AUNT MARY GROWS YOUNG

Direct from the Studebaker theater, Chicago, where it has been playing to capacity audiences nightly, May Robson and her company come to the Grand Opera house for Monday, June 29th.

Scene from May Robson's great success, "The Rejuvenation of Aunt Mary."

Chicago critics have endorsed it as one of the best comedies ever put on the American stage. There is not a dull moment in the entire performance, and Miss Robson keeps you laughing all the evening in the quaint role of Aunt Mary. The play is in three acts. The first and last take place at Aunt Mary's home in the country, and the second and has her lawyer draw up another will. Jack returns to New York all broken up and goes to live with his chum, Bob. Bob has a pretty sister whom Jack loves, but who will have nothing to do with him until he mends his ways. It is Betty's birthday, so the boys decide to give her a party, and while they are arranging things, a telegram comes saying Aunt Mary is on her way to New York. The boys rush off to meet the train. Betty sends her maid away and takes her place so she can look after Aunt Mary when she arrives. When Aunt Mary arrives, she is a sight—having had an argument with the cabman. The boys in some way miss her train, and find that she has arrived safely. When Aunt Mary comes down stairs she is introduced all around by Jack, who then discovers that one of the boys has written his aunt telling her he has the measles. Aunt Mary is made to believe the party is given in her honor. After supper Aunt Mary is taken for an automobile ride. She enters into the spirit with the boys even to the cigarettes and the cocktails.

After spending a week in New York Aunt Mary returns to the country. She finds life too slow and sends for Betty. When she arrives Aunt Mary wants to know if she smokes cigarettes, as she is dying to smell one. While they are talking Jack arrives and explains all to his aunt, also telling her his love for Betty. Aunt Mary forgives everybody, even the girl from Kalamazoo. She decides at last to go back to New York with Jack and Betty to live. She leaves her home to her two old servants, telling them to get married.

lies in keeping the skin protected as well as cleansed. Just washing is not enough—that only leaves the delicate surface more exposed to the irritation of dust and germs; to merciless attacks of sun and weather. After washing, apply Robertine and experience its delightful refreshment. You will admire the lineless softness it imparts to face, neck and arms. It not only stimulates a radiant glow, but protects the skin from becoming coarse. Prevents burning, tan and freckles.
Add your thought for a few simple and—
