KALE AS A CROP OF OREGON

Kale is one of the best talking crops in Oregon. When the Oregon booster wants to prove that Oregon is the best dairy state in the Union he has to talk kale. Unless he knows what kale will do to the milk bucket he has not qualified as a booster. It is called the Thousand-headed Kale and the botanist knows it as the Brassica oleracea, but it is the plain kale of four letters that does the talking. The strange thing is that it has only been during the last two or three years that it has had an audience though it is nearly 30 years old in the Willamette valley. It has tried to talk all those years but the people wouldn't listen when it sought recognition. "We never heard it talk," they insisted, "back in Iowa and New York. Back there cows produce milk without kale and I guess they will have to here." That is tradition. It took 30 years for kale to get an audience in this state and live down tradition.

The dairymen of New York understand what green succulent food means to the dairy cow, and they build expensive silos, buy expensive machinery and grow fertility-robbing corn which they irrigate with their sweat, in order that the farmer during the long winter months may have an excuse for milking his cows. The Oregonian needs no expensive silos to remind the cow of the good old summer time. Kale! A thousand blessings on the Thousand-headed Kale! It is making Oregon the greatest dairy state in the Union.

When grown under favorable conditions kale will yield 40 tons per acre of green feed and its chief value is as a silage crop during the fall and winter. Splendid results are being secured by feeding kale and vetch hay to dairy cows without any grain or mill feed. Dr. Withycombe of the Agricultural College says that 15 pounds of vetch hay and 40 pounds of kale a day is a practically balanced ration for a dairy cow. Mr. W. L. Wilson of Banks, Oregon, says: "I received $207 from 14 cows in the month of December and fed them nothing but kale, turnips and vetch hay. The man who feeds chop would have to make $237 to clear as much as I do. I have not had a speck of mill feed in the barn all winter."

Mr. Byron Hunter of Corvallis has, as assistant agriculturist of this Bureau of Plant Industry, U. S. Department of Agriculture, made a special study of the forage crops of western Oregon, and in Bulletin No. 91 published jointly by the Oregon Experiment station and the Department of Agriculture, has the following to say about kale which is timely:

"Methods of sowing—For fall and winter use, kale is usually sown in drills on well prepared and drained soil as soon after the 15th of March as the season will permit. This furnishes plants for transplanting in June and July. The land used for transplanting is well manured and plowed two or three times between the first of March and the first of June. With the land in perfect tith it is plowed again with a 12-inch plow about the first of June and the young kale plants dropped into every third furrow about 2 1/2 to 3 feet apart. This places about one plant on every square yard. The roots of the plants are placed where the next furrow covers them, leaving the tops uncovered. The plants that are plowed in during the day in this way are rolled in the evening of the same day to pack the ground. Two or three cultivations are all that can usually be given, for the plants will soon touch in the row if they do well. Any plants that fail to grow may be replaced by hand. Some growers prefer to plant the seed in hills, and when the plants are large enough thin them to one plant in a hill. Others put kale out just as cabbage is usually transplanted, instead of plowing it in. The time of transplanting must be determined by the size of the plants and the condition of the land. If the land is wet, and subject to overflow the transplanting may be delayed until during July. If the land is well drained and the plants are large enough it may be done before the first of June. In transplanting, enough plants may be left for a stand on the land where the seedlings are grown.

A Bold Step.

To overcome the well-grounded and reasonable objections of the more intelligent to the use of secret medicinal compounds, Dr. E. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., some time ago, decided to make a bold departure from the usual course pursued by the makers of patent medicines for domestic use, and so has published broad-cast and open to the whole world, a full and complete list of all the ingredients entering into the composition of his widely celebrated medicines. Thus he has taken his numerous patrons and patients into his full confidence. Thus too he has removed his medicines from among secret nostrums of doubtful merits, and made them Remedies of Known Composition.

By this bold step Dr. Pierce has shown that his formulas are of such excellence that he is not afraid to subject them to the fullest scrutiny.
 Not only does the wrapper of every bottle of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, the famous medicine for weak stomach, torpid liver or biliousness and all catarrhal diseases wherever located, have printed thereon in plain English, a full and complete list of all the ingredients composing it, but a small book of great value, also that some of the standard medical works, of all the different schools of practice, containing very numerous extracts from the writings of leading practitioners of medicine, endorsing in the strongest possible terms, each and every ingredient contained in Dr. Pierce's medicines. One of these little books will be mailed free to any one who sends on postal card or by letter, to Dr. E. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., and requesting the same. From this little book it will be learned that Dr. Pierce's medicines contain no alcohol, narcotics, mineral agents or other poisonous or injurious agents and that they are made from native medicinal roots of great value; also that some of the most valuable ingredients contained in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription for weak, nervous, over-worked, "run-down," nervous and debilitated women, were employed, long years ago, by the Indians for similar ailments affecting their squaws. In fact, one of the most valuable medicinal plants entering into the composition of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription was known to the Indians as "Squaw-Root." Our knowledge of the uses of most of our native medicinal plants was gained from the Indians. As made up by improved and exact processes, the "Favorite Prescription" is a most efficient remedy for regulating all the womanly functions, correcting displacements, as prolapsus, inversion and retroversion, overcoming painful periods, toning up the nerves and bringing about a perfect state of health. Sold by all dealers in medicines.

The International Marriage.

More than 400 prominent American women have married in Europe within recent years. Reckoning from 1820 the figures mount to over 500. Nearly 400 of these have married into noble foreign families.

The critics point to many prominent marriages between Europeans and Americans as examples of domestic unhappiness.

But actual records are against the belief that unhappiness is the particular part of the international marriage. In the World Almanac a list of 143 names of prominent American women who have married titled foreigners will be found. Out of the 356 cases of American girls who have married foreign noblemen not more than 20 troublous unions can be reckoned.

Glance over the list of prominent inter-European marriage, however, and it will be noted that the "political" marriage has a far worse record for average of unhappiness than the "financial" marriage. In the records of European marriages of members of royal and less noble families the names of the Emperor Francis Joseph, Rudolf, his second son, Archduke Otto of Bavaria, Princess Louise of Belgium, Prince Philip of Coburg, Queen Wilhelmina of Holland, Vladimir of Russia, and his son, the Grand Duke Cyril, Frederick August, King of Saxony, occur to the memory at once as unhappy examples.

The American divorce statistics for ten years up to 1905 show 16,388 cases in Chicago, 4706 in Philadelphia, 5231 in New York and 3746 in Boston. Perhaps with such records we have been somewhat too hasty in pointing the finger of scorn at the international marriage.—New York World.
