saml. Howlet, Selma, Oregon. It seemed that the post-office people at Byron had made the same kind of a mistake that the ticket agent did. The boy opened the letter and found it was from his sister, advising the elder Howlet that Louie was on his way to join him.

The land went to the court house and told the sheriff of his predicament. The worst of it was, the boy explained, "that he was busted." He wanted a job, and wanted it right away in order to raise enough money to get to Selma.

He wrote to his father last evening, but he says if he can earn $4 in the meantime he will not wait for an answer.

Fresh Crawfish— Today, Saturday and Sunday, Elite Restaurant.

Bill Taft sent a telegraph from Washington immediately to Sherman after his nomination, congratulating his and assuring him of success.

Mrs. George Sloan of Tacoma, Wash., sacrificed her own life yesterday in saving that of her infant baby.

It Is Not Advertising Which Survives; But the Things Which Are Advertised : : :

THE "cleverest advertisement" you ever wrote may be quite forgotten now, even by the best friends it made for you! It may survive only in the bigger store it helped to create. But it is just as certain that the bigger store of the future is to grow out of the advertising of the present as it is that the store as it now stands is the result, in large measure, of your "forgotten" advertisements. You have preserved the results of advertising. You must create new results through new advertising.

ARRESTED ON CHARGE OF CRIMINAL ASSAULT

Unle's Wilma Lee, a 16-year-old girl, living near Monmouth, is mistaken in her identification, Deputy Sheriff Minto has brought to bay one of the worst of criminals.

The young lady yesterday was visiting her uncle, David Olen, who lives just across the river from Independence. She was walking along the river bank when she was encountered by a strange man who without warning, brutally assaulted her, tearing off nearly all her clothing in the attempt to accomplish his dastardly purpose.

The girl grappled with the field in a life and death struggle, striking and kicking him, and at the same time screaming for help. The man became frightened, and snatching the girl's purse, which contained about a dollar, he made his escape across the river to Independence.

The sheriff at Salem was at once notified, and Deputy Harry Minto started for Independence. Charles Blanchard was arrested by City Marshal Collins, and was identified by Miss Lee as the man who assaulted her. He was brought to Salem by Deputy Minto, and charged with assault with intent to commit rape.

Hearing at Salem. Blanchard appeared before Justice Webster at 10 o'clock this morning, and waived examination. The hearing in the case was set for Monday morning at 10 o'clock, when the witnesses will be summoned. The prisoner stated that he wanted to retain an attorney from Independence. He will also call Mrs. M. Garrison, his grandmother, as a witness. His bond was fixed at $1000, and until he secures this Blanchard will remain in the county jail.
